Prime Loan Rates Rise After Canada Bank Hike

Singkiang Clash Reported

Peking-Moscow Rift Widening

HONG KONG (AFP)—Chinese and Soviet border troops clashed again in Sinkiang Province Tuesday night, Radio Peking reported today. Sinkiang is where China's nuclear establishment is located.

The radio monitored here said large numbers of Soviet tanks and armored cars had moved in following a first exchange of fire between the two sides shortly before 10 p.m.

Broadcasting a Chinese protest sent to the Soviet embassy in Peking today, the radio said the clash "is still developing."

In its stiff protest note, the Peking foreign ministry alleged that Soviet troops shot and killed a Chinese woman shepherd.

The note claimed that dozens of Soviet border troops had first intruded into the western part of Barluk Mountain, Yumin country, in China's Sinkiang Uighur Autonomous Region and provoked Chinese herdsmen at 9:30 p.m. on June 10.

The note added that Soviet troops had kidnapped one Chinese herdsman. Ten minutes later, Chinese frontier guards attempted to negotiate with the Soviet troops but the latter opened fire, killing the Chinese woman shepherd.

Chinese troops were forced to return fire.

TANKS MOVE IN

Following this exchange, the Russians launched a large number of tanks and armored cars into Chinese territory with "the intent to create an even greater bloody incident," the note said, adding that the event "is still developing."

Describing the event as a "new bloody incident," the Peking foreign ministry demanded that the Russians immediately stop "the invasion" of Chinese territory and "armed provocations" and immediately return the kidnapped herdsman.

"Otherwise, it will surely meet with severe punishment by the Chinese people."

This latest incident occurred only 10 days before a proposed meeting of Soviet and Chinese officials at Khabarovsk, Russia, on June 18, to discuss border incidents.

ATTEMPT TO POISON CONFERENCE—RUSSIA

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union accused China today of provoking new clashes on the Soviet border and said China possibly will make further efforts to "poison the good, business-like atmosphere" at the Moscow-organized international Communist conference.

'Gut Issue' Talks Silence Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 provincial premiers, obviously respecting their adherence to secrecy, went behind tightly-guarded doors today to tackle some gut issues of federal-provincial relations.

"It's secret because it's a working session," said the prime minister, as he walked across the street from his East Block office to the old Union Station building where the constitutional meeting is being held.

"Without television perhaps some people will want to take a less rhetorical or less theatrical stand," he said.

The premiers said little about the three-day conference, except that they were coming with open minds.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said this is the first federal-provincial meeting "that is established on the type of basis that could produce a new constitution.

He said it was a good thing it was behind closed doors since the premiers and officials would be working on gut issues.

The prime issue of the conference is the division of spending powers. Regional disparity is also expected to get an airing.

On the question of regional disparity, Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, said the federal government should have enough power to eliminate it. "If they say they haven't got enough (money), for Heaven's sake, let's give them more."

If constitutional changes are necessary to achieve this," he added, "let's do that."

Mr. Smallwood said that "you can't have a harmonious Canada with five forward provinces and five backward ones."

"The constitution isn't really the basic issue in Western Canada," said Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan.

"I hope this conference will be much more meaningful and that we'll get down to gut issues of finance."

Mr. Trudeau said it is more practical to have closed-door meetings when politicians and officials are taking part. "I don't think it is proper to have premiers arguing with officials in front of television networks.

Ottawa Fans Inflation —Stanfield

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield accused the government Tuesday of using inflation as a means of imposing higher taxes secretly without the approval of Parliament.

He said Finance Minister Edgar Benson was promoting inflation by raising the real level of taxation and was "relying on inflation to balance his budget."

Urging the government to admit that such traditional methods as higher taxes had failed to stop rising prices, the Conservative leader renewed his campaign for a system of voluntary wage and price guidelines as an interim measure to prove that the government means business when it talks about stopping inflation.

TWO YEARS

Stanfield said after his speech in the Commons budget debate that he had in mind a period of about two years for temporary wage-price guidelines.

He said guidelines could create their own problems if they were in force too long and he would not favor having so crude an economic tool used indefinitely.

Stanfield said in the Commons that in spite of his denials Finance Minister Benson did increase taxes in his budget brought in June 3.

In addition to the government's failure to keep its promise to drop the three per cent surtax on personal and corporate income tax at the end of this year, and to higher charges for various government services to the public, there was the increased tax load imposed by inflation, he said.

INCOME TAXES

"Inflation increases income taxes without the authorization of Parliament," the Conservative leader charged.

"It lowers exemptions on the real values of incomes of people very substantially. It inflates incomes and therefore increases the actual rate of taxation of Canadians who pay additional hundreds of millions of dollars every year."

He said a married man with two children and an income of $5,000, who received a pay increase of 4.7 per cent to match the increase in the cost of living from May, 1968, to May, 1969, would have to pay about $50 more in taxes on the same real buying power.

"The real income is no higher," he said, "but they pay a substantially higher tax which this government imposes secretly without any parliamentary authorization."

New Levels Start Monday

The Toronto-Dominion Bank today raised its prime lending rate for the second time in a week to 8¼ per cent from 7¾, effective Monday.

This puts the Toronto-Dominion's rate ¼ per cent above those of the other major Canadian chartered banks, which earlier in the day announced increases to eight per cent from 7½ per cent, also effective June 16.

Victoria bank spokesmen today said the new rates Monday will likely mean a secured loan will cost 9 per cent or better.

Mortgage rates in Victoria will likely average 10 per cent, one banker said.

The Toronto-Dominion also raised its interest rate on non-chequing savings accounts to 6¼ per cent from 5½, effective July 1. The 3½-per-cent interest rate on chequing accounts remains unchanged, as does the consumer loan interest rate of 11.8 per cent.

In a statement A. T. Lambert, chairman and president, said the bank regretted the second upward move in lendings rates was necessary. The Toronto-Dominion raised its prime rate to 7¾ per cent from 7½ Monday.

"But in the light of present loan demand and the risk of some spill-back of borrowing from abroad it was unavoidable," he said.

The other Canadian chartered banks which announced increases in prime lending rates today were the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, the Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank, Bank of Nova Scotia, Banque Canadienne Nationale, and the Bank of British Columbia.

Savings Interest Also Rises

Of these, three also announced increases in savings interest rates to depositors.

The Banks of Montreal, British Columbia, and Imperial-Commerce increased interest payable on non-chequing savings accounts to six per cent from 5½. At the Bank of Montreal the increase is retroactive to June 1.

The Bank of Montreal also raised its interest rate on chequing accounts to 3½ per cent from three, while the Bank of Nova Scotia increased the interest payable on term deposits of two years or less to seven per cent from 6¾, and The Toronto-Dominion raised its interest on deposit receipts of up to one year to the same amount.

The rate increases were sparked by the announcement by the Bank of Canada Tuesday that it was increasing its lending rate to the chartered banks to 7½ per cent from seven.

A number of United States banks last week raised their lending rates to 8½ per cent from 7½. The general feeling among financial men in Canada was that an increase in Canada was inevitable to prevent even greater demands on Canadian capital by foreign borrowers, attracted by the lower rates.

The moves could mean another

Market Dives

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market plunged sharply today and moved into its eighth successive downward session following the increase in interest rates.

Exchange losses were widespread. The Toronto index closed at 185.35, down 4.02 points. (See Page 8.)

In New York, the market closed with a substantial loss following Tuesday's statement by Treasury Secretary David Kennedy that wage and price controls might have to be imposed if Congress doesn't extend the 10 per cent surtax.

Funds Shifted, Crux Hearing Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — An ex parte hearing was told Tuesday that almost $1,000,000 was transferred to overseas banks at about the same time Commonwealth founder A. G. Duncan Crux, now on bail in Nassau, directed the purchase of $715,000 worth of securities.

Donald Taylor, an accountant with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, testified that the money was drawn from the account of Commonwealth Investors Syndicate last October.

He told the hearing, the first step in proceedings to have Crux extradited from the Bahamas for trial, that $310,000 was transferred to Barclay's Bank DCO Nassau and $590,000 (U.S.) to Crux's account at the First National Bank in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

FRAUD CHARGES

Magistrate Harvey Sedgewick was hearing testimony on theft and fraud charges against Crux and Margaret Harling, his Vancouver-based law partner, involving securities valued at more than $700,000.

The transcript of the hearing will be sent to Nassau for a ruling on whether or not Crux is to be returned to Vancouver to stand trial.

The first day's evidence related to charges that Crux and Mrs. Harling defrauded Fredder Enterprises Ltd., Maemer Enterprises Ltd. and Eastpoint Holdings Ltd. of securities worth about $715,000.

A warrant is still out for the arrest of Cornelius Polvliet, also named in several of the total of 24 charges laid in the case.

A. D. Peter Stanley, a Vancouver lawyer who became receiver-manager of several of the Commonwealth group firms last November, said in testimony that he thought the transaction was "curious."

SECURITIES

He said it appeared the securities were already owned by Commonwealth Trust Co. and there was not enough money in the Commonwealth group at that time to purchase the securities.

Mr. Stanley said he then took over the securities and they were transferred from the Commonwealth Trust Co.'s deposit box at the Canadian Imperial Bank and taken to his home.

He added that after August, 1968, Crux continued as president and director of the Commonwealth group of companies until September. He said there was "considerable disagreement" after that as to whether Crux was still director of the company although Mr. Stanley did not consider him one.

The hearing continues.

TEL AVIV (Reuters)—Two Israeli soldiers were killed and seven were wounded by Egyptian fire across the Suez Canal, an army spokesman reported today.

Medical Tests on Retardates Spark Concern of Reform Man

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Medical Association was told Tuesday that medical research on convicts and mentally retarded children should be stopped.

H. Allan Leal, chairman of the Ontario Law Reform Commission, said he is "terribly concerned" about research involving the retarded in institutions.

About convicts, he said "coercion possibilities" are too great on any group not completely free.

"A fellow behind bars may give consent not because of desire to aid medical research, but because he hopes to get extra cigarettes or a year of time cut off his sentence."

Mr. Leal made his statement after a doctors' panel decided that no person should be "persuaded or coerced into donating a kidney to a relative."

He implied that "coercion"—even indirectly—should be prohibited in all medical experimentation. Families of donors or live donors "must be free to choose whether to give an organ without the spectre of adverse publicity."

Public criticism in newspapers of relatives who refused to donate organs has occurred in the United States, he said. It has not yet happened in Canada, but it is possible.

Dr. Christiaan Barnard of Cape Town, South Africa, the man who performed the world's first human heart transplant, and Dr. Pierre Grondin, who performed Canada's first in Montreal, were also on the panel.

Dr. Barnard, criticized by his colleagues for disclosing identities of his first heart transplant patients and donors, said the hospital had not identified either the patients or the doctors.

But six hours after surgery, he received a call from a London newspaper that told him the names of all the people.

He said he would like it to be "illegal" for the names to be published, "but how do you prevent it?"

Dr. Grondin said the Montreal Heart Institute had also withheld names initially, but radio stations and newspapers were getting information from hospital employees and from patients' families.

He said he was told one publication had offered $1,000 reward to the person providing information of the first Canadian heart transplant.

"We've found the best way is to collaborate with the press and provide them with accurate information," he said.

With th' price o' money zoomin' like it is y' kin hardly afford t' buy any.

Orville Braaten Dies Suddenly

CRANBROOK (CP) — Orville Braaten, 51, president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, collapsed and died today, apparently of a heart attack.

He is survived by his wife Gladys and four children, in North Vancouver.

PRESIDENT of Winnipeg Free Press and FP Publications John Sifton of Winnipeg died Tuesday in Los Angeles of throat cancer. Funeral for the 43-year-old newspaper executive will be held in Winnipeg. See story Page 31.

U.S. Rules Out Controls On Pay, Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House ruled out today possible imposition of wage and price controls if Congress fails to extend the 10-per-cent income tax surcharge.

One day after Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy said such controls were among alternatives that might be necessary to curb "runaway inflation" in absence of continuation of the surtax, President Nixon was pictured by his press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, as giving no consideration to such a move.

Ziegler told reporters emphatically that the administration does not plan to impose wage and price controls even if the Congress rejects Nixon's request to continue the surtax at the 10-per-cent rate for all of 1969, phasing it out with a 5-per-cent rate for the first half of 1970.

SOME PROBLEMS

Ziegler said that Kennedy "was referring to some of the problems we will face if the surtax is not passed" in remarks at a news conference Tuesday.

Kennedy mentioned controls, along with additional budget cuts and tighter restrictions on money supplies, among alternatives he said the administration would have to consider if the surtax were allowed to expire as scheduled on June 30.

While ruling out wage and price controls, the White House insisted the surtax extension was "vital not only to provide a strong budget but to assist in stopping the inflationary spiral in existence for the last four years."

KENNEDY
. . . sees possibility

Ziegler made his remarks when asked for the White House position in response to "reports on Capitol Hill that the surtax is in trouble."

WIN APPROVAL

The Nixon proposal is expected to win approval in the House ways and means committee — possibly this week — but faces trouble on the House floor.

It also has some strong opposition in the Senate. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D—Minn.) called the Nixon plan a gimmick. McCarthy said Nixon "is in trouble" on his proposal.

The White House shot down speculation about wage and price controls as initial reaction in Congress was strongly against the Kennedy suggestion that they might be considered.

Safeguard ABM Need Underlined In Defence Paper

By RICHARD HOMAN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The defence department released a comprehensive "white paper" on the need for the safeguard anti-ballistic missile system Tuesday, making public a wide range of previously classified intelligence findings to support its case.

The 40-page statement, censored in its most sensitive areas after presentation to the House Appropriations Committee in a top secret briefing May 22, is "the most complete we have made to date on the safeguard program," Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird said.

For the first time, the Pentagon disclosed that:

● Russia is testing an advanced ABM weapon of its own that can "loiter" in the atmosphere while awaiting an incoming missile to destroy.

CHINA BEHIND

● Recent Russian tests in the Pacific indicate that the Soviets have the "technical and economic capability to develop and install" multiple, independently-targeted warheads in their intercontinental missiles.

● The cost for full deployment of the safeguard system will be nearly 11 billion dollars, including nuclear warheads and testing.

● New assessments of China's missile capabilities indicate that it has fallen behind U.S. estimates of two years ago and will not have operational intercontinental ballistic missiles until the mid-1970's.

● Russia's capacity for producing nuclear power ballistic missile submarines has grown to eight or more a year.

ALL-OUT EFFORT

● Difficulties have arisen in U.S. efforts to place minuteman missiles in protective hard rock silos and, because of unsatisfactory tests of rock covering, the search for satisfactory sites is "generally in the early phase."

Pentagon sources said the unusual candor and release of the sensitive information could be considered an all-out effort by the Nixon administration to win support for the safeguard program.

"I assume this record will be published fairly soon," Laird told the House committee when he presented the testimony May 22, "and if it is, I will take the classification off those particular items."

Referral Selling Ends July 1

The practice of "referral selling" will be outlawed in British Columbia after July 1.

This is the date when amendments to the Consumer Protection Act Regulations, passed in the last session of the legislature become effective, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson announced today.

Referral selling is the name given to sales procedures where a portion of monthly time payments is supposedly reduced when the buyer gives the seller names of potential customers.

"This technique is largely illusory and the buyer subsequently finds he has been induced into entering the contract believing that he will not have to make any monthly payments," says a departmental statement.

The buyer finds often that few of the names he provides result in sales, therefore he is left with large payments he often cannot afford.

Many Victorians recently claimed they were victimized by a Burnaby firm which operated here then closed its local operation.

Other amendments becoming effective July 1 require that every sales contract contain the name and address of both buyer and seller; a sufficient description of the goods, their price and detailed terms of payment.

Where credit is extended a statemtne of security, particulars of any negotiable instrument used as security must be cited. The seller must also show the buyer a statement of creidit charges both in dollars and cents and as an annual percentage.

Warranties and guarantees must be firmly outlined in writing for the buyer.

East-West Relations Interest of Canada

HELSINKI (CP-AP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp says that, because of her position between the two superpowers, Canada is anxious to work for an improvement in East-West relations.

For that reason, Sharp said on arrival in Finland Tuesday night, he hopes to hear as much as possible about a Finnish proposal for a preliminary conference on European security.

Finland has proposed that a preliminary conference be held here to discuss what would be negotiable at a European security conference such as proposed by Russia.

Sharp said the positions of Finland and Canada on the question of a security conference are similar. There was need for careful preparation.

NEW RULES HELP SLASH ROAD DEATHS

A 29 per cent reduction in deaths due to motor-vehicle accidents was reported today by Attorney-General L. R. Peterson.

In 1969 to date there have been 146 road deaths compared to 219 during the same period of 1968—a decline of 73.

The minister said that during May "the number of deaths was reduced from 56 in the same month of 1968 to 35," a decrease of 37.5 per cent.

Peterson credited new driver licence control programs—the new demerit system—as a potential reason for the improved situation. He said the 24-hour suspension plan and new minimum one-month suspension for convicted impaired or drunken drivers might also be a factor.

Thoughtful Students Blow It

TORONTO (CP) — A group of well-meaning Rochdale College students tried to foil a robbery Tuesday night, but blew it.

The holdup occurred on the 14th floor of the college. Victims Leonard Iaconis, 23, and John Withers, 27, made so much noise chasing the robbers down the stairs the group of students went to balconies to investigate.

Dawn on the street the victims grappled with one of the men they caught. But the students on the balconies didn't know who was who and decided to side with the underdog.

They pelted Iaconis and Withers with bottles. Their aim was excellent and the robber got away with $280.

Heat Collapse Victim Assisted By Police, Fire

Police and fire units Tuesday afternoon went to the assistance of an elderly man who collapsed from the heat on Dallas beach near Douglas.

Albert C. Cole, 84, of 714 Discovery, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital but officials reported he suffered no injury.

About 4 p.m. police were called to the beach and found the man could not stand and had to be carried by stretcher over the rocks to a point below Mile 0.

The fire department attended and with a rope raised the stretcher to the roadway.

Police said two citizens, Alon Arie and Robert Williams, of 430 Dallas, assisted them in the rescue.

. . . BANK RATES

er upward twist in the price spiral.

A rise in the cost of borrowing money for business, even when not copied immediately for consumer loans, tends to filter through the economy, pushing up prices as it goes.

Ideally, higher interest charges would discourage credit and spending generally reduce the upward pressure of demand for goods and services and cause the price spiral to level out. They could also result in loss of jobs.

Todays's bank-rate increase is the third in six months.

The Bank of Canada's brief announcement Tuesday night said its move reflected interest rate increases abroad and the continued strong demand for credit in Canada.

In addition, it was made "to permit the bank to maintain its anti-inflationary monetary policy."

The central bank's rate governs its charges to commercial banks when they find themselves short of ready cash and have to borrow briefly from the Bank of Canada. The central rate is also applied on short-term loans to major investment companies when they are turned away by the chartered banks.

The commercial banks and investment dealers turn to the central bank for funds in emergencies with reluctance, because bank rate normally is more costly than commercial rates for day-to-day or short-term call loans.

Lately, however, commercial rates on loans to investment dealers have been at or above the Bank of Canada rate. The central bank's manipulations of money supply to restrain credit have been inhibited. Today's increase helps restore the balance.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson had said earlier Tuesday an increase in lending rates of Canadian commercial banks was inevitable following the one-per-cent jump Monday to 8½ per cent in the prime rate charged by big New York banks to their best industrial customers.

The prime rate of Canadian banks are normally higher or at least equal to U.S. rates.

The chartered banks were believed to be reluctant to raise their prime rates without a new signal from the Bank of Canada, which had maintained its seven-per-cent rate since March 3.

The cost of government and corporate borrowing through bonds had gone up in reaction to the U.S. interest-rate increase.

One direct effect of the higher rates on bonds would be higher interest charges on new mortgages.

Unless parliamentary action on new housing legislation were completed meantime, mortgage rates would go up automatically July 1 under a formula which relates interest on new mortgages under the National Housing Act to prevailing bond yields.

Early signs are that the NHA rate would rise to at least 9¾ per cent from the present record 9⅜. New conventional mortgages issued by banks and mortgage companies thus would probably hit about 10 per cent.

Despite government and economists' warnings of restraint in the past year, the volume of loan applications received by Victoria banks has remained strong, but in the past three to six months there has been a falling off in acceptances.

Also, the supply of money has tightened, further curbing the quantity of loans outstanding.

The banks were not expecting any surge of new applications as a result of the forthcoming rate hike, but as one banker said: "It's so volatile right now we don't know what to expect."

At one bank there has been no decline in the number of loans made in some categories, including real estate, stock market and sound speculations, and the bank has entered a "fairly liquid situation."

U.S. Inflation Brake 'Danger'

LONDON (CP) — Canada's economy is well-balanced but her inflation rate is as high as in the United States, and the Canadian economy might face certain dangers should the U.S. economy suddenly slam inflation brakes, Professor Edward Neufeld of the University of Toronto said today.

While Canadian inflation is high, it is being contained within U.S. levels by a higher Canadian unemployment rate, Neufeld said at a special Anglo-Canadian business conference called Canada Now. Should the U.S. slap on the brakes, the Canadian unemployment margin might disappear and "the Canadian position would immediately become more precarious."

Neufeld was among a number of speakers analysing the Canadian economy in terms of Anglo-Canadian trade. Most speakers agreed that while Britain's exports to Canada have increased in recent years, the British share of the Canadian market has gradually deteriorated.

Neufeld said Canadian authorities are trying to contain inflation "but even now I cannot see much hope for prices in 1969 rising by less than 3.5 per cent and in 1970 by less than three per cent."

But he also believes that a growth in the gross national product—value of national wealth—but eight or 8.5 per cent "appears quite possible for 1969."

R. M. MacIntosh, deputy chief general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, suggested Canada will have to conduct "a tough bargaining game" with the U.S. over oil and gas exports.

Western Canada is concerned that the discovery of large quantities of cheap oil in Alaska might mean that Canadian oil discoveries might be restricted from the U.S. market for many years. But the U.S. is eager to obtain large quantities of Canadian gas.

"It seems evident that Canada will have to conduct a tough bargaining game with the U.S. for years to come in this complicated and highly politically-charged field," he said.

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — The Students for a Democratic Society cannot hold its national convention at Colorado State University because of its record of disruption and violence, Dr. A. R. Chamberlain, CSU's president-elect, said here.

A number of demonstrations involving SDS students broke out on the university's campus here last year and several members of the militant student group took over a campus building for a few hours in one of the protests before police routed them.

Several Midwestern universities, including the University of Illinois and the University of Wisconsin, also turned down bids by the SDS for the national

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Sunspot cycles are said to reach a crest about once in every 11 years. They affect people as well as the weather. For instance, they may produce stormy reactions in us, enough to sometimes cause us to rear up and make trouble.

A crest in the sunspot cycle occurred in the year 1779, just when the American Revolution had built up to its crest of warfare against the British. The Russian Revolution came in 1917 at a crest in the sunspot cycle, and one of the most turbulent crests was noted in 1904 a short time before the Russo-Japanese War started. The First World War and the Second World War each started at the peak of sunspot turbulence.

The point of all this is that 1969 is exactly 11 years from the last big sunspot disturbance. Could all the unrest throughout the world—student uprisings, war in Nigeria, trouble in the Middle East and all through Asia have been influenced by the sunspots? According to records kept since the year 1388, it could be.

Cong Secret Gov't Significant Twist

THO

PHAT
. . . architect

By DAVID LAULICHT

PARIS (Reuters) — The tangled complexities of war and peace in Vietnam took on a new —and perhaps significant—twist today after the surprise announcement by the Viet Cong that a secret revolutionary government has been established in South Vietnam.

The Paris press office of the National Liberation Front disclosed Tuesday that a secret congress of opposition movements had created the provisional government, presumably in a move toward ousting the Saigon administration which the Communists describe as a puppet regime.

Observers said the Viet Cong announcement may move the struggle over the political future of South Vietnam to a new and more acute stage and recapture the diplomatic initiative for the NLF.

In first reactions to the Viet Cong announcement, sources in the U.S. and Saigon delegations to the peace talks played down the significance of the secret government.

But many observers close to the talks said it seemed likely the NLF ultimately would seek to have the secret government recognized as a competent authority to conduct elections to determine the political future of South Vietnam.

THINK PACKAGE BETTER?

The creation of the provisional government may be the Viet Cong's attempt to skirt Saigon's flat refusal to envisage a coalition in Saigon, the observers said. With little hope of achieving a coalition in co-operation with the allies, the Viet Cong may have decided it is better to be able to present a package administration instead.

The Saigon government predictably dismissed its new rival for authority as "obviously completely unacceptable." A foreign ministry spokesman in Saigon reiterated that "we will never accept a coalition or any other sort of government arbitrarily imposed by the Communists."

The man who composed the South Vietnamese government's national anthem has been named information minister in the newly-formed government, the secret NLF radio announced today.

In a Vietnamese-language broadcast monitored in Saigon, the Liberation radio announced the full list of 12 ministers appointed after the front's convention held somewhere in South Vietnam June 6-8.

As expected, NLF chairman architect Huynh Tan Phat is prime minister, Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, delegate to the Paris peace talks, is foreign minister and composer Luu Huu Phuoc, whose national anthem is saluted by President Nguyen Van Thieu, becomes information minister, the radio said.

All the members of the cabinet listed today are long-time Communist party members of the NLF.

In a later broadcast, Liberation radio said a 13-member committee was set up to act as an advisory body to the new government.

This would be headed by NLF chairman Nguyen Huu Tho.

Door to Peace Open—Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials are watching for a Hanoi response, either through diplomatic channels or on the battlefield, to President Nixon's bid for a North Vietnamese pullback to match the American troop withdrawal from South Vietnam.

So far Hanoi's answer appears to be negative—both in propaganda blasts at Nixon's 25,000-man withdrawal announcement and in a flareup in combat offensives after a brief lull.

But U.S. sources suggested it would take time for Hanoi leaders to make a full evaluation of Sunday's Midway Island meeting between Nixon and South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu, at which the U.S. withdrawal was announced.

It also would probably take weeks for U.S. intelligence to confirm an unannounced North Vietnamese troop withdrawal if such were to take place, informants said. North Vietnamese troop strength in the South has been estimated at about 100,000 in recent months. The U.S. has 538,000 men in Vietnam.

Nixon made his appeal Tuesday in a report to the country on the Midway summit as he returned to the White House.

"We have opened wide the door to peace," with the troop withdrawal announcement and his earlier eight-point peace offer, Nixon said in his brief televised remarks.

"And now we invite the leaders of North Vietnam to walk with us through that door either by withdrawing forces, their forces, from South Vietnam as we have withdrawn ours, or by negotiating in Paris, or through both avenues," he said.

"We believe this is the time for them to act. We have acted and acted in good faith.

"And if they fail to act in one direction or the other, they must bear the responsibility for blocking the way to peace and not walking through that door which we have opened."

The next Paris negotiating session is due Thursday. A state department spokesman indicated that in the peace talks so far, the North Vietnamese have not signalled they would match U.S. withdrawals. He said Washington wants agreement for simultaneous pullbacks.

Nixon said the Midway meeting "brought home the message that the troops of South Vietnam have now been trained and equipped to the point where they can take over a substantial portion of the combat activity presently being borne by Americans."

Cambodia Resumes U.S. Relations

PHNOM PENH (AFP) — Head of State Prince Norodom Sihanouk announced today that Cambodia has decided to resume diplomatic relations with the United States at the charge d'affaires level.

He also said his government —which recognized East Germany several weeks ago—had decided to break off relations with West Germany.

Earlier this month, as a result of the furore created in West Germany by Cambodia's recognition, the Bonn government had decided to "freeze" its diplomatic relations with Cambodia.

Diplomatic relations with the U.S. were broken off by Cambodia on May 5, 1965, following border incidents in which, the Cambodians charged, U.S. and South Vietnamese planes bombed two Cambodian villages.

In a separate announcement the Cambodian government asked the U.S. to provide compensation for damage to rubber plantations due to defoliation operations by U.S. planes in Cambodia.

The damage is estimated by the Phnom Penh government at $8,684,000. The government called for an immediate halt to this defoliation.

On May 29, Cambodia sent a note to the UN Food and Agricultural Organization alleging that U.S. chemical spraying had affected 15,000 hectares (35,000 acres) of rubber trees. On June 4, the U.S. state department said some experts would visit Cambodia to examine rubber plantations for possible damage.

The Australian embassy in Phnom Penh, which handled U.S. affairs after the diplomatic break, made the arrangements for the visit of the U.S. experts.

Judges Told To Refuse Outside Pay

By JOHN P. MACKENZIE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Federal judges—but not supreme court justices—were ordered Tuesday to cut out all outside activities for pay and to get ready to file annual income and financial statements with the U.S. judicial conference.

The conference, 25-member policy arm of the federal judiciary, moved in the wake of recent supreme court scandals to issue the most sweeping resolution for self-reform in its history.

Effective immediately but enforceable at present only by the power or moral persuasion the four-point conference resolution is sweeping enough to condemn in principle the outside compensation that led to the resignation of justice Abe Fortas and the decision by Justice William O. Douglas to quite a $12,000-a-year post on the Albert Parvin Foundation.

It also would prevent federal judge Warren E. Burger, confirmed on Monday to succeed the retiring Earl Warren as chief justice of the United States, from accepting $2,000 a year as a trustee of the Mayo Foundation.

Judge Burger has said he may drop the trusteeships anyway in a general re-evaluation of his "whole mode of life."

EFFICIENCY

The conference, created by congress in 1939 to improve the judiciary's efficiency, does not have any jurisdiction over the conduct of supreme court justices—a fact that one eight-year veteran of the federal bench told newsmen he realized only recently—but its pronouncements were expected to establish an example for the justices if not a pattern for their own set of rules.

Warren, whose final months as chief justice were soured by the public criticism of judicial moonlighting, moved swiftly after Fortas's resignation last month to set the conference's committee on court administration on a crash program of drafting Tuesday's resolution.

MP Defends Tobacco Men

OTTAWA (CP) — Tobacco farmer Bill Knowles (PC—Norfolk-Haldimand) urged Health Minister John Munro Tuesday to get off the backs of tobacco growers "and to concentrate on the more obvious health hazards" affecting Canadians.

Speaking in the Commons during the budget debate, Mr. Knowles said the tobacco crop is the only bright spot in "the whole sad picture of agriculture."

The Ontario Conservative said the health department's job ended when it pointed out to Canadians "that there might be hazards in the smoking of cigarettes and tobacco."

"They have done this amply," he declared. "We feel it is unnecessary for them to pursue with such evangelical fervor this vicious attack against our tobacco industry."

In the second day of the four-day debate on Revenue Minister E. J. Benson's June 3 budget, the government had little trouble rejecting an NDP motion of non-confidence.

DEFEATED 112 TO 67

The vote was 112 to 67. Only Liberals voted against the motion. For it were 46 Conservatives, 12 NDP and nine Creditistes.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 154, Conservative 72, NDP 22, Creditiste 14, Independent 1, vacant 1.

The NDP motion had criticized the government for not exempting from income tax single persons earning $2,000 a year or less and married persons with incomes to $4,000 or less.

Later in the debate the Commons will vote on a Conservative non-confidence motion which scores the government "for its inability" to curb inflation "while increasing the hardship on the unemployed, the poor, pensioners, farmers, and other victims of the Just Society."

In a spirited defence of the tobacco industry, Mr. Knowles said no case had been made that smoking was harmful to the health.

He said the federal government collected more than $555,000,000 in excise taxes on tobacco in 1968. Provincial governments took another $85,000,000 in tobacco taxes.

Tobacco also accounted for $57,000,000 in export trade in 1968 and one of Canada's greatest needs was to keep up its balance of trade.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said the government's decision, announced in Mr. Benson's budget, to implement the three remaining tariff reductions of the Kennedy Round was both "stupid and unnecessary."

It would be both painful and risky for industry to meet the increased competition without time to adjust.

"The sudden arbitrary action of the minister of finance in announcing this kind of change without notice can only be unsettling, destructive and have the effect of weakening the confidence which the Canadian businessman needs," said Mr. Stanfield.

Mr. Stanfield agreed the tariff cuts probably will help fight price increases and bring some prices down. But their effect on Canadian industry was difficult to measure.

DEFENCE CHIEF SUPPORTS TRIMMING

OTTAWA (CP) — Gen. Jean V. Allard, chief of defence staff, denied Tuesday having said that plans to cut Canada's armed forces are ill-timed and unwise.

In an interview with The Canadian Press, Gen. Allard described a Toronto newspaper report quoting him to that effect as "absolute nonsense."

"I am not talking against what I recommended to the government," he declared. "I don't know what he the reporter is referring to."

Lean, lively, loaded and a whole lot of fun

The Datsun 1000 is a slim, trim swinger that knows how to treat you in style. It pampers you with reclining bucket seats, carpets, tinted glass and white walls . . . all the things that would add up to a small fortune on other import and domestic cars. A few more? Back-up lights, twin horns, rubber bumper overriders and locking fuel tank. It even lights your cigarette. And costs less than $2000.

For muscle, it has a spunky 62 hp overhead valve engine that moves it faster than the law allows and squeezes up to 40 miles from a gallon of gas. Quick acceleration? You've got it, through the smoothest synchromesh 4-on-the-floor in the business.

What's the Datsun 1000 like to drive? From where you sit, you can see forever. In five minutes you'll feel right at home. Your Datsun 1000 turns on a dime. It stops straight and sure. And you can park two Datsun 1000s in the space a big car would take. There's a 2-door and a 4-door. Which is for you? The 4-door costs $100 more, if that will help.

Here's another thing to remember. When you buy a Datsun you can count on more than 160 Datsun dealers coast-to-coast in Canada or over 800 in North America. The service and parts availability is excellent. There's more than $1,000,000 in parts here to back you. Now all that's left is to test drive a Datsun 1000 and find out for yourself what fun-driving is all about!

Man and Message

PRIME MINISTER TRUDEAU told an Ottawa audience of the International Press Institute Monday that he agrees with the criticism that "my greatest failure has been the lack of communication." It was an odd remark coming from the man who swept Canada with a form of personal communication that had not glowed so strongly in this country for many a year.

When even a glimpse of Pierre in a shopping centre parking lot, or on a stage a hundred yards away across a sea of heads was enough to set staid Canadians shouting and cheering—when it took little more than a memory of the man to inspire Canadians with ambitions for an era of new approaches to problems, new goals and methods of reaching them — under such circumstances we were witnessing the purest essence of communication: the direct personal and emotional rapport of a man with his fellowmen.

But such a rapport could not automatically continue, as Mr. Trudeau himself warned. Inevitably, in the day-to-day grind of Parliament the realities of Canadian politics made themselves evident. It was an easy form of communication for Pierre Trudeau — although impossible for most men—to reach across the gulf and implant the general concept of a united Canada, an environment for the individual, a just society. But it proved more difficult to transmit much simpler ideas — bilingualism, a NATO policy, Criminal Code amendments.

These down-to-earth thoughts Mr. Trudeau found it hard to convey to the people, particularly those who did not want to hear. And the off-the-cuff remarks, the apparently idle musings aloud, the rhetorical questions taken seriously as direct reflections of the Prime Minister's policies — these proved almost impossible for people accustomed to the orthodox political pronouncements of Canadian officialdom to understand.

Thus it was that a statutory clarification of the rights of an individual as opposed to those of the state in regard to homosexuality developed into a heated discussion of morals; a move formally to grant language rights to people who had almost all enjoyed them previously became, in the absence of universal clarification, an attempt "to make everybody speak French." A proposal to make Canada's overseas military commitments conform with our domestic military pattern became for some—when its propounder apparently took the idea as self-evident and not needful of detailed explanation—a stab in the back to our allies and a desertion in time of crisis.

Mr. Trudeau, by his own admission and by the results created, has failed in the detailed, pin-point communication that modern politics demands. But having recognized that, he can soon rectify the matter, even though it may frustrate him to spell out his ideas letter by letter. Politician Trudeau has learned a lesson which Lawyer Trudeau and Professor Trudeau must have overlooked. It is that you can carry a crowd with you by capturing its heart—but to carry an individual with you along new avenues of policy you must capture his mind.

Looking Ahead

WELFARE IS A SUBJECT that is much kicked around these days. Some of its long-held concepts are being questioned as the realization grows that the modern welfare system is not all that it could be. Welfare Cheques tend to perpetuate themselves along with the condition in society that they should be helping to correct.

Some authorities are looking to the guaranteed annual minimum income or reverse income tax as the future solution to present problems. Others are more concerned with modifications and improvements of the present system. In any case there is considerable ferment today and many social welfare professionals and government officials are studying possible developments.

With this background it was disappointing last week when the national Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, with a vital stake in the matter of welfare, chose to look back instead of ahead. In passing a resolution to the effect that municipalities be empowered to force unemployed able-bodied men to work for their welfare cheques, the mayors were resorting to a depression-era concept that is not practicable today.

There are a number of other approaches they could have considered. One is the proposal under active study in Ontario to allow welfare recipients to keep their earnings from part-time jobs, at least over a certain period of time. At present they must deduct whatever they earn at odd jobs from their welfare cheque. It has been pointed out that this discourages recipients from seeking work and gradually winning back their self-reliance.

More consideration should also be given to providing a training or re-training program for welfare recipients to help them find work. What the municipal federation's resolution and similar thinking overlooks is that very few able-bodied men take welfare by choice. They would rather work, but for a variety of reasons find it difficult to adjust to an increasingly complex industrial and economic system. Forcing them to undertake make-work municipal projects to "earn their keep" is a short-sighted policy that is of little benefit to either the welfare family or the community. The main effort should be expended in retraining the man or finding him productive labor.

While the Level Rises

IT WOULD be a poor demonstration of Premier Bennett's "good life" for British Columbia if part of it were to be based on injustice to land owners in the area of the Keenleyside Dam, formerly known as the High Arrow Dam.

More than one resident of the land to be flooded by the rising water behind the new unit in the B.C. Hydro power complex has protested the compensation which the government has set for homes or land to be inundated. The local concern was given pointed expression by one resident who interrupted the official dedication ceremonies Monday. He was assured of a study of his case by Dr. Shrum, chairman of B.C. Hydro.

It was such possibilities of injustice that Mr. John Turner had in mind in presenting legislation to Parliament which would provide greater safeguards for persons whose property is confiscated for public works. Under the new federal bill there will be longer notification, better opportunities for appeal, and greater consideration for the costs, apart from the direct replacement of his house, which a dispossessed owner must bear.

The provincial government would do well to follow the example of this more liberal attitude of government toward the individual citizen. For too many decades the rights of the individual have been curbed in his dealings with the state, when the state wanted his property largely on its own terms.

The "good life" in this province will be a hollow phrase indeed if any property owner must suffer even borderline hardship as his unwilling contribution to the common good.

FIRST PRIORITY

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Something-for-Nothing Thing

THE Canadian government, the Opposition, the economists, the professors and even the harried housewives are always talking, these days, about "priorities" — a magic word, a glittering talisman, a painless remedy for all our ills; also a convenient escape mechanism, a flight from facts. If we could only fix our priorities in proper sequence, and stick to them, our troubles would soon be past. So we all agree. But, it is said, we cannot agree on the priorities, our 11 governments work at cross purposes and if we did agree we would never stick long to any definite plan of expenditure.

Hutchison

It has taken a foreigner, without our native myths, to observe that all this reasoning is false. As Gunnar Myrdal, the great Swedish economist and citizen of the world, remarked recently in Ottawa, we already have fixed our priorities, we are sticking to them and they are very simple.

Appetite for More

The truth, he says, is that the ordinary man in the Western world "wants more and better roads, hospitals and schools, increased personal consumption and lower taxes. In the end," he adds, "you've got to educate the people that they can't get something for nothing."

Something for nothing — that is the supreme priority. If you take an ordinary man aside for a moment he will tell you that such a proposition is absurd and insults his intelligence. In the mass society, however, it is the collective wisdom, the ruling fact of politics, the grand illusion that distorts all our better motives. And, of course, it guarantees ruinous inflation, at least until the day of final, and painful, reckoning.

Where Blame Should Be

Mr. Myrdal indicts the ordinary man for all the current folly and excuses his fellow economists. "Put the blame where it should be, on the people, not on economic theories," he says. In theory he may be quite right, assuming that most economists share his homely wisdom, which is by no means certain. But in politics a sound theory often gets twisted completely out of joint.

That is what has happened to the dominant theory of Maynard Keynes. The politicians have turned it into a rather repulsive farce, as Edgar Benson admitted in his recent budget.

Naturally, the admission is not made in so many words but you don't have to be economically bilingual, or even literate, to read its meaning. In plain English Mr. Benson means that for a dozen years, under three different governments, the nation's affairs have been grossly mismanaged and he, at last, is trying to rationalize them.

For a start, he has framed the surplus budget that should have been introduced years ago, though he is too honest to claim that his fiscal policies will cure inflation. It cannot be cured, he says, until the vast United States economy is deflated — an obvious truth which some of us have been noting for a long time but which the Canadian government has usually ignored because it pretended to be curing inflation on its own.

Mr. Benson, in short, is attempting to unscramble a stale omelet and in doing so must break some additional eggs, with inconvenient effects on various people. The resulting protests from business, labor unions and others is the best proof that the budget means something. And the wild screams of the opposition parties, that demanded action and now denounce the government for acting, show at once how politics differ from economics.

It is all very well for Mr. Myrdal to hold the economists blameless. He cannot so easily excuse the politicians who stand economic theory on its head. He is accurate, anyway, when he blames the public for demanding far more immediate wealth than the economy can produce, but who told the public that this was possible in the first place? Who launched the resolution of excessive expectations so lightly terrifying to Prime Minister Trudeau?

It was launched mainly by the politicians of the so-called Left and they are still promising the mathematically impossible. Thus the queer mental symbiosis between the politicians and the public has installed the something-for-nothing doctrine in the social organism like a disease, incurable without major surgery.

Secondary Considerations

Or, putting it another way, the first priority of Canada is not social reform, not the rescue of the poor, not the education of the young, not the cleansing of air and water, not the military defence of the nation or its obligation to its allies.

No, the first priority is the living standard, no matter how precarious it may be, based as it is on world conditions entirely outside Canadian control, and no matter how unequal it may be between rich and poor. In an age of lost faith and moral anarchy the living standard remains sacred as a new religion replacing the old. We all want something for nothing and some of us are getting it, but as Mr. Myrdal sees, this thing simply won't work for long. It is doomed by mathematics and double-damned by morals.

THE INFLATABLE DOLLAR

By C. L. SULZBERGER

No Big, Quick Viet Peace Savings in Sight

THE United States economy will benefit relatively little from an end of the Vietnam war unless, by the time of a peace settlement, the other war — against inflation — has been won. Roughly speaking the U.S.A. now spends from $30 to $35 billion annually on the conflict and the theoretical calculation is that half this vast sum can ultimately be saved once there is a settlement — whenever that is.

Sulzberger

But there is no illusion that such a massive saving could start immediately after a cease-fire. Indeed, the cost of transporting troops home and other wind-up expenses will be so heavy that the treasury reckons only $1 to $2 billion can be cut from the Vietnam budget slice during the first peaceful fiscal year.

The real saving, as compared with the statistical saving, can only be measured against the real value of the dollar. If the battle against inflation has not substantially succeeded when the Southeast Asian battle ends, the saving will be largely vitiated by enforced increases in other aspects of the defence budget; for inflation is most costly at the Pentagon.

Thus the present defence payroll, mirroring Vietnam, comes to $41 billion annually based on a service roster of 3.5 million — plus civilian employees and contract workers. The department calculates it can cut this annual charge to $33.3 billion when service personnel is pared to 2.6 million.

The Pentagon reckons on 2.6 million as the minimum forseeable in the U.S. armed forces at peace in this uneasy world. Simply to maintain these uniformed men and women, give them pay, food, clothing, small arms and retirement benefits — plus maintaining a civilian backup — would cost over $33 billion in terms of the present dollar.

Permanent Albatross

But if inflation is not controlled before a Vietnam settlement, the budget figure just for keeping up the human establishment would increase substantially. The $33 billion figure is a permanent albatross hanging around the Pentagon's neck; and it can only get heavier. It doesn't include a cent for heavy weapons, research and development or other imperative requirements.

Thus treasury policies are directly related to state and defence policies. And if the treasury battle fails to hold the dollar up and keep inflation down any substantial benefits to American society as a result of Vietnam peace just won't materialize.

The immense sums many people hope may be chanelled in to urban development, slum clearance, job opportunities, education and elimination of malnutrition will not be available unless the real value of the dollar is held until the long-range effects of a Vietnam settlement can be mirrored in the national economy.

For the obvious reason that the defence department absorbs the largest slice of the taxpayer's dollar it also is most directly affected by inflation. As the purchasing power of the dollar slips, the cost of military protection mounts. Failure in the war against inflation could ritiate the potential economic and social benefits of peace.

Monetary Policy

Thus, the treasury occupies a crucial position. To keep the dollar strong it is necessary to avoid any international currency crisis. This is not a matter of gold but of monetary policy. The treasury feels that if price escalations halt and the economy slows down, imports will fall, exports will rise and a trade surplus can be re-established.

Likewise, it is hoped income from overseas investments, above all in Europe, will start increasing appreciably, aiding the balance-of-payments picture. Success in these combined fields would enable the administration to use for social purposes an appreciable share of the funds and resources now spent in Vietnam.

But these will only become available in actual fact if the dollar retains its approximate current value when the Asian war ends. The economy must be in a condition to absorb returning veterans into civilian life.

On the capacity to employ a sudden spate of new civilians depends the amount of social tensions produced by shift from semi-war to semi-peace in this troubled world.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From the Times, June 11, 1909.

Albert Stone of HMS Algerine last night won the walking race from E. S. Woodward, a member of the Victoria West Athletic Club. The distance was six miles and a large crowd witnessed the race. Woodward found the pace too fast in the fifth mile and quit on the sixth mile. Stone finished in 48.02 not trying to make pace when Woodward left the race. The race was four laps to the mile and held at the naval base, Esquimalt.

"Two-Lane Death Traps"

Premier Bennett's toy fleet of pretty little blue and white ships may be a source of great pride to him but, as a frequent passenger, I wonder whether his pride is justified.

I dread the drive from Victoria on that two-lane death trap, Pat Bay Highway, and the often long wait at the terminal at Swartz Bay. I recall the frustrations I have endured when I found myself unable to drive on board, owing to the number of cars ahead of me, with no time remaining to park the car and go aboard on foot.

The annoyance of standing in line for restaurant service I have endured stoically, often to find myself perched on a counter stool, precarious even in smooth waters. As for the food, it is on a par with the average roadside drive-in.

The decor and furnishings are appalling and remind me of bus terminals I have seen across the country. The scenery is lovely but I don't believe that Mr. Bennett had much to do with that.

Disembarking, one is faced with another death-defying drive on another miserable two-lane highway. It usually takes me at least four hours to reach downtown Vancouver and I am rather tired upon arrival. The plane would be a little faster, but then, I usually need my car while in Vancouver.

After my business is concluded I must face the equally harrowing return trip, not a pleasant prospect except for the scenery.

I remember when one could drive on to the boat in the inner harbour in Victoria and drive off at the docks at the foot of Granville Street in Vancouver. I don't believe that it took much longer. The dining-room had crisp white tablecloths, the service and food were very good. I don't remember waiting very long for a table. I was relaxed and refreshed when I arrived — but that was a long time ago and we have made a great deal of progress since those days.—Allan W. Edwards, 626 Foul Bay.

Time to Hold the Line

Dr. Bagshawe's letter on strikes versus communism is so true it's frightening.

Unions were needed to help the working class but have now outlived their usefulness. Clear-minded people of the working force who think of the less fortunate would be happy with their lot but for the instigators who want chaos.

If labor bosses want to help the economy they would now hold the line and those on fixed incomes could also enjoy the good life.—Mrs. Marta King, 2225 Harbor Road, Sidney.

What Consumers Receive

Consumers Affairs Minister Ron Basford announces that he will see to it that any savings from tariff cuts are passed on to the consumer. Is it not time that somebody climbed up into his ivory tower and informed him that the only things that are ever passed on to the consumer are the increased costs of doing business?—F. Ware, 2659 Douglas St.

Gap in Understanding

Calgary Albertan

We are so used to hearing that scientists and other professional technicians don't know enough about the human environment in which their technology operates that it is salutary to be reminded that the reverse is also true. The reminder came from Dr. J. G. Parr, dean of applied sciences at the University of Windsor, who addressed the convention of the Association of Professional Engineers of Alberta in Banff the other day.

Dr. Parr is right, too. The public is dangerously ignorant about many crucial areas of science. Even when it learns of some discovery or achievement, it lacks the background with which to grasp the implications. The popular attitude toward science and scientists thus swings like a pendulum between adulation and apprehension.

"Undemocratic exploitation of science and industry will result unless the public becomes better informed and educated about it," said Dr. Parr. It is time, then, that we attacked the barrier between the "two solitudes."

Pentagon Pouring Funds Into Thailand

By STANLEY KARNOW

BANGKOK—The profusion of stylish American research outfits currently operating here under Pentagon auspices has lent a kind of Doctor Strangelove quality to the extensive U.S. military presence in this Southeast Asian kingdom.

There is a good deal of doubt, however, whether these outfits are producing anything worth the amounts of money they are spending—or, indeed, whether they are producing much of value at all.

It has even been suggested by knowledgeable sources that the effort to study and computerize almost every aspect of Thailand may be positively harmful in ways that are not immediately apparent.

About a dozen different research firms employing nearly 200 American specialists spend some $11 million a year in defence department subsidies on various projects here.

Among these firms are the Stanford Research Institute, which has no connection with Stanford University, the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratories, which has no connection with Cornell University, and "Associates in Research," or AIR, which evaluates the findings of the other groups.

Also present are Michigan State University, which used to function under the aegis of the Central Intelligence Agency in Vietnam, and Booz-Allen, a major U.S. management consultant company engaged here in what it calls "applied research."

These and other outfits operate under contract to a parent organization known as the "Advanced Research Projects Agency," or ARPA, which co-ordinates with the "Military Research Development Centre," whose initials form an acronym locally referred to as "Murdoch."

This elaborate structure burgeoned about four years ago when the State Department, unable to find funds to increase the U.S. embassy staff in Bangkok, accepted a defence department offer to set up a research apparatus here.

●

The growth of this apparatus since then has parallelled the American military build-up in Thailand. In the process, the availability of Pentagon money has led to the mania for research that is, as one senior U.S. diplomat here described it, simply a "big boondogle."

Some of the research outfits have undertaken such high-cost projects as the publication, for an estimated $100,000 of a study entitled "the blue book of coastal vessels"—which is merely a book filled with pictures of Thai fishing boats.

A more expensive enterprise was the publication of a four-volume series on Thailand's northeastern Nkah Phanom Province. Besides featuring routine agricultural information, this study contains such opaque sociological observations as: "In a village, the awareness of status tends to be more important than an identification determined purely by class."

Among other projects, an American specialist earning $36,000 a year has spent the past two years trying to develop local "research capabilities" at Chiengmai University in the pleasantly cool hills of northern Thailand. The project is said to be still in the "organizational stage."

A somewhat embarrassing situation arose not long ago when a former Oakland, Calif., policeman working for the Stanford Research Institute undertook a $280,000 project to test the use of infrared photography to detect Communist guerrillas in southern Thailand.

But instead of concentrating on his experiments, this researcher befriended Laotian Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, the one-time CIA protege living in exile in southern Thailand.

Soon the ex-cop was engaged in promoting Phoumi's plans to recapture Laos and despite official sanctions against him, he is reported to be still working as a free-lance adviser to the Laotian general.

●

In many respects, informed sources here submit, the cost to the American taxpayer of these activities is less significant than their effect on the Thais as well as the U.S. establishment here.

For one thing, members of these research outfits are unfamiliar with the intricacies of Thai culture and appear to believe that here, as back in the United States, large inputs of money and know-how are the key to progress. But just the reverse is often true.

An American education expert who has worked here for years points out, for example, that these outfits are disrupting Thai universities by handing them more money than they can absorb for programs they are unprepared to carry out.

As in Vietnam, moreover, the research groups here operate largely on the dubious thesis that "systems analysis" can measure local attitudes. As a result, they are creating the illusion that they really know how Thais feel because they have fed data into a computer.

●

Perhaps most important, the proliferation of these outfits functioning with defence department support has given the Pentagon a large role in gathering and analyzing intelligence and making policy decisions for Thailand.

One of the shortcomings of American policy here over the years has been its military rather than political orientation. And at this time, as the United States seeks diplomatic solutions for Southeast Asia, subduing the influence of the military establishment may be more imperative than ever.

Thais go Red-hunting

Cold wind from Halifax Harbor blows through Africville shacks

A WALK IN CANADA'S BLACK GHETTO

By ANTHONY WESTELL

You drive out through the suburbs of Halifax, Nova Scotia, past the plazas and restaurants and neat bungalows, and after a few miles you turn off the highway onto a gravel road.

Westell

The road dips down through green bush country, skirts clear lakes and climbs suddenly into a different and shocking world.

This is North Preston, where about 1,500 black Canadians live in torn tarpaper shacks and tumbledown wooden shanties clinging to the rocky, infertile ground. This is a black ghetto of poverty less than 20 miles from Halifax.

Federal Health and Welfare Minister John Munro was there one evening last week, as the chill mist crept between the crumbling shacks, for a fast, first-hand look at one of the problems he is trying to solve, before driving back to the city to speak to a Rotary banquet.

'Not Monkeys In a Cage'

The people who live in North Preston, and in other similar black slums, don't much like being inspected. "They're not monkeys in a cage," says one of the black guides who has brought Munro to the community.

And, indeed, one is embarrassed to be crowding into a dirty shack—no water, no sewers—to examine someone's misery. It's almost a relief to sense the hostility directed at the whites in their large cars, and the woman who sharply directs her children to turn away from the visitors—"show them your backs"—demonstrates at least the dignity of defiance.

Farther along, a man is drunk on home-made bug juice and staggers toward the white party. "We should get into the cars," says one of the guides nervously, because violence can't be far away in these circumstances.

It's Next Door To White Affluence

North Preston is bad. Very much like the depressed Indian villages 500 miles north of Winnipeg which Munro visited during the winter, but seeming worse because it is next door to white affluence. The housing is no better, we are told, than the infamous camps for Arab refugees in the Middle East.

But this rural community is in some ways better than the urban slums in Halifax. At least the kids have a place to run and the lakes are full of trout, so there is protein to eat.

In the city, the people live in tall old homes and converted warehouses which need paint and lean against each other for support, but do not look too bad from the outside.

People Exploited by Slum Landlords

Inside, the people are grossly overcrowded, exploited by slum landlords (raising the ghastly spectre of black anti-semitism), unemployed and conditioned to inferiority—black is ugly.

In school, we are told, when a child draws a picture of her father, she leaves the face blank because she is ashamed to color it black.

It's been this way for well over 100 years in Halifax and in other parts of Nova Scotia where there are black people—about 20,000 in all, including perhaps 10,000 in the city, although no one seems very sure of the figures because blacks may not tell the truth to white census takers.

The customary forms of welfare programs have obviously failed here, just as they have failed elsewhere to eradicate pockets of deep poverty and alienation. But failure is now becoming too dangerous to tolerate.

Once a Boxer, Now Social Worker

"I've had four years of beating the race riot by a nose," says Buddy Day, a former boxer who is now a volunteer social worker with influence among the black street corner gangs. "I'm damn frightened."

Some people in Halifax quarrel with that judgment and say there has been no real danger of large-scale racial violence. But how would they know when they seem so detached from the black community?

Late that night, Munro went to a couple of black soul clubs to hear the music and experience the pulsing beat of social life in the community. "What do you expect to learn by slumming like this?" asked his white driver.

Black Panthers Have Planted Seeds

But however close the community may or may not have come to riot in the past, the danger must be growing. "The border cannot stop a social force," said Munro in his speech to the Rotarians, and the Black Panthers have already been in Halifax, leaving their seeds behind them.

In a sensible federal system, the problems of the blacks in Halifax would be primarily the responsibility of the government closest to them, the municipality, and of the province. But in Canada's complicated structure, Munro's federal department is deeply involved right down to the street level.

In North Preston, Ottawa pays half the cost of the provincial government's community development officer. In Halifax, Buddy Day cools the streetcorners working out of neighborhood centre to which Ottawa contributed $36,000 last year.

Now, Munro was in Halifax partly to talk to the leaders of a new organization, the Black United Front, who need federal financing.

BUF is an umbrella for most of the black organizations, and its interim committee includes most of the community leaders. The resident is a clergyman and educator, Dr. William P. Oliver, whose son, Jules, is a civil rights worker with a master's degree in social work.

Buddy Day is on the committee, and so is Denny Grant, an elegant, angry young man from Antigua who helps lead the Afro-Canadian Liberation movement.

There are several others in the interim leadership, which is obviously divided within itself and uncertain of quite where it wants to go or how to get there.

New, Hopeful Try at Black Leadership

But this is a new and hopeful attempt at black leadership and exactly the sort of experimental approach to social problems Munro wants to try.

The traditional method of sending in experts to tell the deprived what they need has failed; the new idea is to ask the alienated to analyse their own problems and come up with their own solutions.

The Black United Front will work from within the black community, employing social animators — perhaps that's a polite word for agitators — to stimulate action from the blackroots up.

It will attempt to organize — politicize is the word they use in the states — the community to recognize its own problems and potentials and to confront governments and agencies to demand solutions.

BUF needs about $100,000 a year for three years to get going, and Munro gave the leaders a guarantee of financial support. Under a new arrangement with the provinces, he has in his budget about $500,000 a year for demonstrations, or experimental projects, and the grant to BUF will be the first direct subsidy to a citizen's organization under this scheme.

Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier's citizen branch, which supports and protects minority groups, has an officer in Halifax working with BUF and will be associated in federal aid to the project.

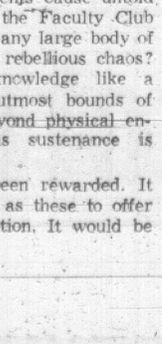
Either It Works . . . or Revolution

If BUF works well, there will probably be some angry confrontations in Nova Scotia as the black community demands improvements in its conditions, and Munro may well be accused of financing revolution. If BUF doesn't work, the revolution may be much, much worse.

Triumph of Asceticism— But the Donkey Died

By ART STOTT

"From one point of view," explained my well-informed friend, "this year's division of university grants in the province reflects high praise indeed on Victoria.



Stott

While any number of people are criticizing the distribution of funds, the point shines clear and bright that our own university rises high above crass considerations of mere money. In Victoria we have sublimated. We recognize greater wealth than cash on the barrel head. Our asceticism is emphasized.

"Look at it this way," he continued. "In other places last year disorder and discontent abounded. Not in Victoria. While other students demonstrated, while faculty was torn by internal dissension, while presidents quit, at Gordon Head they devoted a year to study, to academic pursuits, to the other elements connected with university life and reserved challenges for things of the mind, following the scholarly pattern.

"Is it any wonder that the authorities who decide how the grants will be split exclaimed in wonder: 'Look. Here is an institution which cut its rations, served the purposes for which higher education is intended and proved beyond a shadow of a doubt that it could manage without money—or nearly without, since even last year it didn't get as much as ordinary practice recognizes as necessary. Behold a miracle—the University of Victoria doesn't need funds. It has transcended the mundane concerns of subsistence and carries on with spiritual strength'."

My friend nodded his head in appreciative approval. "I should not like to appear sacrilegious, but isn't there here some suggestion of the five loaves and the two fishes," he asked?

"Compare this to behaviour elsewhere. Did University of Victoria students cause untold trouble? Did they occupy the Faculty Club and mislay the silver? Did any large body of students create bumptious, rebellious chaos? No sir! They followed knowledge like a sinking star beyond the utmost bounds of human thought—almost beyond physical endurance, also, as far as sustenance is concerned.

"Naturally they have been rewarded. It would be insulting to such as these to offer cash as a form of recognition. It would be like ostentatious tipping, which is a demeaning practice. Costly, too.

"So our authorities splitting the inadequate melon, have figuratively called: 'Bravo, chaps! Sterling fellows! Continue along the sublimity of your ways. Show the world that materialism is not your concern. And, if you have any misgivings over your abilities to survive on an inadequate diet, add a little more water to the gruel. It's quite sustaining'.

"Obviously," my friend pointed out, "it is necessary to adopt a different treatment for other universities where children have become fractious. And the authorities have carefully avoided dealing with them in terms of punishment. Like any well-organized acquisitive family of the day, they have given the youngsters another batch of plastic toys to keep them happy. That may be a transient remedy for discontent, but it's the practice of the times.

"Here in Victoria there is more body to the student and tougher fibre. He doesn't have to be bribed by lavish handouts. He's Spartan. That's what the authorities have recognized, and I ask you, can there be any higher tribute than such recognition?

"And yet," my friend continued, "one small doubt troubles me. You remember the story of the man who had a donkey and raised it as a magnificent demonstration in frugality? Starting with a full hopper of fodder, he reduced the daily feed one straw at a time. Came the day when he gave the donkey one straw only and appeared to have solved the problem of upkeep. The next day the donkey died of starvation.

"The analogy is not exact," my friend said apologetically. "Students at university are not donkeys, despite what some examination markers may have termed them last month. Still, starvation is starvation. I do not believe that man, or students, can live by bread alone, but it's useful to have a loaf to go along with the jug of wine and the singing in the wilderness. It may even be physically essential and there are limits to the contention that reading maketh a full man.

"I keep thinking of that," my friend concluded, "as I ponder the effects of policy in government grant division. Asceticism has much to commend it. It is an instrument of spirituality. But how spiritual can the University of Victoria get on the refinement of a financial diet and still continue to live at Gordon Head?"

My friend did not have the answer.

Accountants Meet

B.C. chartered accountants will hear Vancouver Stock Exchange president John Van Luven address their annual meeting at the Empress Hotel Thursday.

Future role of the accountant will be theme of the gathering, expected to draw about 200 members of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of B.C.

Other speakers will be D. B. McNeil, B.C. Telephone comptroller; William Goodlet, of Riddell, Stead and Co., Toronto, and Robert D. Brown, Price, Waterhouse and Co., Toronto.

A panel will discuss legislation dealing with professional incorporation, with members Henry Longstaff, of Riddell, Stead and Co.; W. Merrill Leckie and R. W. V. Dickerson, Vancouver lawyers.

Kaiser Resources

Directors of Kaiser Resources Ltd. are pleased with progress in development of the company's six-million-tons-a-year strip and underground mining venture at Sparwood.

Just 16 months old, the project of readying coal for mining by stripping at surface, construction of preparation plant and handling facilities, is expected to be ready for first shipments early next year.

Chairman Jack L. Ashby told the board meeting in Vancouver that Roberts Bank terminal facilities also are well under way and will meet shipping deadline.

Montreal Stock Ex.

The Quebec Securities Commission has decided to exempt from registration securities listed on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges.

Peter A. Turcot, chairman of the Montreal Stock Exchange, and Jacques Belanger, chairman of the Canadian Stock Exchange, said the commission's action "will surely encourage future investment in our province."

The step will bring the Montreal operation in line with that of the Toronto Stock Exchange and other Canadian exchanges.

Imports

Canadian imports, led by purchases of automotive equipment, aircraft and electronic computers, rose by more than 15 per cent in the first four months of 1969, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

Imports totalled $4.5 billion in the four-month period this year, compared with $3.89 billion in the same period last year.

Aircraft imports in the period almost doubled at $127.48 million compared with $64.5 million.

Companies

An all-time high for one month of new B.C. company registrations was recorded for the month of May with 763, up 150 from May, 1968.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said the "tremendous increase" is a reflection of "the great surge in the establishment of new business interests."

In the same period there were 49 extra-provincial companies listed with the registrar of companies, up 10; 50 societies, up 14, and 136 partnerships, down eight.

Time International

The Canadian edition of Time Magazine for Western Canada subscribers will be printed in Vancouver by Evergreen Press starting in the fall.

Montreal has been printing and distribution center for all of Canada.

Evergreen, subsidiary of Ronalds-Federated Ltd., is one of the largest textbook publishers in the west.

Neonex

Neonex International Ltd. has signed a final agreement with Bigelow Sanford Inc. to establish jointly a carpet-manufacturing company in Canada, probably Ontario.

Bigelow Sanford, a subsidiary of Sperry and Hutchinson Co., operates seven carpet plants in the U.S., with affiliated companies in 21 countries.

The Bigelow-Neonex Canadian plant would distribute through Imbrex Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Neonex, a Vancouver-based conglomerate.

Exports

Canadian exports maintained their firm advance from last year during May.

Preliminary estimates of the value of total exports during May, published by Dominion Bureau of Statistics, show an increase by 10.7 per cent to $1.33 billion from $1.2 billion in May, 1968.

Sales to the United States went up by almost 16 per cent to $902 million from May to May.

Exports to Britain dipped by 2.4 per cent to $120.7 million but climbed by almost 21 per cent to all other Commonwealth countries, to $66 million.

B.C. Economy to Feel 'Staggering Impact'

By BORIS MISKEW

MONTREAL (CP) — Duff Roblin, executive vice-resident of Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd., said Tuesday the removal of tariffs and protectionism would go a long way toward solving the problem of national unity.

The former Manitoba premier told the annual meeting of the Canadian Nuclear Association that free trade would be "painless to take" by Canada's far west and by the far east.

"There is indeed a growing alientation of the west from the east of Canada," he said. The west has long held a resentment against domination by the eastern industrial system.

The problem can be summed up in one word—tariff.

Western Canada wants to be free of economic obligation to the east and, rather than have to buy expensive manufactured goods from eastern Canada, it wants to be "free to purchase what it needs from the cheapest source."

Roblin said perhaps the greatest factor in Canada's "east-west equation" is the growing trade with Japan, become commonly known as the Pacific Rim.

The growing trade will Japan, Indonesia, the Philippines and the rest of Asia, including China, will have a "staggering impact on the economy of British Columbia and Alberta, and potentially on Saskatchewan as well."

He said that only recently the west was considered unfortunate because of its distance from the eastern and North American as well as the European markets—but it now seems to be fortunate because of its relation with the Pacific Rim.

The Pacific option is related to the resources of Western Canada and this has given the west a "new self-confidence both politically and economically," Roblin said.

The aims of a successful Canadian economic policy were easy to state:

- Reduce income disparities within the regions of Canada itself.
- Recognize the different economic interests of the east and the west.
- Raise income levels in Canada closer to those in the United States.

"If these goals are right for Canada, then it follows without a doubt that tariffs and protectionism must go."

Roblin said that tariffs traditionally have favored Ontario and Quebec, and that the economic links between these two provinces have always been the strongest among the Canadian provinces.

Under a free trade arrangement, Ontario and Quebec would have to integrate more fully into the North American industrial heartland.

Fording Coal Plan Ready

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fording River Coal Ltd. is to apply to the provincial government soon for a permit to construct and operate an $80 million coal mining project in southeastern B.C, the company said Tuesday.

R. M. Porter, Fording Coal president, made the announcement following negotiation with Japanese steel interests for the sale of 3 million tons of coal per year for 15 years.

The value of the contract is $700 million.

Porter said application to the government will include plans for reclamation and pollution control.

The Fording Coal property is located in the Fording River Valley, 35 miles north of Sparwood in the East Kootenays.

It is 60 per cent owned by CP Investments and 40 per cent by Cominco, which is the managing company.

TECHNICAL GOOFS COST SUBSCRIBERS

OTTAWA (CP) — The costs of technical mistakes by Bell Canada are borne "in the ultimate" by its subscribers, James S. Kyles, chief engineer of Bell's Ottawa toll area said Tuesday.

He told a Canadian transport commission hearing, dealing with Bell's application for a rate increase, that the Princess telephone and single-slot pay phones are examples of such errors.

Under questioning by a panel of lawyers representing the Ontario and Quebec governments, Kyles said the single-slot phone had cost $300,000 to $400,000 before it was abandoned by the company as technically unworkable.

The Princess — a small dial telephone designed primarily for bedroom use — was developed without any thorough market research to determine customer demand, Kyles said.

Later, it was discovered that the set was so light it would not remain stationary when it was dialed.

If the model had been made any heavier, it would have scratched the tops of highly-finished tables, Kyles said.

Bell had since switched its emphasis to touch-tone, or push-button, telephones to serve the needs for which the Princess was developed.

The rate increase would apply in Quebec, Ontario, Labrador and the Northwest Territories, adding 40 to 70 cents a month for home phones and $1.30 to $2.95 a month for business phones.

COMPENSATION PROCLAIMED

Manpower Retraining Aided 240,000

OTTAWA — The federal Manpower department has trained 240,000 people since the beginning of last year at a cost of $190 million.

Three of four who passed their courses returned to the labor market to find their pay increased about 20 per cent.

An adequate employment level is important in fighting poverty, the department said today in a brief submitted to the Senate's special poverty committee by W. R. Dymond, assistant deputy minister.

"Without this condition, manpower policy cannot be expected to make a significant contribution to the reduction of poverty among labor-force participants," the brief said.

The dividing line between those persons who were in the labor force and those who were not, however, was "really a large blurred area."

Many people did not have jobs because employers considered them unemployable and consequently they thought so too. "Yet employability depends on labor demand, on opportunities for retraining, rehabilitation and mobility assistance."

An unemployable person could be supported by transfer payments or the resources could be spent on making him employable.

A 30-year-old man getting welfare payments of $2,000 a year during the whole of his working life to age 65 would cost society $70,000, the brief said.

"If these resources were put into upgrading his education and training him, it would cost society less and result in a better life for him and his family."

Command of the Summerside base will be taken over by Lt.-Col. R. Sturgess, senior staff officer of air-training at Air Transort Command headquarters in Trenton, Ont., who will be promoted to the rank of colonel at the time of his posting.

YOUTH

Group Gives Addicts Aid To Self-Help

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Young people can "kick" the physical habit of drug usage in a matter of days, but if the "mind habit" is not cured there will be no permanence in withdrawal.

Forbes

This is the firm belief of Victoria's Jen Hanson, who not so long ago completed two-and-a-half years of voluntary service at Teen-Challenge Centres in New York and Vancouver.

She describes this "monkey on the mind" as "a lack deep inside." And she says that only when such a lack (or need) is brought to the surface and placed in the right perspective will youth understand the menace of drugs and leave them alone.

★ ★ ★

It was in 1958 that Dave Wilkinson, a young minister (well known today as author of The Cross and the Switch Blade and other books) became so concerned with the needs of youth in the New York ghettos, he opened his first Teen-Challenge Centre there.

Since then he has spearheaded the opening of other centres, including the one in Vancouver. They are supported by free will offerings of many different churches.

Main object in every case is to help young drug users break the habit and, in turn, to then help others to do the same.

★ ★ ★

"Once they come to a point of asking how they can help others, their personal problems are more than half licked," Jen says.

This doesn't come easily. First the person seeking a cure must acknowledge it cannot be found only through workers in the centres. Help is needed from a spiritual power that has nothing to do with physical well-being.

Dave Wilkinson and all his workers believe that power comes from God. And they say when this truth is accepted there is no limit to what can be accomplished in the way of cures.

★ ★ ★

Teen-Challenge has a "fantastic cure rate" to its credit, Jen Hanson tells you. "As much as 80 per cent of all those who really accept help."

At the same time she is candid in saying there are disappointments.

"Some drug users come to Teen-Challenge Centres in what appears to be a sincere effort to break the habit. Actually they are there merely to curb the habit for a short time in order to reduce the quantity they must use (and find money to buy) when they go 'outside' again."

It sometimes takes as long as three weeks to discover if a youth is in earnest about a cure or not. Once that fact is established, young persons are sent on to Teen-Challenge farms where they stay (and work) until fully cured. There is such a farm on one of our Gulf islands.

★ ★ ★

When the Vancouver Centre was first opened, Jen Hanson and other volunteers went down to the cafes where young drug users congregate. "We drank their coffee. Ate their chips. Told them what we hoped to do."

It was hard to gain their confidence "for these kids who are always working an angle themselves, naturally thought others must be doing it too."

And although deep inside many were begging to come to grips with their emotional problems, "they hesitated to believe we sincerely wished to help them to an understanding of themselves."

Today, more and more young drug users are finding their way to the Vancouver Centre, and asking for help.

In every instance the biggest need stems from a spiritual lack, Jen believes. And it differs in the case of every person.

She says: "People who should know have closed their eyes to the fact that physical needs develop whether fed or not but the spiritual need must be fed and nourished from babyhood on, or it dies."

Hope Man To Be Tried For Abduction

Renis R. I. Kermode, 30, of Hope, was committed Tuesday for trial by judge and jury on a charge of abducting his six-year-old son.

In a preliminary hearing before Magistrate William Ostler court was told the boy was taken from St. Andrew's School, 1002 Pandora May 23 by a man and then taken to Hope.

Mrs. Kermode said she had been divorced from her husband in June 1967 and had been given custody of the boy.

STUDENT WINS NOMINATION

SURREY, B.C. (CP) — Twenty-two-year-old student Bob Jacobs was elected Tuesday night to run in Surrey for the provincial Liberal party in the next election.

The third-year commerce student at the University of B.C. won the nomination on the first ballot.

Human Rights Act Implementation Start Made

The appointment of a human rights commission, a director and implementation of the human rights act, was announced Tuesday by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson.

The act, which goes into effect June 16 passed at the last session of the legislature, consolidates the Equal Pay Act, Fair Employment Practices Act and Public Accommodation Practices Act and extends their principles.

Members of the commission are W. H. Sands, (deputy minister of labor) chairman; C. R. Margison, vice-chairman; John Melville (assistant deputy minister of labor), Mrs. Fraudena Eaton, Charles Murdoch, J. R. Edgett, R. S. Wilson, D. H. Chapman and Mrs. Emily Ostapchuk.

All except Murdoch are already members of the B.C. Board of Industrial Relations.

J. C. Sherlock of Victoria has been named director.

The new act provides that women doing the same work as men shall receive equal pay. No employer shall discriminate against any person because of sex, age, race, color, religion, national ancestry or place of origin. The same applies to trade union membership.

Any advertisement or application form specifying limitations such as those above (excepting sex) is illegal under the act. So is discrimination against age where a person is between 45 and 65.

It is contrary to the act to refuse accommodation to anyone because of race or color, religion or ancestry, in either public places or living quarters which are for sale or rent. Any sign denoting discrimination for these reasons is illegal.

Where infringements of the act are noted complaint should be made to an officer of the department of labor. It may be passed to the commission if he cannot settle the matter. The order of the commission is final. Penalties range from payment of wages lost to fines under the summary convictions act.

Expansion Report Slated At NHL Meetings Today

MONTREAL (CP) — The intra-league draft, a further nudge toward additional expansion and continued meetings between the owner and player representatives feature today's sessions of the National Hockey League's annual meetings.

The intra-league draft is an internal affair where the 12 big league clubs draft from each other after each has filed a protected list of 14 players, plus two goalkeepers. The draft price is $30,000 and the rules stipulate that no club can have more than three draft claims against it.

Tuesday night the clubs each filed their protected list with league president Clarence Campbell. The combined lists contained several surprises.

Such well known names as Dick Duff of Montreal Canadiens, Pierre Pilote, Marcel Pronovost and Floyd Smith of Toronto Maple Leafs, Dean Prentice and goalie Terry Sawchuk of Detroit Red Wings, Eric Nesterenko of Chicago Black Hawks and Elmer Vasko and Leo Boivin of Minnesota North Stars were missing from the sheltered circle.

On the other hand the Wings listed the name of Carl Brewer as a protected player.

Brewer, a former all-star defenceman with Toronto, went into voluntary retirement and regained his amateur status after the 1964-65 season. He recently signed with the Wings as part of an old Toronto-Detroit deal.

WILL REPORT TODAY

Campbell said Tuesday night the league's expansion committee will bring in a preliminary report today and will probably recommend a full-scale meeting to consider league enlargement and re-alignment be set for New York, June 25.

He had indicated earlier that the addition of two more franchises will necessitate the geographic re-alignment of the East and West divisions.

Representatives of the club owners and the players committee, headed by Toronto lawyer Alan Eagleson, held a second meeting Tuesday in what promises to be a full-scale battle.

The players' group is attempting to have the reserve clause abolished from its standard players' contracts and the option clause substituted.

Eagleson admitted after the second season that "each side gave a little today and agreed to further meetings" with a joint statement expected sometime today.

WILL MEET AGAIN

Both sides have agreed to a further two-day meeting in Toronto July 15-16. They also agreed to hold future meetings separately from the NHL annual meetings because some of the league governors are tied up with other chores throughout the sittings.

New York Rangers were active on the trade front just prior to the 5 p.m. EDT Tuesday deadline.

The Rangers sold defenceman Harry Howell outright to Oakland Seals and traded veteran centre Phil Goyette to St. Louis Blues in exchange for the Blues first-round draft choice in Thursday's amateur draft.

Howell, a veteran of 17 years with the Rangers, underwent a spinal fusion operation last April and is expected to resume playing in December.

Goyette, a 13-year NHL veteran with Montreal Canadiens and the Rangers, had been the New Yorkers' leading scorer in 1963-64 and again in 1966-67, but scored only 13 goals last season and assisted in 32 others.

ACQUIRE LOU ANGOTTI

In another deal, St. Louis Blues acquired centre Lou Angotti and Pittsburgh Penguins' first-round 1971 amateur draft choice in exchange for centre Ron Schock, right winger Craig Cameron and the Blues' second-round amateur pick in 1971.

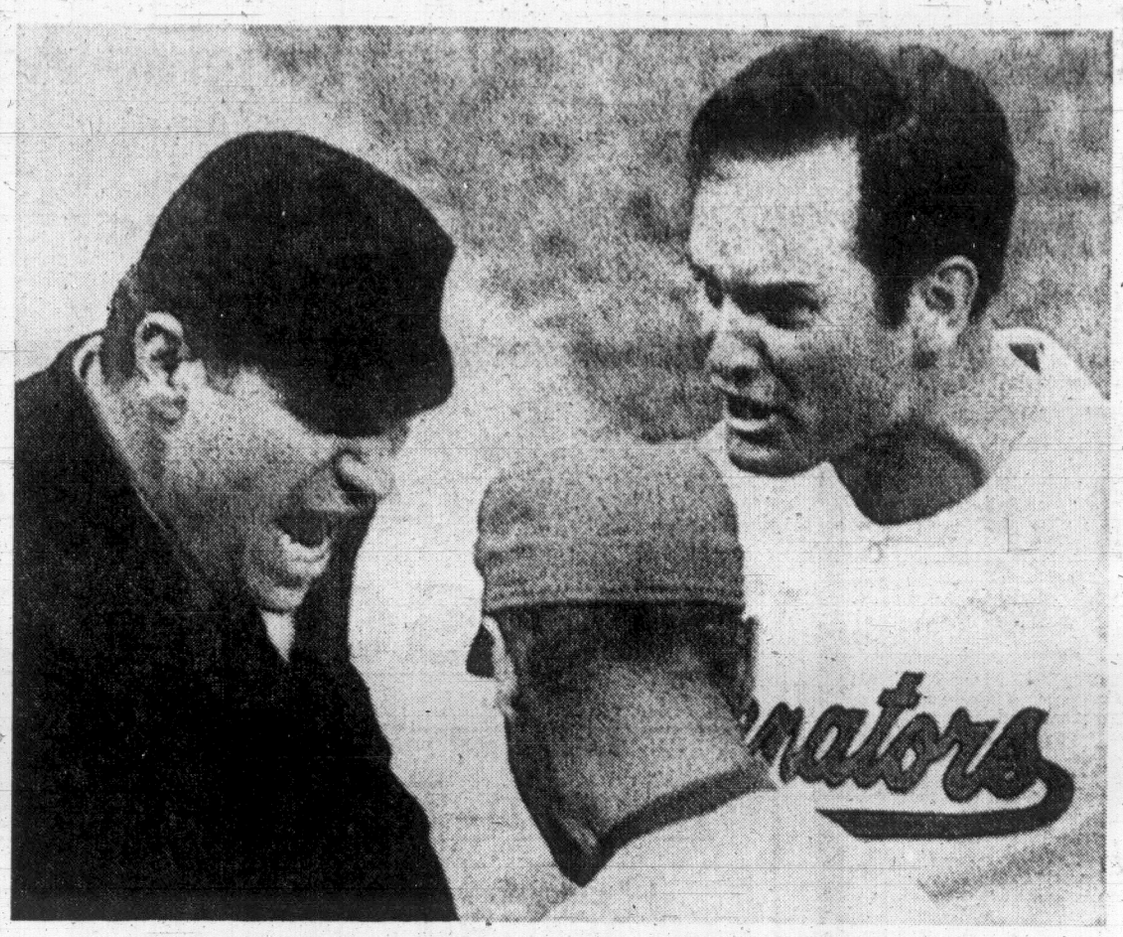
Angotti's name then did not appear on the Blues protected list, leaving considerable speculation surrounding the shift.

In an inter-league draft, seven NHL clubs paid out $240,000 for eight players from the American and Western Hockey leagues.

Vancouver Canucks of the WHL lost defenceman Darryl Sly to Minnesota North Stars, and forward Nick Harbaruk and Bob Barlow to Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Flyers respectively. Barlow went to Minnesota in a subsequent deal for the $30,000 draft price and "future considerations."

Portland of the WHL lost forward Bill Saunders to Chicago Black Hawks, Hershey Bears of the AHL lost Chuck Hamilton to Detroit, while Providence of the same league watched Oakland grab Gerry Lafond.

Montreal Canadiens took Bob Pate from Cleveland and Pittsburgh then grabbed Sandy McGregor from Baltimore of the AHL to close out the dealing.



STRAIGHT FROM THE UMP'S MOUTH

Getting message loud and clear from umpire Ronald Luciano during argument at home plate Tuesday in Washington are Senator slugger Bernie Allen (right) and coach Wayne Terwilliger. Allen had been called out while trying to score in first inning of American League game against Oakland Athletics, who went on to defeat Senators 6-4. (Baseball story and scores are on Page 13.)

Six New Names Added To Hall-of-Fame Roster

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League's Hall of Fame committee Tuesday added six new names to its already extensive honor rolls—four in the player category and two at the builder level.

Honored as outstanding players were Sid Abel, genial general manager of Detroit Red Wings; Leonard (Red) Kelly, until recently coach of Los Angeles Kings; Bryan Hextall, a former forward with New York Rangers; and the late Roy Worters, a goaltender with the now-defunct New York Americans.

The builders are Bruce Norris, current president of the Red Wings, and Al Leader, recently retired as president of the Western Hockey League.

Abel, 51, was renowned as a player, captain, all-star, Hart Trophy winner, coach and general manager of the Red Wings since he joined professional ranks in 1938. He is a native of Melville, Sask.

As a player he was a key figure on two of the most famous forward lines in NHL history, first with linemates Don Grosso and Eddy Wares in the late 1940s and with Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay in the early 50s.

Kelly, in addition to coaching the Kings for two years, is one of only five players to play 20 years in the NHL. He was a four-time winner of the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy and the first winner of the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the league's outstanding defenceman.

STILL HOLDS RECORDS

Born at Simcoe, Ont., July 9, 1927, Kelly was a member of eight Stanley Cup championship teams and still holds records for most years in Stanley Cup playoffs, with 19, and most playoff games at 164.

Hextall was born July 31, 1919, at Grenfell, Sask. He played all his minor hockey in Western Canada before turning professional with Vancouver Lions in the Western Hockey League in 1934.

WITH RANGERS

He served with New York Rangers from 1936 to 1948 and during that period played in 449 NHL games, scoring 187 goals and adding 175 assists for a total of 362 points.

Worters, a Toronto native, was a professional from 1925 to 1937. In 1928-29 he won the Hart Trophy as the league's most valuable player and in 1930-31 won the Vezina Trophy as the top goaltender. He died Nov. 7, 1957, at age 57.

In the builder category, Norris has been president of the Red Wings and Detroit's Olympia stadium since the start of the 1955-56 season. He previously had served the club as vice-president and as its representative on the NHL board of governors.

Leader, recently retired as president of the WHL, was born in Barnaby, Man., Dec. 4, 1903. His hockey career began at age 16 around Watson, Sask., where he played on both junior and senior teams.

He started his administrative career as secretary of the Seattle city league in 1933 and in 1944 became president of the then Pacific Coast Hockey League which later became the WHL.

Penalties Wreck Rocks While Coach Spies Hope

Third-period penalties wrecked Victoria Shamrocks Tuesday night as Vancouver Carlings charged from behind in the final eight minutes at Vancouver to take the Western Lacrosse Association contest 11-9.

Despite the setback, coach Tom Druce began to see a little hope for Shamrocks, who take on New Westminster Salmonbellies tonight at 8:30 in Memorial Arena.

While losing their sixth game in six league starts, Rocks showed some improvment in their checking.

Behind 3-2 after the first period, Shamrocks forged ahead for a 5-4 lead going into the final frame.

With eight minutes remaining, Bill Spotswood drew a game misconduct after throwing his stick in disgust at receiving a minor penalty.

With Bob Harris sent off moments earlier, the Victoria squad was two men short.

TOOK ADVANTAGE

Vancouver took advantage by rapping in two quick goals to tie it up, 6-6 Although Rocks slipped ahead once again, Carls finally took charge, slipping three quick ones past Doug Thomson to seal up the win.

Druce said he thought they had the game after the second period.

"We'll just have to score more goals," said Druce.

"Our club needs a few more men who have the knack of scoring."

Druce indicated that Vern Black is helping Rocks a lot on improving the checking department and that "Frank Alexander played really well for his first game."

KEEPS LINE INTACT

Alexander, who played a few games with Victoria while still a junior, scored twice while working on a line with his brother, Ken, and Nirmal Dillon.

Dillon also scored twice while Ken added one as the trio yielded more than half the Rock total.

Druce's plans for tonight include keeping this line intact.

Doug Thomson will remain in the net while the Vern Black-Ranjit Dillon and Spotswood-Al MacLean combinations will remain on defence.

Tommy Black and Chuck Hardy, who missed Tuesday's game because of work commitments, will receive a tryout in a defensive capacity.

TIED FOR THIRD

"Doug played well all through the game, facing 49 shots. We were a little closer this time with 42 on the Vancouver net," said Druce.

Ranjit Dillon, who also collected three assists, Spotswood, Vern Black and MacLean counted singles for the Rocks.

Bill Rawson paced the Carlings with four goals while Gord Frederickson added two.

Brundage Can't Accept Changes

WARSAW (CP)—Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, says he can't accept a change in the rules that would allow skiers to accept financial subsidies and also appear in advertisements.

Speaking at a news conference Tuesday, Brundage said that some points of new rules passed by the Federation Internationale du Ski did not comply with Olympic regulations and their standards of amateurism.

He objected to a rule allowing for reinstatement of skiers who have been suspended for taking money. Also unacceptable he said was a provision allowing national federations to make their own rules and another providing an unrestricted training period with financial compensation.

"The FIS must have rules that apply to all national federations," Brundage said. "And when it comes to the Olympics, the international federations must comply with IOC regulations."

The issue of eligibility rules and violations of amateur regulations by skiers came up at the IOC meeting here which concluded Monday.

An IOC communique Monday, endorsed by Brundage and his colleagues, had been interpreted as qualified acceptance of the new rules.

WANTED MEDALS BACK

The communique also indicated that Brundage had shelved demands for Nancy Greene Raine of Rossland, B.C., and Jean-Claude Killy of France to return their gold medals won in the Winter Olympic Games at Grenoble, France, last year.

He had publicly suggested that the two skiers be stripped of their medals for alleged violation of Olympic amateur rules.

Brundage told the news conference the rules submitted to his committee by President Marc Holder are unsatisfactory.

Most observers interpreted the IOC communique issued after a meeting with Holder as qualified acceptance in principle of the new rules.

The communique said the IOC "welcomed" steps taken by the FIS to control eligibility of skiers in the Olympic Games.

Brundage himself has long complained of payments to Alpine skiers in violation of Olympic regulations and is of the opinion that the sport should be removed from the Winter Olympic program.

CANUCKS WANT . . . . . . PROS TO PLAY

Survey Provides Proof

MONTREAL (CP) — An overwhelming majority of Canadians want to see a National Hockey League team play the Russians, league governors were told Tuesday.

NHL President Clarence Campbell presented the governors with the results of a nationwide survey by Weekend magazine which included the question: "Should the NHL play Russia?"

Of the 39,080 replies, 99.1 per cent were in favor of such a meeting. Most wanted the Stanley Cup winner to be Canada's representative in a series of at least five games.

Campbell said: "This must be regarded as truly impressive proof that, for the benefit of the game, there has to be in the not too distant future some competitive series on an organized basis—possibly a transatlantic championship between the winner of the NHL and the winner of a European series."

Campbell said his idea of an international series would be one played at the end of January or beginning of February.

"We would build the reigning Stanley Cup champions' participation into the NHL schedule so the team would be free to go as a unit."

Mothers' Game At Allenby Park

Liniment supplies have dwindled during the past few weeks as mothers prepared for an exhibition baseball game, scheduled for 6:30 Thursday night at the American Little League home of Allenby Park.

The ladies will form two teams, the Flowers and Vegetables, for a "hardball" contest to raise funds for the league.

A collection will be taken.

Bob Plommer Ousted In British Amateur

HOYLAKE (CP) — Canadian Bob Plommer folded on the last three holes Tuesday and was eliminated from the British amateur golf championship by Raymond Wattine of France.

The 47-year-old Plommer, from Vancouver, lost by one hole in the second round after a one-hole victory Monday over A. P. Jensen of Los Altos, Calif.

Wattine won the last three holes Tuesday over the 6,950-yard course, and later Plommer commented:

"I was two up with only three holes to go and then suddenly my game fell apart and his came together.

"He won the 16th with a birdie by sinking a putt of around 40 feet. Then he won the 17th in par and clinched the match on the last hole with another birdie by sinking a putt from eight feet."

CHAMPION WINS

Defending champion Michael Bonallack of England scrambled to a 1 up victory over Mike Edwards of England. Andrew Forrester of England pulled off one of the upsets by defeating Gordon Cosh of Scotland, a British Walker Cup player.

Dick Davis of California, who won the title over this 6,950-yard course in 1962, went into the third round with a 5 and 4 victory over Ian Bradshaw of Ireland.

TOMMIE AGEE
. . . hitting spree

By The Associated Press

For the first time in their celebrated eight-year history, New York Mets are amazing . . . except to themselves.

Gil Hodges' expansion urchins, sparked by a repatriated pitcher and a rejuvenated slugger, socked San Francisco Giants 9-4 Tuesday night for their 11th consecutive victory . . . longest winning streak in the majors this season.

Tommie Agee cracked four hits, including a pair of homers, and Don Cardwell hurled eight brilliant innings before tiring as the Mets shot six games over the .500 mark—a never-never-land for the Mets for many years—and solidified their hold on second place in the Eastern Division of the National League.

Agee, the fleet centre fielder whose home-run total slipped from 22 in 1966, when he was the American League's Rookie of the Year at Chicago, to 14 in 1967 with the White Sox and five last season with the Mets, drove in three runs with his eighth and ninth homers and one of his two singles.

Cardwell, called off bullpen duty for his first start since May 15, checked the Giants on two hits until the ninth, when he needed relief help from Ron Taylor, a Toronto native, and earned his first victory in more than a month.

New York remained seven games behind Chicago Cubs, who overtook Atlanta Braves 3-1 behind Ken Holtzman's pitching and home runs by Willie Smith and Ron Santo.

Los Angeles Dodgers climbed within one game of the Western Division leading Braves with a 2-1 nod over skidding Philadelphia Phillies, Houston Astros downed Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4, St. Louis Cardinals shaded Cincinnati Reds 5-4 and Montreal Expos topped San Diego Padres 7-4 in other NL action.

Two Astros Injured in Collision

"The old Mets are dead, baby!" Agee beamed after boosting his batting average 18 points to .278 with four hits in five trips to the plate against loser Mike McCormick and two successors. He has driven in 26 runs, nine more than his total for the 1968 season, when he batted just .217.

"Hodges has done a magnificent job with this club . . . better than anyone else," said Cardwell, 33-year-old dean of New York's fuzzy-checked pitching staff, who contributed three singles and a sacrifice fly to the Mets' 12-hit attack and brought his season pitching mark to 2-6.

Houston's victory over the Pirates was marred by a third-inning collision between shortstop Hector Torres and left fielder Jesus Alou that sent both Astros to a hospital—Alou with a severe concussion and Torres with facial cuts and bruises.

Al Oliver's short fly ball to left went for an inside-the-park homer when Torres and Alou ran together.

Baltimore Orioles collected nine hits Tuesday, five of them for extra bases, as they bounced California Angels 11-4 for their 40th American League baseball win of the year against only 16 defeats.

Heavy hitting has given the 1966 world champions a fast start and they now hold a four-game lead over Boston Red Sox in the AL's Eastern Division.

Tuesday, Paul Blair drove across four Baltimore runs with a single and two doubles, Dave Johnson and Mark Belanger produced doubles and Boog Powell smacked a three-run homer.

Powell, a first baseman, has hit safely in 25 of 26 games, driven in 32 runs and batted .327.

In other American League games, Kansas City Royals edged New York Yankees 7-6, Oakland Athletics trimmed Washington Senators 6-4, Detroit Tigers blanked Seattle Pilots 5-0, Minnesota Twins defeated Boston Red Sox 6-2 and Chicago White Sox stopped Cleveland Indians 9-5.

Derby Contests Make News for Inlet Anglers

Talk about competitions is making the news these days for members of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association.

Members are currently chasing big salmon in the fifth week of their annual Qualifying Derby and next Sunday the Chinook Club of the VSIAA will stage its big competition of the season.

Chinooks will be attempting to demonstrate their fishing prowess from daybreak until 2 p.m. in the annual Dr. Hugh Clarke Sportsmen's Derby, which will offer cash prizes of $25, $15 and $10 to the three leading contestants. The winner will also received the Sportsmen's Cup.

Derby tickets are available at all Inlet boathouses and at Ben Hill's and Gordon's sporting goods stores. Derby catches may be weighed in at Hall's, Adams and Anchorage boathouses.

Skipping their monthly sunburn derby this month, the Chinooks will resume the sunburn fun in July.

MONTHLY TROPHY

Rose Cove has collected the VSIAA monthly trophy for May. She earned the award by boating a 26-pound, 10-ounce spring salmon near Goldstream Island.

Peter Dickinson captured the junior trophy with a five-pound catch and hidden-weight awards went to Blair McDonald, W. Fenske, Ron Perks and Mrs. M. Riddler.

Ron Ekstrom also picked up a trophy for leading the fifth week (June 1-7) of the Qualifying Derby with a 14½-pound spring. Hidden-weight winners for the week were J. Cove, J. Kennedy and M. Tymchuck.

Trophy winner for the previous week was Gary Vaughan, who weighed in a 24-pound, 13-ounce catch.

WARREN GILES

Giles Declares War on Grease

CINCINNATI (AP)—Warren Giles, president of the National League, has instructed league umpires to crack down on pitchers who may be applying grease or similar substances to the baseball.

He referred to hair oil or other such greasy substances which might be obtained from the back of the neck, the forehead, a cap visor, uniform or the wrist.

Instructions to the umpires directed them to call for the ball if they suspect such substances are being applied. Even though there is no actual evidence on the ball it, nevertheless, is to be taken out of play.

If the umpire is convinced there has been a foreign substance applied to the ball the pitcher "shall immediately be removed from the game."

OTHER DIRECTIONS

Giles also directed:

"If you suspect the pitcher of applying his pitching hand to an area where he might be getting grease or other foreign substance on his hand, you shall direct the pitcher to cleanly wipe the area you suspect he may be getting it from—wrist, back of the neck, etc."

Giles also warned that "if the above ruling does not control or eliminate the illegal practice of applying a foreign substance to a ball, a more severe penalty will be necessary" and he added:

"The enforcement of this is strictly an act of judgment on the part of the umpire and is not subject to argument or protest."

Red Lions Tamed By One-Man Gang

Red Lion Inn ran into a one-man gang Tuesday night at Central Park and went down to a 10-4 defeat as Bate Construction romped to a ninth straight Major Men's Softball League victory.

Pitcher Brian Pearce was the lion-tamer, cracking the whip on the mound to hold the Lions to six hits and swinging a mighty bat to drive in four runs with a home run and a triple.

Pearce also had his faults. He issued five bases on balls, but fine fielding by his mates rescued him from serious trouble. The Bates boys were charged with only two errors while Red Lion fielders were guilty of six miscues.

The construction crew has lost only one league game this season, dropping a 5-2 decision to Langford on May 12.

Cooke Won't Sell Empire At Any Price

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Kent Cooke says his multi-million dollar sports empire—the Los Angeles basketball Lakers, the National Hockey League's Kings and their resplendent playhouse, the Forum—is "not for sale for $40,000,000, or any other price."

Cooke, formerly of Toronto, made the comment Tuesday after a newspaper story indicated the Cooke enterprises, including the Forum, were available for sale.

The story said Cooke's empire is "heavily mortgaged" and "what's more . . . he may be plotting right now to unload."

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1969 —PAGE 15

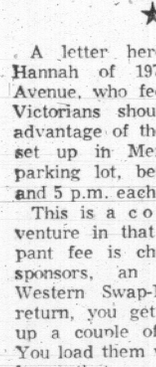
Arthur Mayse

For a start today, here is a concerned mother who recently caught her 14-year-old son smoking. Instead of blaming bad example, she asked the boy where he got his cigarettes.

"From pop bottles," he told her.

He then laid bare a nasty little racket that was old when his father was a pup.

Whenever he got a few returnable soft drink bottles together, he would take them to a little store near his school, and receive payment in cigarettes dealt from an opened pack.



The boy backed his declaration with the standard juvenile defence: "All the other kids do it!"

Enough of them, do, I learned from a Victoria City Police youth squad officer, to bring in periodic complaints from parents.

"We can't stop these under-the-counter sales," the policeman said. "But we find that when we go out and remind a store proprietor that sale of cigarettes to children under 16 is strictly illegal, complaints about that source of supply drop off."

Sometimes the obvious under-16 who draws police attention by smoking on the streets seems surprised.

"Why not?" he asks. "I'm allowed to smoke at home."

Any way you look at it, the cigarette problem is a toughie.

In our own battle to taper off, we're still on the hour-and-a-half-ration. With increasing frequency though, we find that we have gone as long as four hours without a cigarette.

Relapses? One backsliding ... mine ... to remind me that the battle's far from over.

★

A letter here from Ann Hannah of 1976 Oak Bay Avenue, who feels that more Victorians should be taking advantage of the flea market set up in Memorial Arena parking lot, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. each Saturday.

This is a commercial venture in that a $3 participant fee is charged by the sponsors, an outfit called Western Swap-Meet Ltd. In return, you get space to set up a couple of card tables. You load them with unwanted items that may prove to be some buyer's treasure.

The venture, Miss Hannah points out, was launched with seven stalls at the initial May 31 market, but last week the number was smaller.

This doesn't necessarily mean that pack-rat Victorians have parted with all the ... well, junk ... that they can bear to sell. As the flea market notion catches on, business may improve.

In fact, my dear one and I have been taking stock of certain assets that we might just manage to struggle along without.

Item: One lofty three-deck teapot, a desperation gift that we have never quite figured out.

Item: One pair of collapsible canvas water-buckets for camp use. You fill them, tote them a quarter-mile, then set them down. That's when they collapse.

Add a ventilated bone china toast cooler, half a car-jack and a steam iron that doesn't, and we've scarce skimmed the surface.

But getting back to the flea market, or "Swap-Meet Bazaar" if fancy we must be. Prospective shoppers are donged 25 cents admission, and even though the sum includes free parking, it could be keeping loot-seekers away.

★

While early-starting vegetable planters rejoice over the new spud and the swelling pea-pod, our late-planted crop is just beginning to struggle through the earth.

To further handicap our chances, we have decided along with many other Victoria gardeners that we are going to use no baneful insecticides this year.

Since Gordon Head is cursed with some of the most voracious leaf, stalk and root nibblers known to man, it could be a tough struggle.

However, oldtime gardeners did manage to function without sprays and dusts, and we're trying out one of their tricks. This is to plant your carrots between onion rows, and thus baffle the carrot fly with a stronger scent.

If it works, fine. And if it doesn't, at least we'll have plenty of onions!

Love's Labor Lost On Haida

By JOHN SLINGER

"Haida," said the reporter, addressing the young killer whale by its new name. "Haida, have you ever considered the birds and the bees?"

The whale cocked an eye curiously at its visitor, who continued: "What I'm getting at, Haida, is that some day, since you are a boy whale, you are going to have to give serious consideration to girl whales."

The 3,500-pound beast backed slightly into the cool waters of his pen at the Oak Bay Marina.

"Look, Haida," said the reporter a little desperately, "like it or not, some day s-e-x is going to rear its ugly head, know what I mean?"

The whale did a slow roll then let out a high-pitched wolf whistle that caused six seagulls sitting on nearby pilings to blush. He knew what the reporter meant.

Could Care Less

Right now the whale could care less. After all, he's only three years old and is much more concerned with herrings to eat than with other whales to love.

The problem, however, could arise in the future since the killer whale, in the words of the University of British Columbia's Dr. Paul Spong, is "the highest evolved species in the ocean."

Among ocean animals, his intelligence places him nearly in the position of man among land animals.

He could become subject to all the neurotic, psychotic and even romantic problems that man is subject to.

Dr. Spong, a psychologist with the university's psychiatry department, has been studying the behavior of killer whales.

Fired from Post

Last week he suggested Skana, the Vancouver Public Aquarium's killer whale, is an unhappy creature because of its alien environment. For this, he says, he was fired from a part-time position at the Aquarium.

Haida, on the other hand, "is a very lucky whale" and "is in beautiful shape."

This is because Haida is not in an enclosed concrete pen, but in an open pen with only a net at one end separating him from the open and natural life of the harbor.

Dr. Spong explained that the whale's sonar system — a high-pitched series of sounds that bounce off its surroundings and are picked up by sensitive hearing — is the equivalent of man's eyes.

In a concrete pen, the sounds echo and re-echo, producing the same confusion a man feels in a hall of mirrors.

Listen to Motors

With the open pen, Haida can listen to motor boats, the sounds of the harbor and even the voices of other killer whales passing in the distance.

He can have, said Spong, conversations with these passing whales and — who knows — might even whistle up a girl friend some day.

The need for that sort of affection, though, probably won't be felt for another three to four years, when the whale reaches maturity.

Nobody has yet decided what will be done then and Spong suggested that with good environment, diet and human care, Haida might pass into bachelorhood unknowing and happily uncaring.

Adjusted

Dr. Clifford Carl, provincial museum director, allowed as how the whale may feel some frustration.

"On the other hand, people exist in a similar situation."

All the authorities agree that there is insufficient information on the lives of killer whales to permit a prediction of what might happen and what might be needed.

But Oak Bay Marina president Bob Wright says, although "there are no brideships with a load of female killer whales" heading towards Sealand, and you "can't buy a whale at the drugstore," nevertheless, "if we need a cute little female killer whale to keep Haida happy, we'll set out in search of same."

The animal now seems "well adjusted and happy," but Wright says they're prepared to provide him with "a floating Garden of Eden" of that's what he wants.

FEW SCATTERED POSSESSIONS is all that was saved after fire destroyed house, barn and part of green house in $25,000 Central Saanich fire Tuesday afternoon. Contents from two rooms were saved but home owned by Dr. David Lott, a veterinarian, is a total loss. The burnt-out family is living with neighbors. The barn was on the left. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Health Dealer In Bankruptcy

By STEVE HUME

An American who sold at least 27 Victoria people $12,000 in merchandise which has not yet been delivered, has filed for personal bankruptcy in Vancouver, says the Victoria Better Business Bureau.

Including trade interests, a list of 61 creditors with approximately $17,000 outstanding has been received by the bureau from bankruptcy trustees McDonald, Currie and Co. of Vancouver, manager Bill Tyndall said today.

Personal bankruptcy papers are being filed in the name of Daniel Hardin, Tyndall reported. He said a hearing has been set for June 25.

Meanwhile, Canada Immigration has a warrant out for the arrest and deportation of Hardin to the United States.

APPEALS REJECTED

Vancouver-based Lyall Hawkins, director of immigration operations for the Pacific region, said in a telephone interview he has called for immediate execution of the warrant issued under his signature.

"Appeals on an original deportation order were rejected twice," Hawkins said.

He said, however, that Immigration would likely delay deportation orders until after the bankruptcy hearing in order to give creditors every possible chance to recoup some of their losses.

A man identifying himself as Daniel Hardin, sold the 27 Victorians $12,000 worth of equipment as a franchised representative of Niagara Cyclo-Massage through what he called the Van Isle Health Equipment Company, Tyndall said.

SEVERED RELATIONSHIP

He said Niagara-Cyclo Massage severed its relationship with Hardin in April, after which the man claimed to be representing his own company, which he called Van Isle Health Equipment.

People who paid for merchandise and never received it were apparently not the only losers, Tyndall said.

When ads offering $200 per week salaries plus commissions for sale representatives appeared in local newspapers, seven men quit their jobs to work under the man.

One of the stipulations was that individuals buy their own sales kits for $350 each.

When the operation folded the men were left unemployed, said Tyndall.

ORDERS TO BE FILLED

The Better Business Bureau manager urged that anyone else who has paid for such equipment and not had the order filled should contact him at 386-6348.

"Anyone who is a creditor and has not been contacted by the bankruptcy trustees should contact the Better Business Bureau," Tyndall said.

Ask The Times

Q. I understand there is a freighter which makes a week-long trip around Vancouver Island and carries passengers. I believe she is owned by a Vancouver company. Could you give me the name of the company and any other details?

D.L.M.

A. Northland Transportation of Vancouver used to operate the Tahsis Prince. She carried passengers but hit a reef off Estevan Point about a year ago. Since that time there has been no passenger service on freighters servicing the Island. Northland Transportation carries freight aboard its Northern No. 2 but she is not licensed to carry passengers.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

$25,000 DAMAGE IN FIRE

A quick-spreading fire caused an estimated $25,000 damage Tuesday afternoon in Central Saanich.

A house, large storage shed, and the ends of two greenhouses owned by Dr. David Lott, 6309 Old East Road, were gutted in a blaze at 1 p.m.

Central Saanich volunteer fire department was on the scene for six hours.

FAULTY WIRING

Cause of the fire is thought to be faulty electrical wiring. An investigator from the Vancouver fire marshall's office arrived today.

The fire started at the end of the house in a breezeway connecting it with the shed. Flames burned through the ceiling and spread to the rest of the property.

RETIRED

Dr. Lott, a retired veterinarian from Duncan, and his wife were home at the time and turned in the alarm. Most of their possessions were burned. The had lived there about a year. The house was insured.

A house about 150 feet away was not in danger, police said, because wind was light.

Water Crisis Feared

By JIM HUME

An overdue deep-sea freighter has precipitated Greater Victoria's worst-ever water crisis and posed the threat of a severe water shortage by August 1.

Members of the Greater Victoria Water District Board got the news this morning during an emergency meeting.

The wandering freighter, now 20 days overdue, is carrying special steel pipe to provide the vital link between Sooke Lake and the six-mile-long Sooke tunnel.

Board chairman Mayor Hugh Stephen told members that the arrival of the freighter and installation of the pipe before the end of July was "a most urgent problem."

"We have two billion gallons of water storage in the Goldstream watershed," he said. "To date we have used 400 million gallons of that. If the present useage rate continues we shall be down to virtually zero by August 1.

"We can justify pressure difficulties to the people, but it would be totally unacceptable to tell them we just couldn't deliver water."

The problems began some months ago when VMD placed an order for the steel-pipe link with an Australian firm.

Labor problems delayed departure of the vessel until April 20 and since that time the ship has wandered from port to port with growing delays.

Unlined Pipe to Be Installed

Finally scheduled to arrive in Vancouver on June 10 the ship is still in Los Angeles. After that it travels up the Pacific Coast calling at various ports including Seattle before arriving in Vancouver on June 27, some 18 days behind schedule.

With installation of the link between the lake and the tunnel imperative if the present dry weather continues the board this morning agreed to accept delivery of the pipe unlined and uncoated.

That means that sometime in the fall, after the rains return, the pipe will have to be taken up, cleaned and shipped to Vancouver for the necessary protective work to be carried out.

Chief water commissioner Ron Upward said it was unfortunately imperative that the board move immediately.

The Sooke Tunnel, built at a cost of millions, was constructed to eliminate such crises as the one now existing. With it in action Greater Victoria will have more water in storage than can be used.

Without it and without rain August 1 looms as the dry day of all time.

And it all hangs on a wandering freighter between Los Angeles and Vancouver. If she stays on schedule and gets the pipe into Victoria by June 28 temporary installation will eliminate the crisis.

If it doesn't householders will face the prospect of taps without water.

Ottawa Heeds Emergency, Lets Bombers Over Border

By PETE LOUDON

Two B-26 water bombers owned by private United States firms have received special permission to cross the border and were expected to go into action on British Columbia fire lines this afternoon.

W. C. "Cy" Phillips, head of the province's forest protection service, used the near-emergency fire situation to speed federal approval.

The B.C Forestry department said Tuesday that fires were popping up all over the province in an earlier-than-usual crisis situation.

Eight Avenger water bombers are under contract to the province as of July 1 but it was impossible to get them earlier because of spraying commitments in the Maritimes.

ONLY IN EMERGENCY

The province had been left with two Cansos. Efforts to bring in available planes from U.S. points had been stymied by Air Transport Commission regulations which would only permit them to cross the border in a national emergency.

Phillips said this morning the Air Transport Commission acted swiftly to clear the situation following publication of the dilemma in the Times Tuesday.

He said one of the air tankers was leaving Phoenix, Arizona, immediately for Kamloops where it would be pressed into service on arrival. It will remain on duty until the hazard abates.

W. C. PHILLIPS
... Ottawa answers appeal

Another air tanker was to come from an unstated point in Oregon. Socked in by weather early today its departure was expected soon.

"We hope it will arrive at Kamloops today. It is badly needed."

June is normally a damp month over much of B.C. but this year sun and warm temperatures have prevailed.

In a situation where one lightning storm can cause flurries of fires the forestry department was anticipating a severe situation.

The fire situation throughout B.C. worsened overnight. At noon today there were 133 forest fires burning, 40 of them new in the last 24 hours.

There are eight in the Vancouver forest district, six in Prince Rupert, six in Prince George, 17 in Kamloops, three in Nelson.

The fire lines have broadened to include 789 men and 67 units of equipment. Most of the fires are caused by people, but lightning is a growing nuisance.

Kamloops and Prince George areas are the most serverely affected.

PAIR ALL WET ON HANG-UP WITH SAILING

Mr. and Mrs. Ian Smart, 750 Pemberton, went for an unscheduled swim this morning.

Once a week they rent a 14-foot dinghy from Oak Bay Yachts for a little exercise and to "get the hang of sailing".

Sailing off Cattle Point, their dinghy was knocked down as they tacked out from shore and was caught in a 20-knot gust of wind.

By the time Oak Bay police arrived Ian and Margaret Smart were coming ashore, after swimming about 50 yards.

Both wore lifejackets, were unhurt, and eager for next week's session.

Strawberry Harvest Work Deplorable—Labor Chief

Conditions in the strawberry fields of the Saanich Peninsula are "deplorable," the president of the Victoria Labor Council said today.

"The council is concerned with exploitation of child labor," said Jack Groves.

He pointed out that trade unions in British Columbia, through the B.C. Federation of Labor, have presented briefs to the provincial government, urging that farm workers be included under employee-protection laws.

"We have got nowhere," he said. "The government has not seen fit to do anything about it. Possibly organization is one way to go about it but it is hard to organize, there is no steady work force."

Labor wanted farm workers covered by such statutes as the Labor Relations Act, the Minimum Wages Act, Hours of Work Act and Control of Employment of Children Act.

"It is not only that children are working, but the conditions," said Groves. "The hours they must put in regardless of what their capabilities are.

"I can't understand why the health department allows the sanitary conditions, toilets and washing conditions. There are no facilities for washing."

Groves said the labor council, which represents 70 unions with 13,000 members in the Victoria area, will be looking further into the situation.

The president of the Saanich Fruitgrowers' Association, J. D. Holloway, was not at home this morning for comment or reply.

It was learned from an association official that the suggested minimum pay rates, which can fluctuate, are 5 cents per pound for wine berries and 4 cents per pound for good strawberries.

The official thought a worker might make $5 a day if he didn't fool around. Some make $12 a day.

A Canada Manpower official, asked about his agency's role in recruiting workers, said manpower merely handles recruiting for the farm labor board, a federal-provincial board.

Canada Manpower, a federal government department, "has nothing to do with setting rates or conditions."

Manpower has about 360 persons registered who want to work in the fields, three-quarters of them school students who will be out of classes shortly. About 100 persons were picking today, with another 50 needed.

The Manpower official pointed out that farmers also recruit workers directly, and people go directly to the farms.

Children do work in the fields, usually with their parents.

Of the 360 persons manpower has on its books, most are 16 and 17 years old. There are a few aged 15, about three aged 14 and one 13-year-old, but those under 15 were usually of strong physical build.

Lumber Markup Shrinking

The falling price of lumber due to a slackening of export demand, presents a problem for building supply dealers even more pressing than indicated in a price survey Monday.

A spokesman for the B.C. Building Supply Dealers Association said prices quoted locally by B.C. Forest Products Ltd. failed to take 11 per cent federal sales tax into account.

This tax is normally hidden, but the mills do not include it because some of their domestic sales are to manufacturers such as sash and door makers, who then add the tax to their prices. This avoids double-taxation.

But the supply dealers are charged and their mark-up is thus narrowed from what was indicated Monday—about $28 for fir 2x4s —to $14.50 at one yard, or from $35 to $19.50 at another yard.

Prices are per thousand board feet, and haulage from mill to supply dealer adds about another $4 to this price, the spokesman said.

This could mean that when lumber at the lower mill price begins to be delivered, about the latter part of August, if stock at the old price is still unsold, dealers may be the losers.

Teen Girl Jailed

An 18-year-old girl described as "accustomed to manipulating people" was jailed Tuesday for 28 days on two charges of shoplifting.

Dianne L. May, of 574 Culduthel, earlier pleaded guilty.

She did not appear upset after Magistrate William Ostler gave her a stern lecture and then imposed the jail term.

"You have an insouciant, unconcerned attitude," he told her. "Your pre-sentence report indicates you don't care at all."

Miss May said she didn't agree with sections of the report calling her irresponsible and saying she wasn't worried about her bills. She said she did worry.

"It's about time you commence to worry about things a bit," said the magistrate. "There's no indication of it."

Prosecutor John Macintyre said it was one of the most negative reports he had seen.

HAVE WHEELCHAIR WILL TRAVEL

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — Paraplegic Greg Langley passed through here from California Monday in his wheelchair—hitch-hiking to Alaska.

Investigation by police showed he had made it from California to Mile O of the Alaska Highway in four days, with 1,100 miles still to go.

Morale Concern of Chaplains

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Joseph Cardy, Protestant chaplain-general of the Canadian Armed Forces, said Monday that military chaplains must be concerned about loss of morale in the forces.

Gen. Cardy, addressing 93 Protestant chaplains from military bases across Canada, said there is low morale among many servicemen and their families because of re-organization of the armed forces.

He said a recently-announced further reduction of the armed forces is contributing to the problem.

Dr. E. J. Bailey of Toronto, chairman of the Canadian Council of Churches committee on chaplains services, told the six-day annual conference that chaplains must be ministers first and military men second.

He said some church leaders want to abolish military chaplains because their position could result in possible conflict of roles and a lack of freedom to preach against all violence.

Dr. Bailey said that in the U.S. chaplains now are being criticized because some of them carry arms while serving in Vietnam. He said the controversy about the morality of the Vietnam war also fanned criticism of chaplains.

Dr. Bailey said chaplains must be prepared to tackle new social responsibilities, but warned delegates that this did not mean they were to become "agents of social change."

The conference ends Friday.

De Gaulle's Heir Faces Problems

By JOHN BRACKEN

LONDON (UPI) — Whoever proves victorious in the June 15 run-off presidential election in France—Georges Pompidou, the Gaullist, or Alain Poher, the Centrist—will come into an uncomfortable heritage.

Ever since this campaign started there has been a natural tendency not to face up to the economic problems which beset France. General Charles de Gaulle before he quit and the interim government since then have been unwilling to take the restrictive action which is clearly needed if the trade balance is to be improved.

The trade unions for their part have refrained from pressing their wage demands. They realize that any move by them would have been exploited politically by the Gaullists.

France's difficulties would have been eased if the German government had agreed to a revaluation of the Deutschmark.

As it is, the new French government will have to work on the assumption that the Deutschmark parity will not change at the very least until after the German elections later this year.

●

In the meantime the French unions will presumably be pushing their case for wage increases. The new president will thus have to meet a formidable challenge immediately on his accession.

There is still a possibility that the problem will be swept under the carpet once again for a few weeks if the Assembly were to be disssolved. But M. Poher has said that he will only dissolve the Assembly if forced to do so. M. Pompidou would of course be only too hpapy to work with the Gaullist majority.

In fact the odds are at this stage that this Assembly will remain in being. If M. Poher wins, the Gaullists in the Assembly—at any rate enough of them—might be perfectly content to support a government of the centre. If M. Pompidou cannot win the election they have nowhere else to go.

The real question is whether Frenchmen want Gaullism without de Gaulle. M. Pompidou has found himself in a position rather similar to and as difficult as that which Mr. Hubert Humphrey had to deal with when he ran for the American presidency.

Somehow the French candidate has to mobilize the adherents of the old order. Yet at the same time he must find ways of disassociating himself from those actions of the old regime which have caused its unpopularity.

Thus, whoever is elected, there are bound to be changes.

In Britain there has been a very natural tendency to pay most attention to what the two candidates have had to say on Europe and the prospect of British membership of the Common Market.

●

Judging by M. Pompidou's pronouncement he has swung back more closely to the Gaullist anti-British membership line.

His questioning of Britain's desire for membership was couched in terms which de Gaulle might have used himself. M. Poher, by contrast, makes much more welcoming noises though there should be no illusions about the determination with which any French government will fight for French interests, notably in the field of agriculture, in any talks with Britain.

For Frenchmen, though, internal questions will be decisive. And here M. Poher is holding out the promise of greater individual freedom and a presidency which will be less overbearing than that of the general. In practice M. Pompidou, too, would have to allow much greater say to the Assembly and his ministers than these have enjoyed for the past decade. But it is more difficult for him to say so now.

Above all, neither candidate can really make the one point which probably proved decisive in the rejection of the general, that "French glory" as conceived by him was a luxury which France cannot afford.

Incinerator Warning Given

Saanich council has warned residents to be careful with outdoor incinerators.

In a note to residents, council said the rapid population growth in the municipality has produced increasing concern over air pollution caused by backyard incinerators.

"Although open or garden incinerator burning is banned entirely in many municipalities, we feel that Saanich residents would rather avoid such drastic action by co-operating in the following manner:

"1. Please use your incinerator only for those materials which burn relatively quickly. Avoid burning of food scraps and smoke-producing garbage;

"2. Routine sorting of domestic waste material into that which burns easily, and disposal into garbage cans of those substances which are not satisfactory for burning, will greatly ease the problem.

"Weekly garbage collection has reduced the need to burn many materials which produce smoke.

"Domestic outdoor incinerators, when used properly and efficiently, need not create an annoyance to others."

Residents were also told that a fire department permit is required for all outdoor fires between April 1 and Oct. 31 of each year.

The municipality has also drawn to residents' attention the regulations covering garbage collection.

Cans must not exceed 3½ cubic feet, and must be made of galvanized steel with handles and free from holes and defects, accessible from the street. Kitchen waste must be drained and wrapped and garden waste, liquids and explosives are prohibited.

"The contractor has the right to refuse to make collection if the above requirements are not met," said engineer Neville Life.

Two regulation cans will be emptied on collection days, every week, and additional containers are charged at 25 cents each, paid at the time of collection.

Reject Change In Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons committee on the official languages bill decided Tuesday that the bill in no way makes life tougher for anybody in Canada who wants to speak a language other than English or French.

David Lewis (NDP—York South) and Rene Matte (Creditiste—Champlain) joined the Liberal members of he committee in beating an amendment proposed by Dr. Paul Yewchuk (PC—Athabasca). The vote was eight to two, Dr. Yewchuk's only support coming from Melvin McQuaid (PC—Cardigan).

Dr. Yewchuk wanted the bill to declare that the right to speak any other language "shall not be restricted in any way" and no restraint would be put upon "the natural development" of any such language. He also wanted the federal cabinet empowered to make agreements with any provincial government to facilitate and encourage this "natural development."

GUARANTEE

Lewis said the bill as it stands gives more protection to non-English, non-French minorities than the Yewchuk amendment. He was supported by Jean-Charles Cantin (L—Louis-Hebert), parliamentary assistant to Justice Minister John Turner.

The guarantee lay in clause 38, which protected privileges and customs, as well as rights and laws, relating to other languages.

After rejecting the amendment, the committee approved clause 38. It says nothing in the languages bill can be construed as affecting "any legal or customary right or privilege acquired or enjoyed" with respect to any other language. It applies to rights and privileges that may develop in the future as well as to those existing now.

The bill would make English and French the official languages of the federal administration and require the government to provide it services in both languages in bilingual districts. These will be areas in which there is an official language minority, either French or English, amounting to at least 10 per cent of he population.

PUNISHMENT

The committee meets again today.

Lewis said the bill should include a clause stating explicitly that nobody can be punished for offences against it by application of article 107 of the Criminal Code. This article provides for jail sentences of two years for the breaking of any federal statute that, like the languages bill, contains no penalty provisions of its own.

D. S. Thorson, associate deputy minister of justice, said he thinks it is impossible to draft a criminal charge against an individual in terms of the languages bill. He would discuss the matter with Turner, however.

The committee unanimously accepted an amendment by McQuaid that would require the languages commissioner to state his reasons any time he drops an investigation.

The bill designates the commissioner as the official who will supervise the administration of it when it becomes law.

It would authorize the commissioner to investigate complaints about alleged interference with or neglect of language rights. If he found in a particular case that the investigation did not need to be pursued, he could discontinue it at his discretion and would have to inform the person making the complaint of this decision.

COMMISSIONER ROLE

But the committee postponed a vote on another amendment by McQuaid, which would require the commissioner to tell the subject of the complaint what conclusions he has reached in cases where he had finished his investigation.

There has been considerable argument in committee over the commissioner's role. Thorson made the point that the commissioner will be purely an administrative official, with no powers other than to carry out investigations and report his findings and recommendations to the department concerned or, in more serious cases, to the cabinet.

Satisfied on this point, McQuaid withdrew an amendment that would have given any person who considered himself aggrieved by a report or recommendations of the commissioner 60 days in which to lodge an appeal with a superior court judge.

The inspection is open to the public.

CHESS MATES FIND HIM AN AWESOME ADVERSARY

Dan Scoones learned to play chess when he was 10 years old, but he didn't have anyone to play with.

So he bought himself a book of chess games and improved his play by following the moves of the grand masters.

When he was 11 he asked his parents to let him enter the B.C. junior chess championships being held in New Westminster. To their surprise, he won.

He also won when he was 12, and again when he was 13. He never lost a single game.

Daniel turned into a compulsive chess player. His family lived on Pender Island at the time, so he was always on the lookout for someone to play with.

"Every time I found someone to play chess with I would demand that he play with me the whole time we were together."

SCOONES
. . . learned from the masters

FOUR HOURS A DAY

His parents estimated he spent up to four hours a day during the summer just reading books where grand masters of chess describe their games, including the alternatives they were faced with and the decisions they finally made.

"I've got about 30 books now — I just bought two more today."

He's 16 now, and has just finished his first year at the University of Victoria, where he received first-class marks.

He lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Scoones at 790 Rogers, and has two sisters, Jane, 14, and Kate, 13.

Two weeks ago he became the youngest person ever to win the Victoria chess championship.

"There are a couple of players in Victoria who could have won it, but they weren't able to play because they had to work nights."

Dan finished high school two years sooner than most students, While attending school on Pender Island (the oldest operating school in B.C., it was built in 1902), he did grades one and two and six and seven in one year.

But he doesn't recommend skipping grades because "I always took a lot of raps from the other kids."

He intends to study physics and astronomy at Uvic, and after he gets his B.Sc he plans to continue at a graduate school, perhaps eventually teaching in university.

This summer he's earning his tuition driving a tree farmer and setting chokers for Scoones Bulldozing Ltd., his father's business.

PLAYS BY MAIL

He still plays chess at the Victoria Chess Club, and maintains a four-game set by correspondence with an acquaintance in West Vancouver.

He'd like to see more young people playing chess in junior and senior high school, and he doesn't think the game is too slow for his own generation, even if it did grow up watching television and eating in drive-in restaurants.

"Chess is a young man's game," he said.

Before the Magistrate

Norman R. Lund, 18, of 624 Battery, was put on probation for a year on a charge of theft.

He was ordered to post a $500 good behavior bond, surrender his driver's licence and prohibited from driving for six months.

He earlier pleaded guilty to taking a radio worth $49.50 from his classroom at Victoria senior secondary.

"It's an old and frequent story," said Magistrate William Ostler.

"People in your position insist on having an automobile which you can't afford to operate by legal means.

"It's unfortunate you take the chance of getting a criminal record when you steal to get something," he said.

A 14-year-old boy pleaded guilty to two charges of breaking and entering and theft and was remanded to Friday for sentence.

Court was told he took a .45 automatic hand gun and radio from a city house May 22 and a projector, radio, telephoto lens, camera and five tapes from an Oak Bay house May 24.

Magistrate Ostler expressed surprise at the youth's age and said he looked older.

"Perhaps his experience has aged him," he said.

They youth was earlier raised from juvenile court to face the charges.

Donald MacMurchie, 3194 Rutledge, was fined $400 for impaired driving.

THRUSH'S NEST STOPS BUILDER

MOLD, Wales (AP) — Their new £5,000 house won't be ready when realtor Gareth Shaw, 25, and school teacher Menna Owen, 24, get married this month. A thrush had laid three eggs in a nest just inside the front door.

Workers tiptoed away when they discovered the thrush and a construction company official said:

"There is an unwritten law in building never to disturb a bird's nest. I'm very sorry for Mr. Shaw but we will press on with his house when the birds leave."

"I was a bit choked when the builder told me," Shaw said. "But the birds are entitled to a home and to bring up a family as much as we are. It will mean finding an apartment for a month until the house is finished."

Correction Made By Deputy Chief

The Quadra Guest House, 3112 Quadra, damaged Saturday in a kitchen blaze, contains only three elderly persons, Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said Tuesday.

He told the Times Monday there were 12 persons in the home.

Several hundred dollars' damage was done when a deep fat fryer overheated and scorched the surrounding area.

To Build Line

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — MLA William Murray said Tuesday work would begin immediately on a 22.7-mile B.C. Hydro and Power Authority line to service Fort Simpson and Metlakatla. The line will cost about $565,000, most of which will come out of the government's rural electrification assistance fund.

Pot Bad, Booze Worse —Loffmark

Alcohol hurts society more than marijuana, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Tuesday.

Marijuana smoking is a worse problem than tobacco smoking, he added, "but not much."

He said in an interview "the greatest moral dilemma" facing the public today is the outlawing of marijuana.

Personally, he would advocate the outlawing of liquor and tobacco, "but prohibition rules in the United States didn't work, so there is no use me recommending it to the public when they wouldn't accept it."

The minister said people who claim the government is making a profit on liquor sales are wrong.

"There is no profit in liquor. The government makes no money. Revenues from liquor sales are about $50 million a year and the province's health bill is about $350 million. There is a terrible loss."

He said that at Riverview mental institution at Essondale, 500 out of 800 patients have suffered acute alcoholism.

"There are 13,000 children without proper home care and in a good many cases this is attributable to alcohol," Loffmark added.

The minister had veered to the subject of social problems while replying to a statement by Dr. Thomas Godwin at Royal Columbian Hospital, New Westminster.

The doctor said the lack of a proposed 25-bed intensive care unit at that hospital could swell the number of deaths there by about one each week or 50 a year.

Loffmark said the statement was neither "fair nor rational" and was "very thinly veiled demagoguery."

There will always be a need of new facilities and the problem is one of priorities. It was unfair to accuse the government of withholding money and thus causing deaths.

He added that the application from the hospital a 25-bed intensive care unit, was received by B.C. Hospital Service. May 26. It reached his desk last Monday.

He saud the government was prepared to accept the recommendations of its medical advisory board and predicted the project would proceed "in a matter of weeks or a month or so."

THEY'RE NOT QUACKS!

TORONTO (CP) — The general council of the Canadian Medical Association Tuesday refused to label chiropractors "quacks."

Dr. Roy le Riche, an Edmonton general practitioner, had proposed that an association committee investigate "health quackery and cultism" in Canada. He called chiropractors one kind of quack.

But the proposal was turned down after other members of the council, meeting during the CMA annual convention, said it would lead to witch-hunts.

Evans Officer In Command New to Post

SUBIC BAY, The Philippines (UPI) — The officer guiding the U.S. destroyer Frank E. Evans when it was cut in two by the Australian carrier Melbourne had been qualified formally for sea-going command for 10 days, the Evans' commander testified today.

Cmdr. Albert S. McLemore told a joint U.S.-Australian board investigating the June 3 collision that Lt. (J. G.) Ronald G. Ramsey, 24, of Long Beach, Calif., was on the bridge at the time.

McLemore said Ramsey had been standing officer of the deck watch four months but formal qualifications had become effective only 10 days before the collision which killed 74 Americans.

Ramsey had 20 months' experience aboard ship but no previous naval experience.

The captian said he went to bed shortly after midnight and was not awakened until the collision although he left standing orders to be notified of a change of station.

But he said that in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization exercise the ships were almost constantly changing course and speed so he told his men they need not awaken him during that period.

POMPIDOU HOLDS LEAD

PARIS (UPI) — The French Public Opinion Institute predicted today Gaullist Georges Pompidou will be elected president Sunday by a 55 per cent vote to 45 for interim president Alain Poher.

The poll, published in the afternoon newspapers France-Soir and Paris-Presse, showed that though Poher, 60, had recovered some ground, Pompidou still held an apparently unbeatable edge.

North Viets Hit 3 Bases

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces attacked three U.S. bases in the coastal lowlands south of Da Nang during the night, killing 14 Americans, wounding 68 and destroying or damaging some artillery guns, the U.S. command reported today. The Americans said 76 North Vietnamese were killed.

In the heaviest attack, North Vietnamese sappers armed with flame throwers and dynamite bombs blasted their way into an American artillery base in foothills 30 miles south of Da Nang. Eleven Americans were killed and 32 wounded in hand-to-hand fighting.

MILITANT POLICE 'OMINOUS'

WASHINGTON (AP) — New militancy among police "has obvious and ominous implications" for the racial situation and the future character of all forms of group protest in the United States, a report to the National Commission on Violence said Tuesday.

The study, a treatise on anti-war and student protests, black and white militancy, and police response, is the latest in a series published without comment by the commission. The study was directed by Jerome H. Solnick, of the University of California, San Diego.

Without commitment to massive and widespread political and social reform, the study said, the U.S. "will develop into a society of garrison cities where order is enforced without due process of law and without consent of the governed."

The policeman in America, the report said, "is overworked, undertrained, underpaid and undereducated." And, added the report, his difficulties are compounded by a view that is expounded at all law enforcement levels from the director of the FBI to the patrolman on the beat.

Room for Pubs In NDP Policy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opposition leader Tom Berger said Tuesday the New Democratic Party is ready to fight both the hotel monopoly and the bartenders' union to get neighborhood pubs established in British Columbia.

Mr. Berger, referring to a recent newspaper advertisement by the Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders' International Union saying it is against neighborhood pubs and the selling of beer in supermarkets, said "this is a political issue."

He told a meeting at suburban Burnaby Central High School the only people who will be glad to read the advertisement will be the hotel monopoly.

"We in the NDP intend to carry on the fight for neighborhood pubs," Mr. Berger said. "We mean to reform liquor laws—to give free enterprise a chance."

The opposition leader said the NDP would allow responsible citizens to open pubs and "many of them will be bartenders and waiters who don't want to work for the hotels all their life."

B.C. beer parlors are "beer factories" with the object of getting customers to drink as much as they can as fast as possible, he told the public meeting.

"Anyone who has been in an English pub doesn't ever want to see the inside of a beer parlor again."

Conceit Costs Fugitive His Freedom

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — A prison escaper's vanity and a tracking dog's nose were credited with the fugitive's capture during the weekend.

Police said Edwurd Douglas Lebarron, 37, of Stoughton, Sask., was captured Saturday night, eight days after he escaped from the Saskatchewan penitentiary farm camp where he had been serving a 2½-year sentence for breaking and entering.

Lebarron asked for food at a home in the Duck Lake region 35 miles south of here. He also made the mistake of asking the woman of the house if she recognized his face from television broadcasts.

The woman, who was not identified, said she hadn't, but she called the police.

A tracking dog led police from the house to where Lebarron was hiding nearby.

Alderman's Remarks Net Sharp Response

DUNCAN — Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce responded sharply today to "unwarranted and irresponsible" remarks made by Ald. Martin Lukaitis at Monday's council meeting.

Lukaitis said "for a group of men, supposedly leaders of the community, the chamber doesn't seem to have the ability to handle their affairs."

The comment came as council rebuffed a request for $500 to $600 to staff the tourist information bureau which the chamber says it cannot afford to do this year without financial assistance.

Dick McEwan, publicity director for the chamber, said the alderman's further remarks that the chamber has not shown interest or concern in the operation of the tourist bureau "is a complete denial of the facts."

"They are well aware that individual chambers or tourist bureaus do not receive direct grants from the provincial government; that money for tourist promotion is allocated to the local cities and municipalities for promotion of their areas."

McEwan said it is of concern to the chamber that the 1969 increase in the per capita grant received by the city amounted to about $12,000, a portion of which was to go to tourist promotion.

"The city has not seen fit to increase its grant towards the tourist bureau for this year," he said. "The provincial government has expressed concern that the local governments are not spending enough of their increased grants on tourism."

McEwan said tourism is only a small part of chamber activity and many members are not directly connected with it.

"To expect them to finance completely the promotion of this, the second largest industry in the province, is irresponsible."

As an emergency measure the chamber has assessed its members 10 per cent of their dues in order to open the bureau. Several offers to run part of the bureau premises as a gift shop was turned down. "The bureau should operate as a public service centre, not a commercial enterprise, McEwan said.

"Alderman Lukaitis is shirking a duty to the citizens of Duncan in trying to shift responsibility for promotion of the second largest industry on to a limited few when all benefit."

Minister Will Get 'Concrete' Problem

DUNCAN — A meeting between Cowichan District Hospital Board and Health Minister Ralph Loffmark to discuss construction of an extended care unit for the hospital will take place June 16.

John Hulbert, a hospital board official, said discussions would take place regarding the board's demand for a concrete construction extended care unit adjacent to the present hospital.

Disagreement with British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service and the board has been going on for nearly two years over the style of building construction. BCHIS wants a wooden building.

Meanwhile, completion of rooms within the present hospital to accommodate 17 welfare patients from Mary Moore Hospital has been held up.

The Cobble Hill Salvation Army Hospital closes June 30 and the hospital here had promised to take the patients.

The board said construction on the rooms would not continue until definite word was received from BCHIS that the extended care unit could proceed.

Rogers Seeking Nomination

DUNCAN — Pat Rogers, 31, of Duncan, today became the second person to seek the nomination of the Social Credit party for Cowichan-Malahat constituency.

The seat is currently held by Robert Strachan, former party leader of the New Democratic Party. The other Social Credit candidate is Dr. Charles Ennals, a former Oak Bay resident, who will contest the nomination at a June 23 convention.

Rogers has been active in numerous clubs and organizations and recently received a plaque from the city of Duncan for contribution of efforts toward recreation.

He moved to Duncan eight years ago as circulation manager for Victoria Press Ltd. He is presently chairman of the Duncan Social Credit Action Committee.

No stranger to politics, he ran against Strachan in 1966, polling 41.84 per cent of the popular vote to 52.08 for Strachan.

She's a Housewife In Middle of Ocean

MAPLE BAY — Diana Drummond prefers being a tugboat wife to being a housewife.

"It's so different," she said.

"On weekends I never know where we will be docked because we are travelling all the time. We cruise around the Sansum Narrows and go to Salt Spring Island or Mill Bay."

Mr. and Mrs. James Drummond purchased their tugboat in August last year and moved in a month later. The vessel was built in 1917 and measures 73 feet by 18 feet.

It includes a galley, living room, four staterooms, wheelhouse and a walk-in freezer.

Drummond, a shipwright by trade, has been busy renovating their home to suit their requirements.

"My diesel stove has bars around it, so when a gust of wind comes and rocks the boat, my utensils don't go flying off onto the floor," said Mrs. Drummond.

"Many times our neighbors, who also own a tug, my husband and myself will just be standing around and decide to take a cruise. So we just up anchor and off we go," she said.

But tugboat life is not all cruises and adventures on the seas, and this tugwife has to swab the decks, "at least once a week."

"We do not have hot water on the boat, and by the time I've heated enough water to do the breakfast dishes, my husband and our two boarders are back for lunch," Mrs. Drummond said.

When asked for further examples of how some of the housework on a tug differs, she replied:

"For instance, I find it amusing when I am baking and my husband will come home and decide to take a cruise — there I am, finishing my baking in the middle of the ocean!"

OVER-COUNTER DRUG SALES ABUSED

NANAIMO (CP) — Gibb Henderson, executive secretary of the Pharmaceutical Association of British Columbia, said here Tuesday over-the-counter drugs must be placed under tighter control in drug stores.

Henderson told 150 delegates at an association convention that drugs should be located close to the normal working area of pharmacists.

Over-the-counter drugs are those sold only in drug stores and without a prescription.

The association's education committee described drug abuse as "a form of Russian roulette — with too many chambers loaded to make the risk attractive."

The committee report noted changing values in society but clearly pointed out that drug experimentation for kicks is dangerous.

Congested Harbor Blamed For Ship Striking Dock

CHEMAINUS — MacMillan Bloedel today blamed congested conditions in Chemainus Harbor for $20,000 in damage caused when the Scanscot freighter Firmland struck their lumber loading wharf.

Plant engineer Godfrey Rice said the damage to 4,000 feet at the northeast corner of the dock affected pilings and underwater bracing which could be repaired from above.

No loading was delayed and no damage was sustained to the fully-automated, 20,000-ton freighter which leaves tonight.

Rice said no blame was laid to the captain. Limited access due to congestion by fishing boats and pleasure craft plus a tidal condition make it difficult for the huge ship to swing into the dock.

Repairs to the dock will start next week, he said.

"With all the congestion in this harbor now, I can't imagine how we will cope with the freighters of the future.

"If we ever needed a breakwater to accommodate the small boats, it's right now."

TEEN-AGER DROWNS WHEN TUBE BURSTS

COURTENAY (CP)—Kenneth Smiley, 16, is missing and presumed drowned after an inner tube on which he was floating Tuesday collapsed in the Courtenay River.

A companion, Robert Orr, of Comox, made his way safely to short but Smiley was washed under a cement barge.

Divers are attempting to recover the body.

Opium Charge Dismissed

Two youths have been committed for trial in Nanaimo on charges of illegal possession of drugs and charges against a third have been withdrawn.

Rudyard Perry, 19, of Lantzville and Lyle Sewell, 18, of Nanoose, will go to trial July 9.

A charge of possession of opium was withdrawn Tusday when Christopher Kenneth Thaell, 18, appeared in magistate's court. The three were arrested May 23 during an illegal drug roundup by RCMP.

Crown counsel Hugh Heath told Magistrate Stan Wardill that RCMP laboratory analysts in Vancouver were unable to identify the substance thought to be opium, found in Thaell's possession.

He said when Thaell was arrested May 23, two plastic bags containing a brownish substance and pills were found on the premises.

A WARM DEED FOR THE RED CROSS

Who says crochet needles are just for girls? Not the students of Margaret Jenkins School. When a number of them decided to make afghans for the Red Cross, the boys joined in and were just as quick as the girls at picking up the technique. Two classes, one Grade VI and the other Grade VII, became deeply involved in the project, buying their own wool when the boxes provided by Red Cross were finished, working on their squares whenever thew have a free minute. So far 16 afghans have been assembled. Taking advantage of the warm weather to work outside are: front row, from left, Elizabeth Modshaw, Anna Marie Rocha, Kathleen Alexander and Gloria Fair; back row, from left, Kelvin Woodward, Fraser Ramsay, Wayne Woodward and Brian Campbell.

Child Models Get Sound Training Plus Money for Future Education

SCOTSTOWN, Que. (CP) — Some people believe that the tough competitive fashion world is no place for children, but one mother of five who have made it just by looking scrubbed and appealing believes otherwise.

Sheila Gilbert of Scotstown is so convinced that modelling is sound training and good discipline that all her offspring, aged four to 14, are under contract with a Montreal agency.

"At one point people said, 'They're going to be spoiled,'" Mrs. Gilbert said in an interview. "Not at all. No photographer will stand for a bunch of nonsense. He wouldn't call the children back again."

With the exception of the eldest daughter Pixie, all the Gilbert children have been doing fashion shows, television commercials and magazine layouts since they were old enough to sit up.

Professionalism took over the household when Pixie was three years old.

A friend suggested to Mrs. Gilbert that her youngster might possibly be a good model. This led to inquirie about such work at several agencies.

"All of the places that I called suggested that I send in pictures of her and wait. Then I called the Montreal agency and they said they wanted to see her. So I brought her to the agency and we were in right away."

THEY'RE PHOTOGENIC

After the first success each addition to the family has been introduced to the agency at the age of six months and has been promptly signed up.

"I would just go along and say here's another one," says the mother.

Being at ease before a battery of lights and cameras comes naturally to the Gilberts. Before her marriage Mrs. Gilbert acted with the Montreal Repertory Theatre. She also taught nursery school for four of five years and now is managing to combine both—acting and nursery.

When Pixie began her career Mrs. Gilbert would go along with her and soon was working as an extra in films and photographs. Now she also teaches singing in the high school in this Eastern Townships community near Sherbrooke, 90 miles east of Montreal, and coaches her four-year-old daughter Jennifer, too young to attend regular classes.

But her greatest ambition is to have a musical family group. The components are ready—Pixie plays the guitar, Jamie, 11, the drums, John, 9, the piano, and Sammy, 13, sings.

Meanwhile, the children are modelling and earning money which goes into bonds for their future education.

Jamie, flaxen-haired with expressive blue eyes, is described by his mother as "the super-actor" and "the biggest ham," and wants to continue stage work when he grows up.

Nut Roast May Replace Sunday Meat Loaf

Cooks, be they daily or weekend chefs, have been eyeing recent headlines on soaring beef prices with feelings akin to disbelief.

What will happen, they ask, when a simple roast becomes too expensive for Sunday dinner, or even a pound of hamburger in a meat loaf strains the budget?

For those who are conscious of the need for proteins in the diet but desire an alternative to meat, here are six recipes supplied by Rest Haven Hospital's dietition, Mrs. Eva Purcell.

High protein foods like nuts, eggs and cheese have been used to make loafs, burgers and omelets.

Comparative prices for similar weights of meat and nuts show that nuts are less expensive. At a local food store, walnuts are selling at 89 cents a pound and ground round, which when cooked will not result in noticeable quantity shrinkage, is $1.19 a pound. Used in the various loaf and burger recipes, the nuts appear to be a better buy.

A possible exception is the Cashew Nut Loaf which uses an admittedly expensive nut at 35 cents for four ounces. However, substitutes can be used.

These recipes serve from eight to 10.

SAVORY NUT ROAST

One cup celery; 2 cups fresh whole wheat bread crumbs; ¼ cup parsley; 2 eggs; ⅝ cup nutmeats chopped fine; ½ lemon juice; ¼ cup onion cut fine; ½ cup tomatoes; 2 tbsps. melted butter; 1 tsp. salt.

Mix the ingredients together and bake the mixture in a well buttered dish in a moderate oven. Serve with tomato sauce. A can of tomato soup, when heated, makes a good sauce for this roast.

CASHEW NUT LOAF

Two cups raw cashews, ground; 2 onions minced and browned in; 3 tbsps. oil; 1 cup bread crumbs; 2 cups rich milk; 2 tsps. Marmite; 1¼ teaspoons salt; 1 tbsp. minced parsley; 1 tbsp. chicken flavouring; 1 tbsp. brewers yeast; 1 tsp. paprika; 1 tbsp. (heaping) flour.

Combine all and bake in 350 degrees F. oven. Serve with mushroom gravy.

LENTIL LOAF

Three cups lentils cooked and drained; 1 medium onion, minced; 1½ cups ground walnuts; 1 egg; 3 cups canned milk; 3¾ cups cornflakes; 1½ cups oil.

Combine and bake till done. Serve with tomato gravy.

SAVORY OMELET

Four eggs; ¼ cup milk; salt; ½ cup mashed potatoes; ½ cup cottage cheese; 1 tbsp. oil.

Separate eggs. Beat yolks, add milk, salt, potatoes, cottage cheese, and oil. Fold in stiffly beaten whites. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 25 minutes or until firm to the touch.

ROLLED OAT BURGER

Two eggs, well beaten; 1 cup rolled oats, raw; 1 cup finely ground walnuts; 1 medium onion, minced; 6 tbsps. canned milk; Salt to taste; Sugar to taste.

Beat eggs. Combine with rest of ingredients. Drop from spoon to form small patties. Brown on both sides in hot shortening. Place in bake pan and cover with Marmite water. Simmer for 45 minutes to one hour in oven. Serve with brown gravy.

COTTAGE CHEESE LOAF

One lb. cottage cheese; 3 eggs, well beaten; 1 onion, medium, minced and sauted in; 3 tbsps. margarine; 1 cup bread crumbs; 1 tsp. Marmite; 1 tsp. thyme or 1 tsp. sage or chicken flavoring.

Mix all ingredients together and bake in moderate oven till well done. Serve with brown gravy.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Search for Shade Leads to Discovery

By PENNY SAVER

The bright sidewalk stretched before me, almost unbroken by pools of shade. The sun had just begun to drop from the sky and I had gratefully followed the shady side of the street all the way; but now the tall buildings were giving out to low, one-storey offices and long stretches of stored lumber and concrete pipes. I paused by the last tall building to catch my cool before continuing, and was trapped by the honest-to-goodness spinning wheel outside a shop I had never noticed before.

The inside of the store was dark and deep and looked even cooler than the street, so I walked in and began to browse. What fun! The first thing I saw when my eyes adjusted was a pair of Arabian shoes made of hard, hard leather with toes that curled. Across from these was an engraving machine. While I was wondering if it actually worked, the proprietor came up and asked if he could help. Soon we were chatting like old friends.

He explained that the name for his stock is "primitives," and that a primitive could be described as a not-so-old and not-so-pretty antique. "You might also say they were antiques for people who can't afford antiques," he added with a smile.

More than most antique stores, this shop full of primitives is a living record of Victoria's history. "All my stock comes from Victoria. People know me now and they bring me things; things that people living in Victoria bought and brought with them." These items can range from complicated machinery such as the engraving machine (which he told me does indeed seem to be in perfect working condition), a lacquered trunk that once carried the belongings of a Chinese coming to work on the railways and even a Nootka hat quite clean and new, but made in the traditional manner.

Green Glass and Silver

It would be a mistake to think that all the things in this shop are ugly. I saw an adorable little perfume bottle for $15. This is hand-blown of green glass and the stopper is still intact—in fact I couldn't see a chip or mar anywhere on the bottle. The glass is covered in swirls of sterling silver—but this is not a painted-on silver that fades quickly and tarnishes her silver at least a sixteenth of an inch thick that would stand on its own if the glass were removed. There are still the faint tracings of a design that was once worked into the swirls.

One piece of Victoria's history I saw was the processional cross from the old St. John's Church, known as the Iron Church. This brass (I think it is brass from the color) crucifix is $35.

And there was the 1806 New Map of England, Wales and Part of Scotland. Made of paper mounted on heavy linen, it shows principal towns and their distance from London, market towns and main roads. It is $10.

Then there are books: A monster volume on the 1893 World Fair at Chicago, a book of lithographed illustrations for some of Shakespeare's plays, an 1887 regulations manual for the militia, and many more. Also old postcards of Victoria showing what tourists saw way-back-when.

There are oddments like the horses and betting papers for a shipboard horse race game; an old magic lantern (a stereopticon) with two boxes of slides on anthropology from the University of Alberta extension department; mortar, pestle, cutters and so forth from a Chinese chemist's shop; strap-on skates; jewelry; coins—the list is endless and always changing.

If you would like to drop into this store and browse, please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. for the location.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Needs the Help

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were not getting along at all well together, so we went to a marriage counsellor. He said we ought to straighten ourselves out, and suggested we go to a psychiatrist.

Well, the psychiatrist listened to us, and said he didn't think we needed psychiatry, we needed to work out our marital problems, so we went back to this marriage counsellor.

He talked us to a while and then said we just weren't right for each other, and we never should have gotten married in the first place. (Wasn't that helpful?). We've been married for nine years, have three children and think our marriage is worth saving. What do you suggest?—Pillar to Post.

DEAR PILLAR: I don't know what kind of "marriage counsellor" you went to, but he needs to straighten himself out. Ask the psychiatrist who told you to see a marriage counsellor to recommend one.

DEAR ABBY: What can be done about people who keep touching you when they talk to you? This irritates me no end. Even though I may like that person very much, I feel so resentful when they poke, nudge and hit me to emphasize some point in their conversation. (Oddly enough, more women are guilty of this than men.)

I realize that the toucher probably doesn't even realize she is doing it at the time, but this is of little comfort to me. Is there some diplomatic way to put a stop to it, or must I give up my friendship with such a person?—Poked in Manhattan.

DEAR POKED: There is no way to defend yourself against the annoyance of compulsive touchers, pokers or nudgers. Either keep out of their reach or stay out of their company altogether.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the mother who complained about her daughter putting a picture of her father in the laundry room on top of the water tank:

I have a framed photograph of my husband on the shelf in my laundry room. It seems I spend more time there than anywhere else as we have four small children — two years old, a year old, and twins who are two months old.

My husband was killed recently and during the day when I am snowed under doing diapers I like to look at his picture and remember the love that created these tiny wonders of ours. Sincerely, Christine

ATOMIC PACER SUCCESS

WASHINGTON (WP) — The world's first atomic-powered heart pacemaker—designed to trigger a steady heartbeat for at least 10 years—has been successfully implanted in a dog, the Atomic Energy Commission announced Tuesday.

In its announcement, the AEC termed this "a major milestone in pacemaker technology" which can help the 5,000 Americans a year who need help in maintaining a steady heartbeat.

Scientists at the National Heart Institute and the AEC plan tests on eight to 10 more dogs during the next eight months. They plan to use the pacemaker, which weighs 3-½ ounces and is about two-thirds the size of a cigarette pack, on a human some time in 1971.

PPCLI Vet Dies At 80 Years

One of the original members of the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry Regiment died in Veterans' Hospital Monday at the age of 80.

Lt.-Col. James Nesbit Edgar, 736 Falkland, joined the PPCLI when the regiment was formed in August, 1914, and was commissioned in June, 1916. He rose to the rank of major during the First World War and, as a captain, commanded the regiment in bitter fighting at Tilloy in 1918.

He was wounded twice.

On the re-organization of the regiment as a permanent force, he was accepted as a captain and, in 1937, promoted to major.

He was second-in-command when the regiment went overseas in 1939.

From 1940, he commanded the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment until he was appointed to command the Patricias.

In 1941, he returned to Canada to take up staff appointments, retiring as lieutenant-colonel in 1941 after 31 years of service.

He is survived by his wife Edith; a daughter, Mrs. William (Joan) Bishop of Calgary, and a son, David of Vancouver. There are three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2:30 p.m. in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay. Rev. C. D. Blencoe will officiate. Cremation will follow.

Tax Slice Of Income Too High

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer) said Tuesday all levels of government combined now take 47 per cent of income from the pockets of Canadian taxpayers.

Speaking during Commons debate on the June 3 budget, Mr. Thompson said that in 1968 Canadians earned $50,628,000,000. Of this, federal, provincial and municipal taxation took $24,200,00,00, just over 47 per cent.

"The percentage of income of Canadians required by government has reached dangerously high levels," the former Social Credit leader said.

"Historically, no free society has survived when the amount of its citizens' income has passed 50 per cent. We are moving continually and continuously nearer that mark."

Mr. Thompson said Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget does nothing to reverse this trend.

Regiment Commander Killed in Fall

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Lt.-Col. G. J. Martin, 37, of Calgary, commander of the Fort Garry horse armored regiment, was killed Monday in a fall while descending Mount Worthington, named for the founder of the regiment.

A Canadian forces spokesman said Lt. Col. Martin was moving along a cliff edge about 2-3 down the 7,500-foot mountain when a portion broke away. He fell 450 feet.

His body was recovered by other members of the expedition, which had climbed the peak to install a plaque honoring the late Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, who founded the regiment and commanded it during the Second World War. The peak was named shortly after his death in 1967.

Beauty Advice

". . . I have never yet seen a finer method of improving the complexion. Wrinkles are smoothed, dryness is checked, blemishes vanish and the skin takes on a healthy, youthful look . . ." (Extract from a report by Margaret Merril suggesting the use of the moist tropical oil of Olay as a powder base.) Most druggists are now able to obtain supplies of this oil which gives glorious loveliness to the skin.

Library Budget Cut to Bone

In a desperate effort to balance its budget Tuesday the Greater Victoria Library Board slashed its 1969 book purchasing budget to the bone—from $70,000 to $16,155.

The four-fifths cutback was forced by Saanich's refusal to pay its per capita grant on 1968 estimated census figures. The municipality voted the levy be based on 1966 figures, forcing the other four municipalities involved to follow suit and causing a $28,000 loss of revenue.

At the special meeting, chairman Ald. Frances Elford said the decision to reduce the book-budget was "a step backwards."

In an effort to recoup their losses board members voted to spend $40,000 of its $47,000 provincial grant toward the purchase of books.

Ald. Alan Newberry warned that the provincial grant is not designed to fill the gap left by municipalities but is primarily for the building of new libraries.

Another casualty of the budget-paring was the branch library originally planned to be built in Oak Bay in 1970. The sum of $15,000 reserved for the Oak Bay branch had to be applied to the operating budget.

Chairman of the finance committee Ald. Arthur Cuthbert said it may be 1971 before the board can reconsider any additional services.

The finance committee brought in a total budget of $603,808, compared to the original proposed budget of $66,627.

Other cuts made to help hold the line included $3,590 less for supplies and equipment, and $4,600 less for alterations, repairs, furniture and fixtures.

Ald. Newberry said the board "faced grave times" and that a new provincial library financing formula had to be found.

The trustees' division of the B.C. Library Association had presented a brief to the government asking an increase in the 18½ cents per-capita grant, the second-lowest rate in Canada.

The board has also asked the Intermunicipal Committee to sanction a survey designed to assess whether the library is overstaffed and whether operating methods can be improved.

FP President Dies of Cancer

WINNIPEG (CP) — John Sifton, president of Winnipeg Free Press and FP Publications Ltd., died Tuesday in a Los Angeles hospital.

The 43-year-old newspaper executive had fought a long battle with throat cancer and had spent much of the winter in California.

Arrangements for a funeral in Winnipeg were to be announced later.

After serving in the Canadian Army from 1943 to 1945, Mr. Sifton, a corporal, joined The Canadian Press, the national news-gathering co-operative.

In 1947, he began studies of economics and history at United College in Winnipeg and Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

Mr. Sifton worked at Brockville Recorder and Times in Ontario, then joined The Free Press as a reporter covering general assignments, sports and the provincial legislature.

Friendly, informal and often given to casual dress at the office, Mr. Sifton took over several executive posts in April, 1961, after the death of his father, Victor Sifton.

MAJOR SHAREHOLDER

He was a director of Sun Publishing Co. Ltd. of Vancouver, the Toronto Globe and Mail and several other companies. Mr. Sifton was a major shareholder in FP Publications, formed in 1959 by six dailies and one weekly.

Prominent as a horseman and breeder, he participated in jumping events across the continent.

His life-long ambition had been to raise a Kentucky Derby winner and his Stonacres Farm at Oak Bank, 20 miles northeast of Winnipeg, stabled hunters, jumpers and race horses.

He also operated Clearview Stables at Hamel, Minn.

Mr. Sifton was a director and past-president of the Assiniboia Downs Turf Club, a director of the Canadian Horse Show Association and founder of the annual Winnipeg Benefit Horse Show.

Politically, the native of Aurora, Ont., described himself as a "small-l Liberal" who did not always vote for the Liberal party, traditionally supported by The Free Press.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Victor Sifton of Brockville; his wife, June; a son, Victor John; another son, Graeme Dailey Sifton by his first marriage; two sisters, Caroline Sifton and Mrs. J. C. Price of Winnipeg.

Arsonist Remanded For Sentence

George B. Bruce, 43, of 5013 Cordova Bay Road, pleaded guilty in central court Tuesday to two charges of arson and was remanded to June 18 for sentence.

The charges were laid after a blaze destroyed two houses at his address last week. They belonged to Mrs. J. P. Rica Bruce, his then common-law wife.

Det. John Stone said Bruce was arrested at the scene and asked if he lived there.

He replied "Yes, and I burned them too."

When asked why he said it was hard to explain and "you'll use it against me so I won't tell you."

The detetcive said Bruce told them he used paper and matches to set the fires.

Damage to the two houses was given as $15,000 plus $1,500 and $100 amounts to two adjoining properties.

A pre-sentence report is being prepared.

Rites Today For Prominent Group Worker

Funeral services were held today for one of Victoria's leading community workers.

Mrs. Margaret L. Wright, 3030 Devon, died Saturday at the age of 58.

Mrs. Wright had taken an active part in community affairs since her arrival here in 1937 for her marriage to Dr. Kenneth O. Wright, director of the Domminion Astrophysical Observatory.

She was born and educated in Toronto, graduating from the University of Toronto.

A Y worker in St. Thomas, St. Catharines and Ottawa prior to her marrigae, Mrs. Wright never lost her interests in Y activities. She was president of the YWCA from 1960 to 1961 and was president of the YM-YWCA when the cornerstone of the new building was laid in 1964.

She was residential chairman of the United Appeal, a former president of the University Extension Association, president of the First United Church Women and president of the University Women's Club.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Wright is survived by her daughter, Mrs. R. (Nora) Osborn of London, Eng.; and her mother, Mrs. F. B. Sharp of Victoria.

Funeral services were held in McCall Bros. Floral Chapel, Rev. R. J. D. Morris officiated.

Victorian Still in Game

A Victoria man is among 153 contestants still in the running for the $100,00 grand prize in this month's Montreal voluntary tax draw.

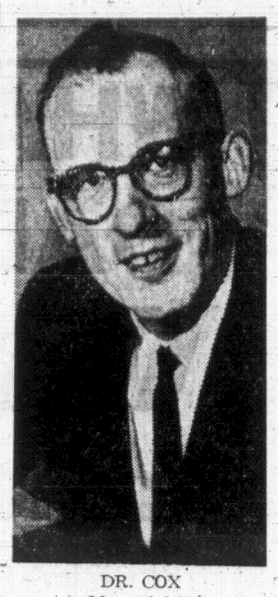
Henry Roach, 970 Burnside, is one of four British Columbians left after the preliminary draw.

The finalists will have the amount of their winnings determined in another draw in Montreal Sunday.

The voluntary tax draw has been ruled a lottery by the Quebec Court of Appeal but the city has appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau initiated the lottery April 3, 1968 in an effort to raise $28 million to meet an anticipated municipal debt.

Anyone purchasing a $2 ticket is eligible for the draw with prizes totalling $180,00 in silver ingots. Winners must answer simple questions to collect their prizes.



DR. COX
. . . to Memorial University

City Native New Faculty Chairman

Victoria-born Dr. Albert Cox will become chairman of the new faculty of medicine at Memorial University, St. John's, Nfld. Aug. 1.

The 41-year-old cardiologist and heart disease researcher was recommended for the post by an international selection committee established by the university.

Son of Reginald Cox, 1462 Fort, Dr. Cox attended Central Junior and Victoria High Schools, and is a graduate of Victoria College and the University of British Columbia.

While assistant professor at UBC's school of medicine, he received a medical fellowship worth $50,000 over five years from the Canadian Life Insurance Association.

In 1956 Dr. Cox was awarded a British Council scholarship to promote wider knowledge of the United Kingdom and spent a year at the post-graduate medical school, Hammersmith Hospital, in London, Eng.

A brother, Dr. Gordon Cox, lives at 1768 Glastonbury.

Police Dog Locates Man

DUNCAN — Jock McPherson, 75, is resting comfortably in Cowichan district hospital taday after being found by a police dog lying in a ditch 100 yards from his home at Lakeview Rest Home.

An earlier RCMP search was without success so the dog and its handler were calledin from Nanaimo. The man was found at 2:10 a.m. He had wnadered away Tuesday afternoon.

Ex-PR Man Dies In Hospital

Morley Collins, former manager of public relations for the B.C. Electric on Vancouver Island, died early today in St. Joseph's Hospital.

He was 54.

Born at Winnipeg in 1915, Collins began his newspaper career with The Graphic at Portage La Prairie, Man. in 1932. From 1937 to 1942 he was managing editor, and correspondent for the Winnipeg Tribune.

After service with the RCAF, he worked for the O'Brien Advertising Co. in Vancouver from 1945 to 1947, then joined the B.C. Electric public information department.

In 1949 he came to Victoria as public relations assistant and in 1950 was appointed manager of public relations for Vancouver Island.

He retired for health reasons in 1961.

Collins is survived by his widow, Kathleen, at their home at 141 Barkley Terrace, Oak Bay.

Funeral arrangements by Haywards Ltd. will be announced later.

POLICE FACE CLOSE SHAVES

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The police commission served notice Monday that if it sees any hairy faces on the force from now on, they better be in the dog patrol.

The announcement was expected to bring a growl from some of the city's modish officers, who have been grooming long hair, colorful sideburns and fancy mustaches.

The new rule provides that "sideburns shall not exceed one inch in width, and shall not extend beyond the center of the ear. Mustaches shall not extend below the top edge of the urrper lip nor beyond the edge of the corner of the mouth."

Fire Budget Still in Air

Acting Sidney Mayor S. H. Dear Monday accused North Saanich council of "lack of sincerity" in negotiating a dispute over the operation of the northern peninsula volunteer fire department.

His criticisms followed a letter from North Saanich suggesting that the six-month-old dispute be submitted to a Supreme Court justice for arbitration if the two mayors failed to agree on a joint budget.

Sidney council earlier this year turned down a joint North Saanich-Sidney fire committee budget but it did set up a fund of its own to operate the department.

Ald. Dear said the letter was a "slap in the face."

"When I met Mayor J. B. Cumming in May I felt he was genuinely making an attempt to settle this dispute," he said. "I felt we were about to make headway to settle this dispute. But now we have received this letter."

Sidney decided not to take action on the letter and to let North Saanich make the next move.

The disagreement centres on control of the joint fire committee which has now three North Saanich members and two Sidney members.

North Saanich also wants a satellite fire station established at Deep Cove.

Two Explorers Opposed On Egypt-America Link

By ALAN HARMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Two modern-day explorers are taking opposite views in their search for the elusive "missing link" between the ancient civilizations of South and Central America and Egypt.

Bobbing up and down in a papyrus raft, Thor Heyerdahl is attempting to prove that Egyptians took their civilization west across the Atlantic to the jamericas 5,000 years ago.

Diving beneath the crystal-clear waters of the Bahamas, archeologist and zoologist Manson Valentine is trying to confirm his theory of the lost continent of Atlantis, and its emigrants who spread east and south taking their civilization with them when it faced doom in a natural cataclysm some 12,000 years ago.

Heyerdahl has a crew of six with him in his 15-ton reed raft. The design comes from ancient drawings found in an Egyptian pyramid which Heyerdahl says are duplicated in the New World.

Valentine's theory gained weight when a cargo pilot sighted last year what appeared to be a sunken building a few miles off the coast of Bimini in the Bahamas.

Claims Evidence

Subsequent underwater exploration discovered six buildings, each about 100 feet long and 60 feet wide. Stone edifices, elaborately made, and a paved highway of stone slabs were also discovered.

Valentine, honorary curator at the Museum of Science and Natural History in Miami, Fla., and former professor of archeology at Yale, says the submerged ruins prove that the area from Florida to the Bahamas which now is under water was once a land mass.

He says the remains are definitely pre-Columbian and could be the first tangible evidence of the splendor that once was Atlantis.

Valentine believes that the legendary lost continent, said to have covered most of what now is the Atlantic Ocean, did exist. He believes it was destroyed in a natural cataclysm of unimaginable scope and violence.

Before the disappearance of the Atlantis civilization, he believes there were waves of migration from the doomed area to what now is Europe, the Middle East, Central and South America. As a result, the cultures of much of Europe, of Egypt and of such peoples in America as the Mayas, Toltecs and Incas, had a common origin.

May Change Thinking

The legends have it the Atlanteans were predominantly light-skinned.

"There are intriguing bits of evidence," Valentine says. "Explorers found blonde and red-haired Incas, and the lighter their color the higher up the social hierarchy they were.

"The gods of ancient Mexico were bearded and white, like Quetzalcoatl, the white god of the Aztecs.

"There are linguistic clues. Artefacts have been found on an island in the mouth of the Amazon bearing inscriptions in a language which is Cretan or Greek in nature. There are present-day tribes in South America that speak a tongue similar to the Basque. And in northern Brazil there is a tribe whose language shows remnants of Etruscan."

Valentine says that if the ruins off Bimini and the Andros Islands are the remnants of Atlantis, they will profoundly change the present-day standard view of history.

"One thing it means, at the very least, is that history has proceeded not by gradual evolution, but by cataclysmic evolution—tremendous natural upheavals which literally changed the face of the globe in the twinkling of an eye."

He also speculates that it may mean that civilization, incredibly long epochs ago, reached heights even greater than those achieved today, only to be destroyed overnight.

Believes in It

The earliest known reference to Atlantis is in the writings of Pluto in the fifth century BC. These accounts of Atlantis have it made up of five huge islands, one of which, called Poseidon, was where the Bahamas are now.

"I believe there was an Atlantis," says Valentine, "but not because of the mythical references to it. I believe because of fact, various pieces of evidence that I've personally found in explorations in Yucatan, South America, Mexico and the West Indies."

But Norwegian-born Heyerdahl says craft similar to his papyrus boat Ra, shaped like a giant canoe, could have been swept across the sea by uncharted currents.

He came to public attention in 1947 when he sailed his balsa raft Kon-Tiki from Peru to Polynesia, again to prove a migratory theory of his.

He expects this voyage to take as long as five months, and many experts have expressed doubts the papyrus binding will hold together for that long.

Whatever happens to the explorations of both men, controversy and discussion will probably last a long time. If Valentine proves the ruins he's found are indeed that of the fabled Atlantis and Heyerdahl makes it across the Atlantic, both theories will still clash.

And as Ra searches for the currents in the Atlantic, Valentine continues his search for the secret of the Bimini ruins.

Air Show Said Good For Canada

PARIS (CP) — Results for Canada at this year's Paris air show were so good that the country's participation in the next such spectacle likely will be larger than 1969's record effort, officials of the Canadian pavilion said Monday.

About 30 companies exhibited at the pavilion during the 10-day display of aero-space innovations which ended Sunday.

"There's bound to be escalation at the next show," said one Canadian representative when asked about possible size of Canada's part in that event.

The air show is held at nearby Le Bourget Airport with participants from around the world.

Canadian officials said a major consideration in their country's participation was the opportunity given companies to gather together their overseas sales agents and meet with representatives of foreign firms.

'Alchemist' Brings Back Stratford's Sparkle

By DAVID DUNSMUIR

STRATFORD, ONT. — Stratford's Alchemist is a triple-distilled delight.

After a sluggish opening Monday with Hamlet, the festival company regained the grab-bag sparkle that marked some of the finest comedies from the vintage years.

Ben Jonson's play, written in Shakespeare's era, is not of an age but for all time—or for any time when dream merchants offer instant wealth, instant power, and instant happiness. The hucksters in this case use the blandishments of the ancient quest to turn baser metals into gold. Only the machinery has been changed in the past 350 years, though—the game is still the same.

Playing the game, and giving Stratford a touchstone for instant success, are three of the most single-minded, many-faced confidence artists that ever cut a purse. Taking advantage of a London house left in his care during an outbreak of plague, Face (played by Bernard Behrens) joins forces with Subtle the alchemist and Dol Common, who's no better than her name implies. The gleesome threesome then hold open house for a stream of dupes, preying on their weaknesses for fun and profit.

Director Jean Gascon uses all the resources of the Stratford stage, including a nostalgic sally down an aisle, to maintain a helter-skelter pace. Action boils in from one door while some deluded innocent is bundled out of another.

The victims end the charade by sheer weight of numbers when the merry-go-round breaks down, but the victimizers escape unscathed and unrepentant.

Just as there is no repentance on one side, so there is no new-found wisdom on the other. The fools are left in their foolishness, still gasping with the greed that brought them there. Dominant among them is William Hutt as Sir Epicure Mammon, moved by lust and avarice to heights of self-delusion and floods of gluttonous blank verse. His portrayal was one of the gems of a glittering evening.

The tinsel of the charlatans made a brave show, too. As ringmasters, they adopt a bewildering set of disguises to meet every man's humour. Subtle (Powys Thomas) is a sorcerer who uses the world as his apprentice, changing in a flash from a Merlin in purple to a Savonarola in sackcloth. His props involve all the fun of the fair. As astrologer, he spins a carney wheel-of-fortune. As alchemist, he trundles on a clanking set of apparatus straight from Rube Goldberg, tons of it at a touch.

Jane Casson as Dol Common was definitely touchable. Her features were more impressive than expressive, and she wore her heart just above her bodice. As a raucous, quivering bundle of delights, she provided many of the laughs of an uproarious three hours.

Others were provided by the interplay of her two confederates with their clients. Each newcomer believes only what he wants to believe, and sees only what he expects to see. The gullible and the gamesome, rich widows and square-toed puritans, all are fooled to the top of their bent.

The play has many bawdy moments, and themes that expose frailty in the most merciless way.

OLDEST PROFESSION

Enticing Sex Romp Obviously Dubbed

THE OLDEST PROFESSION
Restricted
Coronet Theatre

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Raquel Welch stars in a colorful sex romp depicting The Oldest Profession in five sequences ranging from the Stone Age to the Space Age.

The sequences, in effect, are piquant short stories denoting Love For Sale.

The lip movements of the characters suggest a mixture of French, Italian and English, but what comes from the sound track is obviously dubbed-in American—and pretty poor dubbing at that.

Words flow from Elsa Martinelli after her mouth has closed and Michele Mercier appears to be saying "I love you" out of her left ear.

In the case of Anna Karina, her rump is more eloquent than her voice.

The Stone Age scene makes no attempt at realism, since the boys and girls romping in the sea are decidedly mod. There are Roman nights filled with wiggling females; Parisian nights preoccupied with Can-Can girls; Edwardian nights in which top-hatted gentlemen lurk round stage doors—and Space Age nights in which love-making is divided into specialized computerized categories.

In the art of sexual enticement, Raquel Welch is ably abetted by Jeanne Moreau, Elsa Martinelli, Michele Mercia, Nadia Gray and Anna Karina.

This film was made in Spain and the arid, treeless desert reflects the raw, life-is-cheap mood of the story.

It is a rough, fast-moving Western with all the standard ingredients, plus the added dimension of carefully-drawn characters whose interrelationships change the course of history in the Mexican state of Sonora.

The delectable Raquel Welch gives one of the best performances of her career.

Bed-In Wakens Senator

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate must accept its responsibility and put an end to "filthy" programs such as last Sunday's CBC Television production of The Way It Is, Senator Egar Fournier (PC—New Brunswick) told the Senate Tuesday.

On the one-hour show, Beatle John Lennon and his wife talked to guests while reclining in a hotel room bed in their bed-in for peace on a Canadian visit.

Senator Fournier said there must be something of greater interest to the public than Lennon in bed with his wife "preaching revolutionary doctrine." The taxpayer was paying for trash, he said.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The annual forest fire prevention poster contest of the Canadian Forestry Association of British Columbia was won Tuesday by three senior students at Britannia secondary school. Dino Wong, Jo-Anne Woo and Roy Harper took first, second and third, respectively.

Audience Turns Entertainer in Opera

By ED SIMON

OTTAWA (CP) — Opera in white tie and tails shared the spotlight with opera in singlet and tights at the National Arts Centre Tuesday night.

While a crowd of 2,054 heard a concert version of the first act of Wagner's Die Walkuere in the opera house, another 193 were participants as well as spectators in the premiere of Orphee, a chamber opera by Montreal composer Gabriel Charpentier, at the experimental studio.

At the centre's theatre, a packed house watched the Vancouver Playhouse Company's second performance of The Ecstasy of Rita Joe by George Ryga of Summerland, B.C., and chamber music addicts filled the salon for a violin and piano recital by the Duo Pach of Fredericton.

The four events drew a total audience of 3,159—90 per cent of capacity. Most of the empty seats were in the first three rows of the opera house, which are unsold for musical performances because of undesirable acoustical conditions.

Die Walkuere highlighted the first of three programs by l'Orchestre Symphonique de Montreal with soprano Regine Crespin as Sieglinde, tenor Jon Vickers as Siegmund and bass Richard Cross as Hunding under the direction of the orchestra's chief conductor, Franz-Paul Decker.

The three world-renowned Wagnerian singers succeeded in capturing the mood of the opera despite the absence of the customary costumes and scenery and the crowd responded with a standing ovation.

Crowd response came earlier in the more informal setting of the studio, where members of the Orphee cast ushered them to their seats and Jacques Zouvi, playing a part that combined the functions of a Greek chorus and master of ceremonies, taught them a little song about a rose bush to warm them up for their share of the performance.

As the legend of Orpheus and Eurydice unfolded, the song was repeated as background for the action. Later, after the death of Eurydice, the actors dragged members of the audience from their seats to join in an infernal revel danced to a go-go beat.

Eurydice, played by Monique Mercure, returned from the underworld but was lost forever when Orpheus broke a vow by looking at her before she completed the journey. The audience, again coached by Zouvi, joined in the dirge at her passing.

Park Land Purchase Along Creek Urged

The annual meeting of the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway Society passed a resolution Tuesday urging purchase of lands along Colquitz Creek for park purposes.

The policy decision was made despite warnings that Greater Victorians must deal with other major fiscal priorities in the near future.

About 70 people attended the meeting at Craigflower elementary school to hear a statement of the aims and objectives of the society and to elect a new executive.

The resolution, calling for regional government jurisdiction, asked that purchase of Gorge, Colquitz and Portage Inlet lands for use and development as parks be given a top fiscal priority.

Saanich Alderman Leslie Passmore told the group:

MATTER OF PRIORITY

"This matter of pruchasing property is a matter of priority. We have a choice between buying Thetis Lake or a strip of land down Colquitz Creek."

He also told the society Greater Victoria is faced with approximate expenditures of $9,000,000 for extended care hospitals, $26-36,000,000 for acute care hospitals, soaring school costs, and a rapidly increasing social welfare budget.

"We've got one of the greatest assets of any city and we're letting it go to hell," answered society president Dr. John Rogers.

PURCHASE LAND

He was backed up by vice-president Jim Gorst who urged that "some authority be called upon to purchase available land."

Earlier in the meeting, during a minor flurry of debate from the floor regarding the Macaulay Point outfall as opposed to treatment plants, Rogers also pointed out that Greater Victoria residents must face high fiscal priorities in other areas.

"If this Greater Victoria area were not faced this fall with a $26,000,000 hospital referendum I would say I'm all for treatment plants rather than straight outfalls," he said.

"But we have't even got sewers in Saanich," said Rogers. "Let's put first things first."

However, when asked after the meeting where he would place the priority of the land purchase resolution in relation to the other fiscal priorities of acute and extended care hospitals and sewage disposal development, he was not quite so adamant.

"You'd have to place such land purchases high in the order of priorities," Rogers said.

NEED REGIONAL ACTION

"We can always build hospitals and we can always build sewers. We can't always buy land, as we'll soon find out. We need the regional board to provide overall authority in the area."

Alderman Passmore, reporting to the society on progress made in pollution control by Saanich council and sewer construction, said with development of a main trunk sewer from Hampton Road to Macaulay Point, Gorge residents could expect a drop in pollution of the water system.

"Effluent from the Northridge treatment plant will no longer go into Colquitz Creek, but will go into the new sewer, and so will a lot of the nutrients that cause algae growth."

"When we get this area sewered and get the effluents flowing away from the Portage Inlet and Gorge waterway region we will have gone almost 100 per cent of the way in cleaning up the pollution in this area," Passmore said.

TAKE THREE YEARS

At the same time he warned: "We are not going to have the sewer problem cleared up in a year. It may take three or four years."

He called for the society's support and co-operation in establishing sewerage systems in Saanich.

At the meeting a printed statement of the society's aims and objectives was presented.

PUBLIC SUPPORT

It called on members to seek public support in Greater Victoria, "in co-operation with all levels of government, to explore the practicability of producing an overall plan for the future development of the waterway, under the control of one responsible authority."

The statement re-iterated proposal for land acquisition, as well as proposing development of parking areas, restrooms, swimming floats, boat ramps and sand beaches.

The policy statement also called for "provision of an auxiliary police patrol, equipped with a power launch, to police the waterway."

Rogers and Gorst were re-elected president and vice-president at the meeting.

Sawmill Waste Put to Use Covering Garbage Dump

The use of sawmill waste in sanitary landfill garbage disposal in Victoria is one of two such applications on the continent and has helped make Hartland Road disposal ground one of the most efficient, a pollution expert said Tuesday.

Dr. Bruce Levelton, of B. H. Levelton and Associates, consulting engineers of Vancouver, told reporters at a B.C. Forest Products Ltd. luncheon:

"I'm not suggesting this solves the problem of landfills, but it helps."

He said the Victoria dump and one used by Fraser Mills on the mainland were the only two in North America using wood sawdust and bark for initial garbage cover.

The material is supplied free by B.C. Forest Products, thus helping the mill with a waste disposal problem.

At the end of each day, the sawdust-covered refuse gets a layer of earth and final compaction.

"The Hartland Road site is the cleanest landfill operation I've ever seen. There has been some unfavorable and uninformed opinion about it, but you should go out and see it," Levelton said.

He was critical of statements made on the pollution subject in general, suggesting many of the facts are "twisted, misunderstood or not even presented."

BCFP Victoria mills discharge 10,000 cubic feet per day of unused waste — waste not burned for steam and power generation, reduced to pulp chips or made into pres-to-logs or soil conditioner.

BCFP secretary Norman Gish said the smoke emission problem will improve by November, when it is expected to start up a $250,000 mechanical log barker to replace a hydraulic barker.

This will produce dry bark for the furnaces, he explained.

Collection for Rural Areas

Municipal garbage collection in Saanich, which will replace private collection next January, will almost certainly cover the entire municipality.

And the cost will be met from general revenue as part of the mill rate, rather than the present separate garbage tax.

These recommendations were placed before the public works committee Tuesday night and will be put in bylaw form for formal approval in the next month or two.

The existing service covers the vast majority of Saanich, but excludes the most remote rural areas. The cost per house is $18 a year but Saanich is paying the equivalent of 40 cents per house in dumping fees.

Paying for garbage within the general tax structure will put Saanich on the same basis as the city.

John D. University Chief

SASKATOON, Sask. (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker was elected chancellor of the University of Saskatchewan Tuesday.

University secretary Dr. John Bardwell said the margin of Diefenbaker's victory was more than two to one over his only opponent Alex Cameron of Regina.

It was the first time in 22 years the position had been contested.

A total of 23,000 graduates of the University of Saskatchewan were eligible to vote. About 7,300 submitted ballots.

The new chancellor will take office July 1 and will serve a three-year term.

Diefenbaker succeeds Chief Justice E. M. Culliton, who had held the position for two three-year terms and must, by university law, vacate the position.

Back to Monkey Business Top Priority Of Bio-Satellite Space Research Plan

By JONATHAN EBERHART
Science Service Writer

WASHINGTON — While three men prepare to land on the moon, another branch of the business is returning to work with monkeys. And the monkeys will be even more carefully watched than the Apollo astronauts.

Animals in space are nothing new. The first five earth creatures to orbit the planet were dogs. The early days of space research were lavishly populated with germs, mice, rats, insects and other animals, as scientists attempted to make sure that the strange environment of the new frontier would be safe for man.

Since then, astronauts have found space quite livable. For the scientists, however, this is not enough. Only limited boi-medical monitoring and experimentation has been possible with human space travellers, compared with the detailed kinds of studies necessary to fundamental understanding of the effects of space travel.

Now that man has spent thousands of hours orbiting the earth and even been twice to the moon, such a detailed study is set to begin on June 22.

Month of Exposure

The subject: a pigtail macaque monkey, elaborately wired and instrumented to let researchers on earth keep track of everything from the density of his bones to the movements of his eyes. The monkey will be carried into orbit in Biosatellite D, to spend an entire month exposed to the weightlessness and radiations of space.

This will more than double the manned record for time in space, set when Gemini 7 stayed aloft for two weeks in 1965.

"It will be the most exhaustive study ever made of an organism in weightlessness," says Benny B. Hall, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's deputy bioscience director, "far more so than could be made with a man."

The only biomedical information monitored on U.S. astronauts is breathing and heart rate, augmented by blood, tisse and waste samples gathered before and after each flight. Experience has shown more elaborate instrumentation to be unnecessary to crew safety; in addition, the equipment would add weight and take up valuable space in the communications bands.

Past flights have revealed losses of bone calcium and of as much as a pint of red blood cells, both levels returned to normal back on earth. The medical researchers, however, are not satisfied. Dr. Charles Berry, NASA's chief doctor, would like to have data on brain activity, heart sounds and blood pressure.

Comfort Reduced

The basic difficulty has been adequately instrumenting an astronaut for full medical data without interfering with comfort and performance. A simple inflatable blood-pressure cuff would grow uncomfortable after a short time in space and such sophistications as skull electrodes and surgically implanted tubes would multiply the problem intolerably.

The Biosatellite monkey will make such tests possible. Restrained in his custom-fitted coach, he will have only limited tasks to perform, such as pushing a food-pellet dispenser button.

Embeddied in his brain, and passing out through tiny holes in the skull, will be 11 electrodes to monitor brain functions.

Another pair of sensors will watch eye movements, which, during sleep, can indicate dreaming. Two more in neck and back muscles will report on muscle tension and activity, while others on the chest will provide the same heart rate and respiration data that is monitored on the astronauts.

Four implanted tubes will check blood pressure in the principal veins and arteries, while one in the bladder will collect urine continuously for analysis by an automatic device that will look for signs of increased levels of calcium and creatine, indications of deterioration in bone and muscle tissue.

Post-Flight Tests

It took researchers two years and more than $1.5 million to compress the urine-analyzing functions of several large pieces of equipment and a lab technician into an automatic shoebox that would fit in the cramped Biosatellite.

A great number of before-and-after-flight tests are also planned. The change in the amount of normally radioactive potassium in the monkey's body will be measured as an index of loss of body cells.

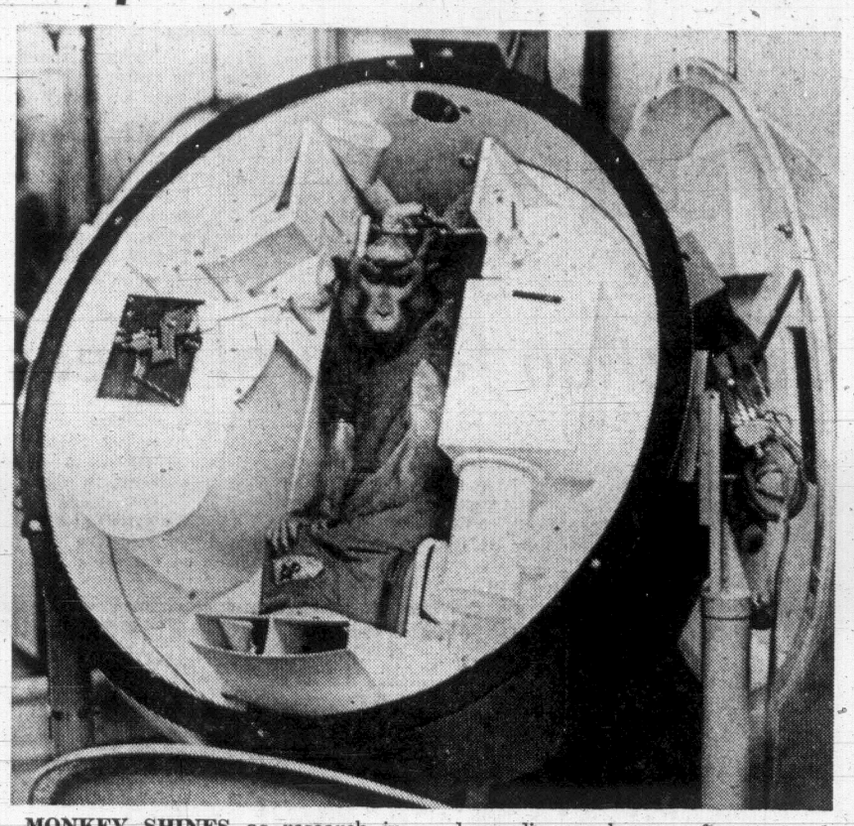
Other analyses will cover changes in red blood cells, plasma, total body water, extra-cellular and intra-cellular fluid, hemoglobin and plasma protein.

Before-and-after X-ray will be taken at 17 different points on the monkey's spine, hands, arms, feet, legs and pelvis. Astronauts are only X-rayed on the hands and feet. The Biosatellite monkey will be X-rayed at 4, 7, 14, 30 and 60 days after the mission to evaluate its recovery rate.

In addition, studies will be made to find any changes in spermatozoa or pre-sperm cells, and the monkey's development will be watched for several years to see if his maturing has been affected by his long stay in space.

Exactly which monkey will make the trip has not yet been decided, and will not be until 12 hours before the scheduled launch. At that time, the healthiest, most agreeable and best-trained candidate will be picked from among five, all of whom have been fully instrumented. Then, while the chosen monkey orbits the earth, the other four will fly a simulated version of the same mission in identical spacecraft on the ground.

The planned launch late is June 22. A delay of more than a week could bring real trouble. Scheduled for launch from the same pad on July 23 is the sixth Orbiting Solar Observatory, with the Pioneer E satellite to follow on Aug. 14. Both of theses spacecraft will require a few weeks of set-up and check-out time on the pad, so the Biosatellite will have either to go or be dismantled by late June.



MONKEY SHINES as research in space programs because tests can be made on all parts of its body for longer periods than an astronaut can endure, and monkeys are not so demanding as humans for personal comfort. The subject above is sitting in simulated flight capsule as part of ground preparations for planned trip.

Crewman Back After Detention In Bahamas

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — William Dempsey, 26-year-old London man who was aboard a plane that bombed the Haitian presidential palace last Wednesday with barrels of gasoline, has arrived home.

He arrived first at Toronto International Airport, told reporters to "beat it" and declined to comment on any aspect of the raid.

He was one of 10 men that landed at Freeport, Bahamas, in a converted Lockheed Constellation after dumping six gasoline drums with burning fuses in the area of President Francois Duvalier's palace in port Au Prince.

The Haitian government later said only one drum exploded and no one was injured.

Dempsey, who grew up in Stratford, Ont., said in an interview at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dempsey, that the men in the aircraft were detained in Freeport by British authorities after a fuel shortage forced the plane to land.

"I'm not aware of any charges," he said. "I was being detained. . . . the British have a nice way of detaining."

He said he was released to return to Canada and the British took the other nine men "three at a time and flew them back to Miami, but I don't know what happened to them."

Dempsey said he had no plans at the moment.

In the fall of 1962 Dempsey was among a group charged by United States authorities in Miami with conspiring to invade Cuba. Charges were later dropped and the group was released Jan. 21, 1963.

In Miami, United States authorities charged eight of the men Monday with conspiring to launch a military expedition against a friendly country.

Two, Rene J. Leon, 45, of Haiti and an American, Martin Casey, were arrested while out on appeal growing out of an earlier attempt to invade Haiti.

ADMIRING a computer terminal hooked up to a central information bank in Los Alameda County are three members of Victoria police department, left to right, Const. Robert Newton, Sgt. Doug Grant and deputy chief Ray Maitland. Far ahead of other British Columbia law enforcement agencies, Victoria police are hoping to convince others to enter the electronic age.

Polite Computer Finds Chief Clean In No Time at All

By JOHN DRISCOLL

Victoria police constable Robert Newton was running an information check on the name, John Frederick Gregory.

He typed a special code and the name on the IBM 1050 computer terminal in the Red Lion Inn which was hooked up to a central police computer in Los Alameda Country, Calif.

No sooner had Newton finished than a reply came back with information on three John F. Gregorys.

Fortunately none was the John F. Gregory who is Victoria's police chief.

CRIME FIGHTER

Newton wasn't checking up on his boss, simply demonstrating the effectiveness of the computer in fighting crime.

The demonstration took place at a convention of Washington State police identification officers Saturday.

The computer handled Newton's request without human aid and proved itself blindingly fast, accurate and diplomatic.

Because this was a demonstration, the computer refused to give out classified police information but did point out that it was sorry about that.

Newton and Sergeant Doug Grant are hoping the demonstration is a forerunner of what will actually be happening in British Columbia within a year.

WITHIN A YEAR

Grant, who heads up the records and data processing department in Victoria, said within a year a regional computer will be in operation.

"There will be computer terminals in RCMP offices and in all B.C. centres with a police force of any size," he said.

"And within five years we'll have a national system with a central computer in Ottawa hooked up with the national computer in Washington, D.C."

Grant and Newton have taken on the chore of convincing other B.C. police departments to enter the computer age.

This year the Victoria police department intends to take a giant step forward by hooking up their telex machine to a computer.

Other B.C. law enforcement agencies will be asked to examine Victoria's instant statistics system.

THIS AREA ONLY

Until other cities are ready, the computer would contain information on the Greater Victoria area only.

"We're further advanced in computer work here than any other police department in Canada with the exceptions of Montreal and Toronto," Grant explained.

"We've been using the city hall computer to compile crime statistics for the past two years."

The city hall computer however is not sophisticated enough to hook into an international police network.

Vancouver is only now beginning to use data processing. The police department there recently hired three analysts to set up a computerized filing system.

Victoria deputy police chief Ray Maitland explained that the computer is most effective in checking criminal records, stolen cars, and inquiring about missing persons and outstanding warrants.

Now, if Victoria police want to check the record of someone, they must telex a message to Vancouver or Ottawa where a manual search of files is made and a telex reply is sent back.

AUTOMATIC SEARCH

"With the computer there is no manual searching and complete check in Vancouver, Ottawa and Washington would be done automatically in three or four seconds," said Grant.

A demonstration on just how fast a computer operates was given recently by San Francisco police.

A computer terminal hooked into the central file in Los Alameda County was placed at one end of the Golden Gate bridge.

As each car passed the terminal, an officer fed the licence number into the computer. By the time the car had crossed the bridge the computer had sent back all known information on that car including outstanding warrants, regardless of the state licence plate.

"San Fransico had 500,000 outstanding warrants valued at $7,000,000 and the computer paid for itself within five years," said Newton.

In theory, a person who had an upaid parking ticket anywhere in North America could be instantly traced.

ENDLESS POTENTIAL

Newton said the possibilities for computers in the fight against crime are endless.

An officer following a car radios the licence number and within seconds has all known information on the car and its owner.

"He'd know exactly what he was walking into when he approached the car," said Newton.

Grant said the computer would not put people out of work but would prevent the need for additional staff as the workload gets heavier.

"The computer will revolutionize police work," said Newton.

Chutist Maintains Top Form

Canada's most experienced chutist, Bill Hardman of Abbotsford, was the top winner at a jumping meet at the weekend at CFB Comox.

With a record of 1,600 jumps he won the senior class at the first B.C. Inter-Club Parachute Competition.

About 50 competitiors from Island and mainland clubs took part in the event, which will be held annually.

Dave Smith, of Nanaimo, won the intermidiate class and Gary Downey, 213 West Burnside, won the novice class.

Comox Sky Divers won the team event followed by the Victoria Parachute Club.

Three mainland Clubs entered the events plus four from Vancouver Island.

Another meet will be held later this summer at the Duncan Airport. Dates have not been set.

Ferner Firm On Resigning

Sidney council Monday failed to get Al M. Ferner to reconsider his decision to resign as municipal clerk.

He agreed, however, to stay on the job until a new clerk is appointed by council.

The clerk last week resigned for "personal reasons", but it is widely known in Sidney that he quit because of frequent clashes with Mayor A. W. Freeman.

Treatment Questioned

Health Board Satisfied Outfall Extension Okay

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The necessity of sewage treatment plants for some marine outfalls was questioned Tuesday by the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

The board decided unanimously to ask Health Minister Ralph Loffmark to permit the proposed extended outfalls at Macaulay Point, Clover Point and McMicking Point to be built as soon as possible.

Then it said further study should be made of the possible need for treatment plants on the basis of practical experience.

In essence, the board asked that the already-approved Maculay Point outfall extension in Esquimalt (without a treatment plant) include Clover Point in the city and McMicking Point in Oak Bay.

In April, the Pollution Control Board approved the rebuilding of Maculay Point outfall, which will take up to 12 million gallons of comminuted sewage daily 4,800 feet (or nearly a mile) from shore.

Minister Satisfied

The permit approving this said it was to be on a three-year experimental basis to see whether or not a treatment plant is needed. The outfall currently dumps about 1 million gallons of raw sewage into three feet of water at low water mark.

Loffmark, who had been demanding treatment plants for all proposed outfalls to prevent health hazards, said when the permit was issued he was satisfied because Macaulay Point was an exception and an experiment "and if it doesn't work out, the treatment plant will have to go up."

Engineers who drew up a massive sewerage report for southern Vancouver Island have argued that long outfalls into deep water, coupled with tidal action, would be sufficient.

It was Dr. G. Scott Wallace, a physician and Oak Bay alderman, who made the motion at the health board meeting.

"Treatment plants are expensive and not an aesthetic addition to the skyline and no one really knows enough to deny the fact that extended outfalls on their own might be 'good enough,'" he said.

If the outfalls were built without treatment plants, studies will reveal whether or not the plants are necessary.

"It is to put the cart before the horse to say we must have treatment plants first," he said.

. . . cart before horse

Saanich Ald. Leslie Passmore seconded the motion.

"This is heresy that is being spread around here today and being a heretic I am happy to second the motion and I am most happy it was proposed by a doctor," he said.

"It is logical to extend the outfalls and take tests. If they are unsatisfactory, then put treatment plants in. But to spend $4 million on treatment when we don't know if it is necessary is a waste of public money."

Dr. Wallace said Loffmark has "off his own bat taken a rather unjustified, rigid stand." The health minister had taken a unilateral position apparently not based on scientific or engineering information.

When the Pollution Control Board granted the Macaulay Point outfall permit in April, chairman F. S. McKinnon told reporters the board has decided all other outfall proposals in this area must have treatment plants.

Visual Surveys

During the health board meeting, Dr. Wallace said he is puzzled as to the criteria for designating a beach as polluted and what was the risk of the public using the beach.

He was told by senior medical health officer, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, that "we rather agree that we have little in the way of scientific standards."

He outlined some of the tests, and their deficiencies, and the taking of sanitary surveys. "If you see faeces on the water and contamination on the beach, this is more important than anything else," he said.

Dr. Wallace mentioned that the subject is receiving attention from the Victoria Medical Society.

Earlier this month, the VMS pollution committee issued a report saying more research is required before city doctors will take a stand for or against treatment of sewage being dumped into offshore waters.

Studies Insufficient

Dr. Brian Pound, chairman of the committee, said beaches are polluted and the sea is not an infinite receptacle for sewage. But on the other hand, insufficient studies have been completed in this area to determine whether treatment of sewage is yet a required step.

He also said that "really, we don't know if there are medical reasons for needing sewage treatment."

This brought disagreement from Dr. J. A. Taylor, provincial deputy minister of health, who said there is enough evidence to indicate that polluted water can be a breeding ground for disease.

A lengthy British medical report on sewage in the sea noted the unpleasant aesthetic aspects of raw sewage.

"The results of the investigation are reassuring," it stated. 'They should go a long way towards relieving anxiety about any presumed danger of contracting infectious diseases such as enteric fever or poliomyelitis from sea bathing."

This report, prepared by 34 physicians, scientists, bacteriologists, epidemiologists and other experts, emphasized the need for adequate dilution of sewage disposed in the sea. If sewage is released into a closed body of water such as a lake, pollution will almost certainly take place to the extent that a serious health hazard develops.

Free School Clean-up Extended

The Saturna Island Free School will be given a long list of items to be remedied by Aug. 1 if it is to hope to stay open.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior medical health officer for the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, said Tuesday a visit to the school showed "the same reather deplorable" conditions as before.

The health board decided to require the school to put its premises in proper condition by Aug. 1. Under a section of the provincial sanitary regulations, it can require any offending building to be cleaned up, or the occupants told to leave, or the premises closed until they are in proper condition.

Health board chairman, Esquimalt Ald. Roy Elphick, said the board's letter is "the first initial step."

The letter requires that the premises be put in a proper condition by Aug. 1 and mentions specifically a number of points, among them:

- Sewage system, currently inoperative;
- No heating system;
- Overcrowding of rooms, including sleeping areas;
- Kitchen, in need of redecorating and cleaning and floor needs recovering;
- Dining room also needs redecoration, cleaning and floor recovering;
- All bathrooms must be cleaned;
- All broken windows must be replaced.

Saanich Ald. Leslie Passmore asked if the school was a restaurant, or business catering to the public, if the same conditions would apply.

Elphick said all such institutions come under the same regulations.

The school is free in the sense that it is unstructured in classes and curriculum, but it charges an annual fee for about 20 persons who attend as boarders.

Labor Hits Interest Hike By Banks

Rising interest rates were criticized today in two telegrams by the Victoria Labor Council.

One telegram, sent to the Toronto-Dominion Bank which increased its prime interest rate by ¼ per cent Monday, criticized the move when the bank's own profits are contributing to inflation.

The other, sent to the Canadian Labor Congress, asks the national labor body to protest to Finance Minister Benson "the antiquated policy of controlling inflation with interest rates."

"The government is losing control of the economy and now is being controlled by the large cartels," said council president JACK Grooves.

On the mainland Syd Thompson, president of the Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America, sent a telegram to Benson protesting the latest increase in interest rates.

He accused the Trudeau government of doing nothing to put a brake on rising prices, profits and interest rates.

"Your government's policies are deliberately designed to tax the ordinary people rather than the rich, further aggravating the intolerable position working people now find themselves in," he said in his telegram.

He urged government action against banks, food store chains and large corporations which, he said, are reaping profits through government inactivity.

Groves said it is obvious that high interest rates will not control inflation. In the past, this method could be used effectively but corporations have grown to such fantastic sizes that interest rates no longer concern them.

"Strict guidelines must be enforced to put the economy of the country back on the road to serving the needs of the majority of our society," he said.

Asked what kind of guidelines, he said direction of where the money is going to be spent, such as making adequate money available for housing. The government should also be creating secondary industry so that the country's raw materials are being turned into manufactured goods which will in turn cut down the need for importing such large quantities of these goods.

BOY INJURED WHEN BIKE HIT BY CAR

A 13-year-old boy is fair condition today in Royal Jubilee Hospital after he was struck while riding a bicycle about 8 p.m. on the Pat Bay Highway Monday night.

Richard Horne of the East Saanich Indian Reserve received a broken leg and severe head injuries. He regained consciousness this morning but remains under intensive care.

He was northbound in the 7600 block and turning left when hit in the side by a car driven by Daniel James Emond, CFB Esquimalt police said, the bike was badly damaged.

BASFORD'S STAND 'MUCH BALONEY'

Times News Services

CALGARY — The Canadian Cattlemen's Association has criticized Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford for his support of a boycott of steaks and roasts to force down beef prices.

The cattlemen said Basford's stand that the price of beef was too high is "a lot of baloney".

Control Weak Says Ex-Clerk

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former British Columbia Liquor Control Board clerk Tuesday criticized the LCB for practices that he said provided the potential for "black market or payoff activities."

Barry O'Hara, LCB employee from 1946 to 1957, told the Royal Commission studying B.C. liquor laws that the LCB's system of control is inefficient and "stimulates rather than retards certain illegal acts or irresponsible behavior by persons distributing or consuming alcoholic beverages."

He accused the LCB of buying liquor from distilleries by bulk, bottling it with the LCB label and then selling it at 20 cents or more a bottle cheaper than the distilleries are allowed to sell it on the same shelves.

O'Hara didn't detail the "potential for black market or payoff activities."

Meanwhile wine connoisseur Anna Meyer, graduate of the Swiss Hotel School in Lausanne, told the inquiry commissioners that the LCB treats bottles of wine "viciously."

Mrs. Meyer said she cringed when a wine waiter poured her a glass and let the wine pass over the metal foil.

She said she wouldn't buy a bottle of wine with a B.C. label on it.

"I wouldn't even cook with it, let alone drink it," she added.

'Protect Girls' Pleads Father Of Slain Co-ed

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — "I don't want her, not dead. They can have her so they can remember she was here. It's about time something is done. They have to protect these girls."

Those were the words of Joseph Kalom as he turned from viewing a body in a morgue Tuesday night, banging a fist into a palm for emphasis.

He had just identified the body as that of his 21-year-old daughter, Alice Elizabeth, a University of Michigan co-ed and the sixth victim in a string of sex murders in the Ann Arbor-Ypsilanti area in less than a year.

Identity of the latest victim had remained a mystery since the body was found Monday in a field on an abandoned farm.

Mrs. Kalom disclosed at her home just outside Kalamazoo, Mich., how she and her husband learned the fate of their daughter, an arts student looking forward to graduation in August and to four months travel in Europe.

"The description on the front page of the newspaper (Kalamazoo Gazette) fit Alice's," she said. "I turned the page to the picture of the victim and my husband said, 'That is Alice.'

"We tried to call the sheriff in Ann Arbor, but his lines were busy. So we called the state police and they came and got us."

Fishing Union Voting Today On Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 1,000 shore workers in the fishermen's union on the British Columbia coast vote today on a motion to strike the industry for higher wages.

The members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union rejected a mediation officer's proposal a month ago. They are seeking $1 an hour over one year for tradesmen and 75 cents hourly for general labor classifications.

A decision is also expected this week from 5,000 fishermen on their reaction to fish prices offered by companies. The union has recommended rejection of the prices and a strike vote may be called.

Sweeping Government Reform in U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — An inquiry commission today proposed the biggest reform of English local government in nearly a century with a major shift of power from London to the regions.

The historic report called for abolition of 1,200 councils and the creation of eight provinces in a drastic shakeup of grass-roots rule in villages, towns and counties.

The proposals would transform beyond recognition the present local authorities which run much of England's public health, housing, water supplies, roads, bridges, education, police and fire services. Decades of established custom would be swept away.

The report is the work of the royal commission on local government in England, appointed in 1966 with civil servant Lord Redcliffe-Maud as chairman.

The 11-member commission spent more than £380,000 ($988,000) and called evidence from 2,150 witnesses to prepare its blueprint for a modern power structure in local government.

The government now will examine the proposals but they are unlikely to become law soon because Parliament's current agenda is already crowded.

The commission said the existing local government set-up, dating from the 1870-90 era, failed to cope with modern needs.

POLICE SEEK LOCAL COUPLE

Victoria RCMP have requested that a local couple who went to the aid of a girl in distress in Beacon Hill Park May 18 report to them.

The girl, age 21, was taken by them to the bus depot but was not able to identify them to police.

Police refused to say what happened to the girl. The incident took place late in the afternoon.

'Son of Expo' Given Chance By Province

MONTREAL (CP) — The click of the turnstiles begins Thursday to determine the future of Man and His World, successor of Expo 67.

The exhibition's second season opens at 5 p.m., and if the turnstiles click often enough before the fair closes Sept. 7, Man and His World will probably survive several more years.

The fair ran up a deficit of $5,228,691 in its first year of operation and was cancelled last January by the city's executive council.

But Montrealers rallied to the exhibition's defence in a public protest against the closing and, through an arrangement among the municipal, Quebec and federal governments, Man and His World was revived.

Last year, the fair ran from May 17 to Oct. 14 and drew a total of 12,516,480 visitors, far short of the hoped-for 20,000,000.

Man and His World's second season was made possible when the provincial government agreed to assume up to $5,500,000 of the exhibition's 1969 operating deficit in return for a federal government concession.

Ottawa agreed to postpone payments without interest on the provincial government's share of the Expo 67 debt, which were to begin this year at the rate of $1,551,000 a month until June 1, 1972.

CCYDA Meeting To Feature Informal Talk

Final meeting of the Canadian Child and Youth Drama Association before school term ends is scheduled for Thursday at 8 p.m. in the student common room of the Institute of Adult Studies.

Tapes made in England by Pete Slade, founder of the international organization of which the CCYDA is a part, will be played and discussed on an informal basis.

Plans for next season will be discussed, particularly in regard to the type of workshops members feel would be most useful.

Membership in the association has increased rapidly and much progress has been made in interesting teachers, club leaders, pre-school supervisors and parents in the value of developmental drama.

Pope Deplores Divisions But Rules Out World Body

GENEVA (Reuters) — Pope Paul flew back to the Vatican Tuesday night after a bustling 12-hour visit as an ambassador of Christian unity.

Emphasizing the spirit of reconciliation between the church of Rome and the Protestant and orthodox religions, the pontiff prayed with members of the World Council of Churches that Christ should "teach us to be truly sorry for the scandal of divisions."

But the successor to ecumenicist Pope John clearly drew the line at suggestions that the Roman Catholic Church join the world council, a body grouping 234 Protestant, orthodox and Old Catholic churches which has its headquarters here.

The papal visit was called by Vatican sources a "complete success" but the Protestant people of Geneva were obviously cool in their reception, perhaps an indication that the days of fiery 16th century Reformation leader John Calvin still are well remembered here.

Crowds were noticeably thin along some sections of the Pope's route and two hostile demonstrations were staged although the Pope did not see them. The demonstrations, believed the first in the pontiff's foreign travels, were organized by militant protestants and left-wing students.

VISIT RAN LATE

Pope Paul's whirlwind visit—ostensibly arranged for him to address the 50th anniversary conference of the International Labor Organization—ran two hours later than scheduled.

After celebrating an open-air mass for 50,000 persons in a city park, the Pope met with Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, leader of the Ethiopian Coptic (Christian) Church.

Daylilies Ideal Perennial

By HILDA BEASTALL

From mid-May until mid-September is flowering time for daylilies in this area. Add to this their ease of culture and many years of increasing beauty without needing division, and we have another perennial for our list of trouble-free plants.

These daylilies are hemerocallis, as modern as today since dozens of new varieties are introduced each year.

Colors range from primrose-yellow through gold, orange, dark reds, purple, apricot pink, to deepest burnished copper. Bicolors occur having two colors in the one flower; and there is one double variety.

The plants grow from fleshy roots (not bulbs), withstanding drought and heavy soils which remain wet in winter. Temperatures have no adverse effect on daylilies. A thin sandy soil would be improved with a yearly top dressing of compost or well rotted manure applied early in spring as growth begins.

Leaves are an attractive green, narrow and straplike, arching gracefully from the ground to a height of one to three feet according to variety.

Naked flower stems rise from the center of each set of leaves, and the height of these also varies with the variety. Some go to four feet.

Each stem, or scape, bears many trumpet-shaped flowers opening in succession so that each scape lasts for a couple of weeks, while a succession of scapes from a single established plant will bring the flowering period of a variety to a month or so.

Sun is necessary to produce prolific flowering, another reason why daylilies do well here, though my own experience shows that some darker shades keep their color better if planted in full sun until about 2 p.m. Daylight Saving Time, then dappled shade for remainder of the day.

Planting may be done at any time, using bonemeal and compost generously for it will be many years before the bed needs to be remade.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books of other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster, who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Stephen McInnis, age 11, of High Point, North Carolina, for his question:

How come the earth's rocks are arranged in layers?

If a person wishes to be picky, he could point out that mountain peaks may not be arranged in neat rocky layers and that jumbled assortments of rocky debris are found at many medium and lower levels. True. However, a serious student is aware that immense forces have been modeling and remodeling the earth's crust through billions of years. The general pattern tends to form rocks in orderly layers but one would expect all this restless activity to leave a few untidy corners here and there. In time, they too are molded into uniform layers while various collections of rocky debris are left elsewhere.

Our globe is almost 8,000 miles through and the thickness of its crustal shell varies from five to 40 miles. The thick lower level is a densely packed layer of heavy basalt type rocks. It forms the solid floors below the oceans and a durable platform below all the continents. Under the sea, this basic layer is carpeted with deposits of shells and oozy slime that continuously settle down through the water. The continents cover it with massive shields made of somewhat lighter rocks and minerals.

Crust Cracks

Minerals are chemical elements and compounds. Their number is limited but the earth's immense building activities blend them into a countless variety of rocks. Volcanos and growing mountains create and recreate vast deposits on land and under the sea. On land, the erosion of wind and weather shift masses of surface material, creating new surface deposits. Ocean sediments tend to form in flat layers and in time erosion tends to level the hilly bumps on the continents. New layers are formed on older layers as restless earth activities bring changing conditions.

The leveling process is assisted by gravity, pulling down everything on the surface with equal force. In time, gravity also causes heavier rocks to sink below lighter deposits. The weight of the surface rocks tends to crush the lower, older deposits into flat layers. Meantime, different surface deposits are forming. Seas invade the land, creating sediments of silt and shells. When they retreat, these deposits become beds of limestone and sandstone. Rivers change their courses, leaving muddy deltas that form layers of clay. Maybe these areas are covered later with seething lavas and still later by silty flood waters. Gradually the assorted layers of the earth's crust form one upon another. Each is a page of geological history, revealing how and when it was formed.

The most dramatic earth activity is diastrophy, or mountain building. As thick crustal blocks are pushed up, their neat layers are humped out of shape. The crust bends and cracks and immense rocky sandwiches are shoved one upon another at all angles. But for those in the know, these scrambled and crumpled slabs also tell the same stories. Each layer was formed under certain conditions and later deposits were formed on top of it.

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Leigh Perry, age 9, of Ft. Huachuca, Arizona, for her question:

What do I do when my tadpoles get legs?

Every spring, the luckiest young people in the land adopt families of tadpoles. The exciting project begins when you find a jellified gob of frog eggs floating in a pond or a lazy creek. You scoop the marvelous stuff into a jar, along with some of the water, and take it home. Pretty soon the round black dots inside the eggs hatch and a merry family of tadpoles begin to wriggle through the water. In the pond water there are lots of tiny plants too small for your eyes to see. The tadpoles feed on happier if you also remembered their pond water.

Soon their front legs and back legs appear and their little black tails disappear. Your foster children look like miniature frogs. They must leave the water and spend part of their lives on the land. The time has come to say goodbye to them. Place them in a box, along with some moist, leafy greenery, and carry them tenderly home—back to their home by the stream or pond where you found their eggs. Open the box and give them their freedom. By the time you have finished saying goodbye, they will have hopped off to enjoy their froggy lives where they belong.

YOUR HEALTH

Undertaker Found Way To Lose Fat

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

When I was a boy, the process of reducing weight was commonly spoken of as Banting. Why? Because in 1860, there was a man, William Banting, a London mortician, who when he was 66 found that with his moderate height of 5 feet 5, he weighed 202 pounds.

Alvarez

As J. A. Maxtone Graham tells us in a delightful article in that bright new journal, Private Practice, Banting became disgusted when, with his huge abdomen, he had to go about wheezing and puffing and blowing in an unseemly way. He had to go downstairs backward, he could not tie his shoelaces, and he could not button his fly.

In 1860, doctors did not know much about reduction and were not interested. Lord Byron slimmed uncomfortably on dry biscuits. Banting went to the British spas such as Harrogate, and probably drank the purgative waters. Doctors told him to row a heavy boat for two hours a day, or to ride horseback, or to take Turkish baths; but with this he got hungrier, he ate more, and got heavier.

★ ★ ★

Fortunately he then saw the ablest doctor of that day, William Harvey, who put him on a largely meat diet without much starch, sugar or fat, and none of the beer that Banting loved. The diet was so generous, with so many calories, that I marvel that Banting immediately felt immensely better, and his hearing was better. In a year he took off 46 pounds, and was down to 156. He was so happy that he not only paid Dr. Harvey's fee, but he gave 50 pounds, then a huge sum, to be distributed among the London hospitals.

Then Banting sat down and wrote a 25-page booklet called Letter on Corpulence. I have a copy here in my library. In the first year and a half, he sold 50,000 copies, and reducing became popular.

Banting took the doctors to task for not realizing that corpulence (great overweight) is a serious disease. Interestingly, Hippocrates, the great Greek "father of medicine," wrote around 400 BC that the fat person seldom lives to old age. Life insurance people learned that much later.

★ ★ ★

Curiously, the doctors of Banting's day became much annoyed with him, and his mail became filled with letters from bitterly hostile people who hoped to hear any day that he had dropped dead. (But also there were thousands of letters from very grateful people.) Some people claimed that his diet had killed him, and so he had to write the widely read London Times, to say he was still very much alive.

Actually, he did not die until he was 81, which shows what can be accomplished when a very stout man, headed for an early death, greatly reduces his weight.

I can remember well the excitement in San Francisco around 1912, when stout women in the smart set learned that my chief, Dr. Emile Schmoll, a Swiss, was reducing people with a special diet. Everyone wanted to know what the calories were that Dr. Schmoll was giving to people.

One woman assumed that calories were medicine. When, after a week on my chief's diet, she returned weighing five pounds more, he angrily said, "Hey, you must have eaten much more food than I prescribed." And she replied, "Sure, I ate my regular diet plus your curative one!"

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Casualties Forced Conscription Action

By BOB BOWMAN

On June 11, 1917, there were dire predictions that Canada would disintegrate as a nation. There was an uproar from coast to coast because Prime Minister Sir Robert Borden had introduced a bill in Parliament to conscript men for military service overseas.

Bowman

"There had been very heavy casualties in the First World War. Since the beginning of the year the Canadian Corps had lost twice as many men as had been recruited. The capture of Vimy Ridge had cost 10,000 men.

Sir Robert Borden had led a Conservative government since 1911 but knew that conscription would have to be enacted by a coalition government because the issue would split the nation to its roots. He urged Liberal leader Sir Wilfrid Laurier to join him in a Union government and help to choose the members of his cabinet.

French Canada was bitterly opposed to conscription but Laurier had not taken a stand against it. He felt that the country should be given an opportunity to vote on the question. Borden would not agree to this, and Laurier finally refused to join a Union government after deliberating for several days.

However, many Liberals did join the Union government although they deserted Laurier with great regret. They respected his point of view but agreed with Borden that compulsory military service was necessary if the Canadian Corps was to continue in the war.

There were riots in Quebec, and prairie farmers sent a delegation to urge Borden not to continue with conscription.

Borden did call a general election and his Union government won easily all across the country except Quebec where he won only three seats against 62 for Laurier. In order to get as many votes as possible Borden gave women the right to vote in a federal election for the first time. The privilege was restricted to mothers, wives and sisters of men overseas.

Conscription went into effect but many people contended that it did not produce any more men than would have been enlisted through voluntary recruitment.

Other events on June 11:

1782—First Methodist minister in Canada, William Black, preached in Halifax.

1815 — Duncan Cameron of the Northwest Company attacked Selkirk's Red River colony.

Tapped Talk Of Murder Plan Filed by FBI

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The U.S. government has produced records of electronic eavesdropping on New Jersey organized-crime figures containing discussions of gangland killings and involvement with public officials.

The records, making 13 printed volumes, were filed in U.S. district court at the request of reputed Mafia overlord Samuel (Sam the Plumber) DeCavalcante of Princeton, who is seeking to void an indictment for extortion.

DeCavalcante hoped to show that illegal wiretapping figured in the indictment. The government denies this.

The charge is that in 1966 DeCavalcante, 56, conspired with two Brooklyn, N.Y., men to extort money from four gamblers.

The recorded conversations, which the office of U.S. Attorney David Datz said were between reputed Mafia figures, contained references to Mayor Thomas Dunn of Elizabeth, U.S. Representative Cornelius Gallagher, (Dem. N.J.) and other public officials. Dunn and Gallagher issued statements Tuesday night in which they denied any wrongdoing.

In January, 1965, DeCalcante and Joseph (Bayonne Joe) Zicarelli met with Emanuel Riggi, an alleged Cosa Nostra figure the government was attempting to deport.

JUDGES MENTIONED

Zicarelli allegedly suggested to Riggi that there were three or four federal judges from Hudson County that either Zicarelli or Angelo DeCarlo could go to as a last resort.

Zicarelli felt that the "best course of action" would be for Riggi to get in touch with "Neil the congressman," the records showed. The FBI identified "Neil" as Gallagher.

In a recorded transcript, Dunn allegedly called on DeCavalcante at the Kenilworth office Oct. 23, 1964, a few days before Dunn was elected mayor.

The man identified as Dunn said: "If you have any way of getting to (mentioning two names) tell them to keep their lousy mouths shut. Because you know better than I do that I have to. . . ."

On Feb. 23, 1964, an electronic device recorded a conversation between four Mafia figures who spoke of previous gang executions and proposed methods of bloodless killing so that the victim would not be "disgraced."

The four discussed the killing of a man they called "Cadillac Charlie" in Youngstown, Ohio. Each was critical of the method used—a hand grenade—because the victim's four-year-old son also died.

Moral Stand On Missiles Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian from the Hudson Institute "think tank" in New York pointedly challenged Tuesday what he called the moral tone of discussions in Canada about ballistic missile defence.

Dr. Michael Sherman, in an appearance before the Commons defence committee, also questioned the "conventional wisdom" of Canadian observers who hold that any step toward disarmament by the superpowers is a move towards greater world stability.

Dr. Sherman, 32, from Toronto, said in a prepared paper:

"One cannot deny that a question of this kind has a moral aspect. . . . But it is not exclusively a moral issue, and even if it were, that would not relieve us of the obligation to test as well as we can the factual and logical bases of our moral convictions."

Truscott Parole Decision Reserved

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Officials at nearby Collin's Bay penitentiary announced today that the national parole board has reserved its decision on an application from convicted murderer Steven Truscott.

No reason was given for the decision and no new decision date was set.

Today was the earliest date the 24-year-old man could have been paroled from penitentiary.

Truscott was 14 when sentenced to be hanged for the murder of 12-year-old Lynne Harper, whose body was found near Clinton, Ont., in June, 1959.

A few months later the sentence was commuted to life in prison.

Truscott has always denied committing the crime and supporters succeeded in having the case sent to the Supreme Court of Canada in 1966 for a reference. It ruled that it would have upheld the conviction.

If the board rejects parole, he cannot make another application for two years. If it recommends parole, the recommendation must go to the federal cabinet for approval or rejection.

Prime Loan Rates Rise After Canada Bank Hike

Singkiang Clash Reported

Peking-Moscow Rift Widening

HONG KONG (AFP)—Chinese and Soviet border troops clashed again in Sinkiang Province Tuesday night. Radio Peking reported today. Sinkiang is where China's nuclear establishment is located.

The radio monitored here said large numbers of Soviet tanks and armored cars had moved in following a first exchange of fire between the two sides shortly before 10 p.m.

Broadcasting a Chinese protest sent to the Soviet embassy in Peking today, the radio said the clash "is still developing."

In its stiff protest note, the Peking foreign ministry alleged that Soviet troops shot and killed a Chinese woman shepherd.

The note claimed that dozens of Soviet border troops had first intruded into the western part of Barluk Mountain, Yumin country, in China's Sinkiang Uighur Autonomous Region and provoked Chinese herdsmen at 9:30 p.m. on June 10.

The note added that Soviet troops had kidnapped one Chinese herdsman. Ten minutes later, Chinese frontier guards attempted to negotiate with the Soviet troops but the latter opened fire, killing the Chinese woman shepherd.

Chinese troops were forced to return fire.

TANKS MOVE IN

Following this exchange, the Russians launched a large number of tanks and armored cars into Chinese territory with "the intent to create an even greater bloody incident," the note said, adding that the event "is still developing."

Describing the event as a "new bloody incident," the Peking foreign ministry demanded that the Russians immediately stop "the invasion" of Chinese territory and "armed provocations" and immediately return the kidnapped herdsman.

"Otherwise, it will surely meet with severe punishment by the Chinese people."

ATTEMPT TO POISON CONFERENCE—RUSSIA

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union accused China today of provoking new clashes on the Soviet border and said China possibly will make further efforts to "poison the good, business-like atmosphere" at the Moscow-organized international Communist conference.

'Gut Issue' Talks Silence Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 provincial premiers, obviously respecting their adherence to secrecy, went behind tightly-guarded doors today to tackle some gut issues of federal-provincial relations.

"It's secret because it's a working session," said the prime minister, as he walked across the street from his East Block office to the old Union Station building where the constitutional meeting is beind held.

"Without television perhaps some people will want to take a less rhetorical or less theatrical stand," he said.

The premiers said little about the three-day conference, except that they were coming with open minds.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said this is the first federal-provincial meeting "that is established on the type of basis that could produce a new constitution.

He said it was a good thing it was behind closed doors since the premiers and officials would be working on gut issues.

The prime issue of the conference is the division of spending powers. Regional disparity is also expected to get an airing.

On the question of regional disparity, Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, said the federal government should have enough power to eliminate it. "If they say they haven't got enough (money), for Heaven's sake, let's give them more."

If constitutional changes are necessary to achieve this," he added, "let's do that."

Mr. Smallwood said that "you can't have a harmonious Canada with five forward provinces and five backward ones."

"The constitution isn't really the basic issue in Western Canada," said Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan.

"I hope this conference will be much more meaningful and that we'll get down to gut issues of finance."

Mr. Trudeau said it is more practical to have closed-door meetings when politicians and officials are taking part. "I don't think it is proper to have premiers arguing with officials in front of television networks.

Ottawa Fans Inflation —Stanfield

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield accused the government Tuesday of using inflation as a means of imposing higher taxes secretly without the approval of Parliament.

He said Finanace Minister Edgar Benson was promoting inflation by raising the real level of taxation and was "relying on inflation to blanace his budget."

Urging the government to admit that such traditional methods as higher taxes had failed to stop rising prices, the Conservative leader renewed his campaign for a system of voluntary wage and price guidelines as an interim measure to prove that the government means business when it talks about stopping inflation.

TWO YEARS

Stanfield said after his speech in the Commons budget debate that he had in mind a period of about two years for temporary wage-price guidelines.

He said guidelines could create their own problems if they were in force too long and he would not favor having so crude an economic tool used indefinitely.

Stanfield said in the Commons that in spite of his denials Finance Minister Benson did increase taxes in his budget brought in June 3.

In addition to the government's failure to keep its promise to drop the three per cent surtax on personal and corporate income tax at the end of this year, and to higher charges for various government services to the public, there was the increased tax load imposed by inflation, he said.

INCOME TAXES

"Inflation increases income taxes without the authorization of Parliament," the Conservative leader charged.

"It lowers exemptions on the real values of incomes of people very substantially. It inflates incomes and therefore increases the actual rate of taxation of Canadians who pay additional hundreds of millions of dollars every year."

He said a married man with two children and an income of $5,000, who received a pay increase of 4.7 per cent to match the increase in the cost of living from May, 1968, to May, 1969, would have to pay about $50 more in taxes on the same real buying power.

"The real income is no higher," he said, "but they pay a substantially higher tax which this government imposes secretly without any parliamentary authorization."

New Levels Start Monday

The Toronto-Dominion Bank today raised its prime lending rate for the second time in a week to 8¼ per cent from 7¾, effective June 16.

This puts the Toronto-Dominion's rate ¼ per cent above those of the other major Canadian chartered banks, which earlier in the day announced increases to eight per cent from 7½ per cent, also effective June 16.

Victoria bank spokesmen today said the new rates Monday will likely mean a secured loan will cost nine per cent or better and consumer loans will rise to about 12 per cent.

Mortgage rates in Victoria will likely average 10 per cent, one banker said.

The Toronto-Dominion also raised its interest rate on non-chequing, savings accounts to 6¼ per cent from 5½, effective July 1. The 3½-per-cent interest rate on chequing accounts remains unchanged, as does the consumer loan interest rate of 11.8 per cent.

In a statement A. T. Lambert, chairman and president, said the bank regretted the second upward move in lendings rates was necessary. The Toronto-Dominion raised its prime rate to 7¾ per cent from 7½ Monday.

"But in the light of present loan demand and the risk of some spill-back of borrowing from abroad it was unavoidable," he said.

The other Canadian chartered banks which announced increases in prime lending rates today were the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, the Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank, Bank of Nova Scotia, Banque Canadienne Nationale, and the Bank of British Columbia.

Savings Interest Also Rises

Of these, three also announced increases in savings interest rates to depositors.

The Banks of Montreal, British Columbia, and Imperial-Commerce increased interest payable on non-chequing savings accounts to six per cent from 5½. At the Bank of Montreal the increase is retroactive to June 1.

The Bank of Montreal also raised its interest rate on chequing accounts to 3½ per cent from three, while the Bank of Nova Scotia increased the interest payable on term deposits of two years or less to seven per cent from 6¾, and The Toronto-Dominion raised its interest on deposit receipts of up to one year to the same amount.

The rate increases were sparked by the announcement by the Bank of Canada Tuesday that it was increasing its lending rate to the chartered banks to 7½ per cent from seven.

A number of United States banks last week raised their lending rates to 8½ per cent from 7½. The general feeling among financial men in Canada was that an increase in Canada was inevitable to prevent even greater demands on Canadian capital by foreign borrowers, attracted by the lower rates.

The moves could mean another

Market Dives

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market plunged sharply today and moved into its eighth successive downward session following the increase in interest rates.

Exchange losses were widespread. Of the exchange's 21 group indexes, only golds gained.

In New York, the market closed with a substantial loss following Tuesday's statement by Treasury Secretary David Kennedy that wage and price controls might have to be imposed if Congress doesn't extend the 10 per cent surtax.

Funds Shifted, Crux Hearing Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — An ex parte hearing was told Tuesday that almost $1,000,000 was transferred to overseas banks at about the same time Commonwealth founder A. G. Duncan Crux, now on bail in Nassau, directed the purchase of $715,000 worth of securities.

Donald Taylor, an accountant with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, testified that the money was drawn from the account of Commonwealth Investors Syndicate last October.

He told the hearing, the first step in proceedings to have Crux extradited from the Bahamas for trial, that $310,000 was transferred to Barclay's Bank DCO Nassau and $590,000 (U.S.) to Crux's account at the First National Bank in Fort Lauderdale Fla.

FRAUD CHARGES

Magistrate Harvey Sedgewick was hearing testimony on theft and fraud charges against Crux and Margaret Harling, his Vancouver-based law partner, involving securities valued at more than $700,000.

The transcript of the hearing will be sent to Nassau for a ruling on whether or not Crux is to be returned to Vancouver to stand trial.

The first day's evidence related to charges that Crux and Mrs. Harling defrauded Fredder Enterprises Ltd., Maemer Enterprises Ltd. and Eastpoint Holdings Ltd. of securities worth about $715,000.

A warrant is still out for the arrest of Cornelius Polvliet, also named in several of the total of 24 charges laid in the case.

A. D. Peter Stanley, a Vancouver lawyer who became receiver-manager of several of the Commonwealth group firms last November, said in testimony that he thought the transaction was "curious."

SECURITIES

He said it appeared the securities were already owned by Commonwealth Trust Co. and there was not enough money in the Commonwealth group at that time to purchase the securities.

Mr. Stanley said he then took over the securities and they were transferred from the Commonwealth Trust Co.'s deposit box at the Canadian Imperial Bank and taken to his home.

He added that after August, 1968, Crux continued as president and director of the Commonwealth group of companies until September. He said there was "considerable disagreement" after that as to whether Crux was still director of the company, although Mr. Stanley did not consider him one.

The hearing continues.

Medical Tests on Retardates Spark Concern of Reform Man

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Medical Association was told Tuesday that medical research on convicts and mentally retarded children should be stopped.

H. Allan Leal, chairman of the Ontario Law Reform Commission, said he is "terribly concerned" about research involving the retarded in institutions.

About convicts, he said "coercion possibilities" are too great on any group not completely free.

"A fellow behind bars may give consent not because of desire to aid medical research, but because he hopes to get extra cigarettes or a year of time cut off his sentence."

Mr. Leal made his statement after a doctors' panel decided that no person should be "persuaded or coerced into donating a kidney to a relative."

He implied that "coercion"—even indirectly—should be prohibited in all medical experimentation. Families of donors or live donors "must be free to choose whether to give an organ without the spectre of adverse publicity."

Public criticism in newspapers of relatives who refused to donate organs has occurred in the United States, he said. It has not yet happened in Canada, but it is possible.

Dr. Christiaan Barnard of Cape Town, South Africa, the man who performed the world's first human heart transplant, and Dr. Pierre Grondin, who performed Canada's first in Montreal, were also on the panel.

Dr. Barnard, criticized by his colleagues for disclosing identities of his first heart transplant patients and donors, said the hospital had not identified either the patients or the doctors.

But six hours after surgery, he received a call from a London newspaper that told him the names of all the people.

He said he would like it to be "illegal" for the names to be published, "but how do you prevent it?"

Dr. Grondin said the Montreal Heart Institute had also withheld names initially, but radio stations and newspapers were getting information from hospital employees and from patients' families.

He said he was told one publication had offered $1,000 reward to the person providing information of the first Canadian heart transplant.

"We've found the best way is to collaborate with the press and provide them with accurate information," he said.

With th' price o' money zoomin' like it is y' kin hardly afford t' buy any.

Orville Braaten Dies Suddenly

CRANBROOK (CP) — Orville Braaten, 51, president of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, collapsed and died today, apparently of a heart attack.

He is survived by his wife Gladys and four children, in North Vancouver.

PRESIDENT of Winnipeg Free Press and FP Publications John Sifton of Winnipeg died Tuesday in Los Angeles of throat cancer. Funeral for the 43-year-old newspaper executive will be held in Winnipeg. See story Page 31.

U.S. Rules Out Controls On Pay, Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House ruled out today possible imposition of wage and price controls if Congress fails to extend the 10-per-cent income tax surcharge.

One day after Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy said such controls were among alternatives that might be necessary to curb "runaway inflation" in absence of continuation of the surtax, President Nixon was pictured by his press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, as giving no consideration to such a move.

Ziegler told reporters emphatically that the administration does not plan to impose wage and price controls even if the Congress rejects Nixon's request to continue the surtax at the 10-per-cent rate for all of 1969, phasing it out with a 5-per-cent rate for the first half of 1970.

SOME PROBLEMS

Ziegler said that Kennedy "was referring to some of the problems we will face if the surtax is not passed" in remarks at a news conference Tuesday.

Kennedy mentioned controls, along with additional budget cuts and tighter restrictions on money supplies, among alternatives he said the administration would have to consider if the surtax were allowed to expire as scheduled on June 30.

While ruling out wage and price controls, the White House insisted the surtax extension was "vital not only to provide a strong budget but to assist in stopping the inflationary spiral in existence for the last four years."

KENNEDY
. . . sees possibility

Ziegler made his remarks when asked for the White House position in response to "reports on Capitol Hill that the surtax is in trouble."

WIN APPROVAL

The Nixon proposal is expected to win approval in the House ways and means committee — possibly this week — but faces trouble on the House floor.

It also has some strong opposition in the Senate. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D—Minn.) called the Nixon plan a gimmick. McCarthy said Nixon "is in trouble" on his proposal.

The White House shot down speculation about wage and price controls as initial reaction in Congress was strongly against the Kennedy suggestion that they might be considered.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 11, 1969 —PAGE 15

Arthur Mayse

For a start today, here is a concerned mother who recently caught her 14-year-old son smoking. Instead of blaming bad example, she asked the boy where he got his cigarettes.

"From pop bottles," he told her.

He then laid bare a nasty little racket that was old when his father was a pup.

Whenever he got a few returnable soft drink bottles together, he would take them to a little store near his school, and receive payment in cigarettes dealt from an opened pack. The boy backed his declaration with the standard juvenile defence: "All the other kids do it!"

Enough of them, do. I learned from a Victoria City Police youth squad officer, to bring in periodic complaints from parents.

"We can't stop these under-the-counter sales," the policeman said. "But we find that when we go out and remind a store proprietor that sale of cigarettes to children under 16 is strictly illegal, complaints about that source of supply drop off."

Sometimes the obvious under-16 who draws police attention by smoking on the streets seems surprised.

"Why not?" he asks. "I'm allowed to smoke at home."

Any way you look at it, the cigarette problem is a toughie.

In our own battle to taper off, we're still on the hour-and-a-half-ration. With increasing frequency though, we find that we have gone as long as four hours without a cigarette.

Relapses? One backsliding ... mine ... to remind me that the battle's far from over.

A letter here from Ann Hannah of 1976 Oak Bay Avenue, who feels that more Victorians should be taking advantage of the flea market set up in Memorial Arena parking lot, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. each Saturday.

This is a commercial venture in that a $3 participant fee is charged by the sponsors, an outfit called Western Swap-Meet Ltd. In return, you get space to set up a couple of card tables. You load them with unwanted items that may prove to be some buyer's treasure.

The venture, Miss Hannah points out, was launched with seven stalls at the initial May 31 market, but last week the number was smaller.

This doesn't necessarily mean that pack-rat Victorians have parted with all the ... well, junk ... that they can bear to sell. As the flea market notion catches on, business may improve.

In fact, my dear one and I have been taking stock of certain assets that we might just manage to struggle along without.

Item: One lofty three-deck teapot, a desperation gift that we have never quite figured out.

Item: One pair of collapsible canvas water-buckets for camp use. You fill them, tote them a quarter-mile, then set them down. That's when they collapse.

Add a ventilated bone china toast cooler, half a car-jack and a steam iron that doesn't, and we've scarce skimmed the surface.

But getting back to the flea market, or "Swap-Meet Bazaar" if fancy we must be. Prospective shoppers are donged 25 cents admission, and even though the sum includes free parking, it could be keeping loot-seekers away.

★

While early-starting vegetable planters rejoice over the new spud and the swelling pea-pod, our late-planted crop is just beginning to struggle through the earth.

To further handicap our chances, we have decided along with many other Victoria gardeners that we are going to use no baneful insecticides this year.

Since Gordon Head is cursed with some of the most voracious leaf, stalk and root nibblers known to man, it could be a tough struggle.

However, oldtime gardeners did manage to function without sprays and dusts, and we're trying out one of their tricks. This is to plant your carrots between onion rows, and thus baffle the carrot fly with a stronger scent.

If it works, fine. And if it doesn't, at least we'll have plenty of onions!

Love's Labor Lost On Haida

By JOHN SLINGER

"Haida," said the reporter, addressing the young killer whale by its new name. "Haida, have you ever considered the birds and the bees?"

The whale cocked an eye curiously at its visitor, who continued: "What I'm getting at, Haida, is that some day, since you are a boy whale, you are going to have to give serious consideration to girl whales."

The 3,500-pound beast backed slightly into the cool waters of his pen at the Oak Bay Marina.

"Look, Haida," said the reporter a little desperately, "like it or not, some day s-e-x is going to rear its ugly head, know what I mean?"

The whale did a slow roll then let out a high-pitched wolf whistle that caused six seagulls sitting on nearby pilings to blush. He knew what the reporter meant.

Could Care Less

Right now the whale could care less. After all, he's only three years old and is much more concerned with herrings to eat than with other whales to love.

The problem, however, could arise in the future and since the killer whale, in the words of the University of British Columbia's Dr. Paul Spong, is "the highest evolved species in the ocean."

Among ocean animals, his intelligence places him nearly in the position of man among land animals.

He could become subject to all the neurotic, psychotic and even romantic problems that man is subject to.

Dr. Spong, a psychologist with the university's psychiatry department, has been studying the behavior of killer whales.

Fired from Post

Last week he suggested Skana, the Vancouver Public Aquarium's killer whale, is an unhappy creature because of its alien environment. For this, he says, he was fired from a part-time position at the Aquarium.

Haida, on the other hand, "is a very lucky whale" and "is in beautiful shape."

This is because Haida is not in an enclosed concrete pen, but in an open pen with only a net at one end separating him from the open and natural life of the harbor.

Dr. Spong explained that the whale's sonar system — a high-pitched series of sounds that bounce off its surroundings and are picked up by sensitive hearing — is the equivalent of man's eyes.

In a concrete pen, the sounds echo and re-echo, producing the same confusion a man feels in a hall of mirrors.

Listen to Motors

With the open pen, Haida can listen to motor boats, the sounds of the harbor and even the voices of other killer whales passing in the distance.

He can have, said Spong, conversations with these passing whales and — who knows — might even whistle up a girl friend some day.

The need for that sort of affection, though, probably won't be felt for another three to four years, when the whale reaches maturity.

Nobody has yet decided what will be done then and Spong suggested that with good environment, diet and human care, Haida might pass into bachelorhood unknowing and happily uncaring.

Adjusted

Dr. Clifford Carl, provincial museum director, allowed as how the whale may feel some frustration.

"On the other hand, people exist in a similar situation."

All the authorities agree that there is insufficient information on the lives of killer whales to permit a prediction of what might happen and what might be needed.

But Oak Bay Marina president Bob Wright says, although "there are no brideships with a load of female killer whales" heading towards Sealand, and you "can't buy a whale at the drugstore," nevertheless, "if we need a cute little female killer whale to keep Haida happy, we'll set out in search of same."

The animal now seems "well adjusted and happy," but Wright says they're prepared to provide him with "a floating Garden of Eden" of that's what he wants.

FEW SCATTERED POSSESSIONS is all that was saved after fire destroyed house, barn and part of green house in $25,000 Central Saanich fire Tuesday afternoon. Health Dealer In Bankruptcy

By STEVE HUME

An American who sold at least 27 Victoria people $12,000 in merchandise which has not yet been delivered, has filed for personal bankruptcy in Vancouver, says the Victoria Better Business Bureau.

Including trade interests, a list of 61 creditors with approximately $17,000 outstanding has been received by the bureau from bankruptcy trustees McDonald, Currie and Co. of Vancouver, manager Bill Tyndall said today.

Personal bankruptcy papers are being filed in the name of Daniel Hardin, Tyndall reported. He said a hearing has been set for June 25.

Meanwhile, Canada Immigration has a warrant out for the arrest and deportation of Hardin to the United States.

APPEALS REJECTED

Vancouver-based Lyall Hawkins, director of immigration operations for the Pacific region, said in a telephone interview he has called for immediate execution of the warrant issued under his signature.

"Appeals on an original deportation order were rejected twice," Hawkins said.

He said, however, that Immigration would likely delay deportation orders until after the bankruptcy hearing in order to give creditors every possible chance to recoup some of their losses.

A man identifying himself as Daniel Hardin, sold the 27 Victorians $12,000 worth of equipment as a franchised representative of Niagara Cyclo-Massage through what he called the Van Isle Health Equipment Company, Tyndall said.

SEVERED RELATIONSHIP

He said Niagara-Cyclo Massage severed its relationship with Hardin in April, after which the man claimed to be representing his own company, which he called Van Isle Health Equipment.

People who paid for merchandise and never received it were apparently not the only losers, Tyndall said.

When ads offering $200 per week salaries plus commissions for sale representatives appeared in local newspapers, seven men quit their jobs to work under the man.

One of the stipulations was that individuals buy their own sales kits for $350 each.

When the operation folded the men were left unemployed, said Tyndall.

ORDERS TO BE FILLED

The Better Business Bureau manager urged that anyone else who has paid for such equipment and not had the order filled should contact him at 386-6348.

Ask The Times

Q. I understand there is a freighter which makes a week-long trip around Vancouver Island and carries passengers. I believe she is owned by a Vancouver company. Could you give me the name of the company and any other details?

D.L.M.

A. Northland Transportation of Vancouver used to operate the Tahsis Prince. She carried passengers but hit a reef off Estevan Point about a year ago. Since that time there has been no passenger service on freighters servicing the Island. Northland Transportation carries freight aboard its Northern No. 2 but she is not licensed to carry passengers.

$25,000 DAMAGE IN FIRE

A quick-spreading fire caused an estimated $25,000 damage Tuesday afternoon in Central Saanich.

A house, large storage shed, and the ends of two greenhouses owned by Dr. David Lott, 6309 Old East Road, were gutted in a blaze at 1 p.m.

Central Saanich volunteer fire department was on the scene for six hours.

FAULTY WIRING

Cause of the fire is thought to be faulty electrical wiring. An investigator from the Vancouver fire marshall's office arrived today.

Thw fire stated at the end of the house in a breezeway connecting it with the shed. Flames burned through the ceiling and spread to the rest of the property.

RETIRED

Dr. Lott, a retired veterinarian from Duncan, and his wife were home at the time and turned in the alarm. Most of their possessions were burned. The had lived there about a year. The house was insured.

A house about 150 feet away was not in danger, police said, because wind was light.

Water Crisis Feared

By JIM HUME

An overdue deep-sea freighter has precipitated Greater Victoria's worst-ever water crisis and posed the threat of a severe water shortage by August 1.

Members of the Greater Victoria Water District Board got the news this morning during an emergency meeting.

The wandering freighter, now 20 days overdue, is carrying special steel pipe to provide the vital link between Sooke Lake and the six-mile-long Sooke tunnel.

Board chairman Mayor Hugh Stephen told members that the arrival of the freighter and installation of the pipe before the end of July was "a most urgent problem."

"We have two billion gallons of water storage in the Goldstream watershed," he said. "To date we have used 400 million gallons of that. If the present useage rate continues we shall be down to virtually zero by August 1.

"We can justify pressure difficulties to the people, but it would be totally unacceptable to tell them we just couldn't deliver water."

The problems began some months ago when VMD placed an order for the steel-pipe link with an Australian firm.

Labor problems delayed departure of the vessel until April 20 and since that time the ship has wandered from port to port with growing delays.

Unlined Pipe to Be Installed

Finally scheduled to arrive in Vancouver on June 10 the ship is still in Los Angeles. After that it travels up the Pacific Coast calling at various ports including Seattle before arriving in Vancouver on June 27, some 18 days behind schedule.

With installation of the link between the lake and the tunnel imperative if the present dry weather continues the board this morning agreed to accept delivery of the pipe unlined and uncoated.

That means that sometime in the fall, after the rains return, the pipe will have to be taken up, cleaned and shipped to Vancouver for the necessary protective work to be carried out.

Chief water commissioner Ron Upward said it was unfortunately imperative that the board move immediately.

The Sook Tunnel, built at a cost of millions, was constructed to eliminate such crises as the one now existing. With it in action Greater Victoria will have more water in storage than can be used.

Without it and without rain August 1 looms as the dry day of all time.

And it all hangs on a wandering freighter between Los Angeles and Vancouver. If it stays on schedule and gets the pipe into Victoria by June 28 temporary installation will eliminate the crisis.

If it doesn't householders will face the prospect of taps without water.

Ottawa Heeds Emergency, Lets Bombers Over Border

By PETE LOUDON

Two B-26 water bombers owned by private United States firms have received special permission to cross the border and were expected to go into action on British Columbia fire lines this afternoon.

W. C. "Cy" Phillips, head of the province's forest protection service, used the near-emergency fire situation to speed federal approval.

The B.C Forestry department said Tuesday that fires were popping up all over the province in an earlier-than-usual crisis situation.

Eight Avenger water bombers are under contract to the province as of July 1 but it was impossible to get them earlier because of spraying commitments in the Maritimes.

ONLY IN EMERGENCY

The province had been left with two Cansos. Efforts to bring in available planes from U.S. points had been stymied by Air Transport Commission regulations which would only permit them to cross the border in a national emergency.

Phillips said this morning the Air Transport Commission acted swiftly to clear the situation following publication of the dilemma in the Times Tuesday.

He said one of the air tankers was leaving Phoenix, Arizona, immediately for Kamloops where it would be pressed into service on arrival. It will remain on duty until the hazard abates.

Another air tanker was to come from an unstated point in Oregon. Socked in by weather early today its departure was expected soon.

"We hope it will arrive at Kamloops today. It is badly needed."

June is normally a damp month over much of B.C. but this year sun and warm temperatures have prevailed.

In a situation where one lightning storm can cause flurries of fires the forestry department was anticipating a severe situation.

The fire situation throughout B.C. worsened overnight. At noon today there were 133 forest fires burning, 40 of them new in the last 24 hours.

There are eight in the Vancouver forest district, six in Prince Rupert, six in Prince George, 17 in Kamloops, three in Nelson.

The fire lines have broadened to include 789 men and 67 units of equipment. Most of the fires are caused by people, but lightning is a growing nuisance.

Kamloops and Prince George areas are the most serverely affected.

PAIR ALL WET ON HANG-UP WITH SAILING

Mr. and Mrs. Ian Smart, 750 Pemberton, went for an unscheduled swim this morning.

Once a week they rent a 14-foot boat dinghy from Oak Bay Yachts for a little exercise and to "get the hang of sailing."

Sailing off Cattle Point, their dinghy was knocked down as they tacked out from shore and was caught in a 20-knot gust of wind.

By the time Oak Bay police arrived Ian and Margaret Smart were coming ashore, after swimming about 50 yards.

Both wore lifejackets, were unhurt, and eager for next week's session.

Strawberry Harvest Work Deplorable—Labor Chief

Conditions in the strawberry fields of the Saanich Peninsula are "deplorable," the president of the Victoria Labor Council said today.

"The council is concerned with exploitation of child labor," said Jack Groves.

He pointed out that trade unions in British Columbia, through the B.C. Federation of Labor, have presented briefs to the provincial government urging that fram workers be included under employee-protection laws.

"We have got nowhere," he said. "The government has not seen fit to do anything about it. Possibly organization is one way to go about it but it is hard to organize, there is no steady work force."

Labor wanted farm workers covered by such statutes as the Labor Relations Act, the Minimum Wages Act, Hours of Work Act and Control of Employment of Children Act.

"It is not only that children are working, but the conditions," said Groves. "The hours they must put in regardless of what their capabilities are.

"I can't understand why the health department allows the sanitary conditions, toilets and washing conditions. There are no facilities for washing."

Groves said the labor council, which represents 70 unions with 13,000 members in the Victoria area, will be looking further into the situation.

The president of the Saanich Fruitgrowers' Association, J. D. Holloway, was not at home this morning for comment or reply.

It was learned from an association official that the suggested minimum pay rates, which can fluctuage, are 5 cents per pound for wine berries and 4 cents per pound for good strawberries.

The official thought a worker might make $5 a day if he didn't fool around. Some make $12 a day.

A Canada Manpower official, asked about his agency's role in recruiting workers, said manpower merely handles recruiting for the farm labor board, a federal-provincial board.

Canada Manpower, a federal government department, "has nothing to do with setting rates or conditions."

Manpower has about 360 persons registered who want to work in the fields, three-quarters of them school students who will be out of classes shortly. About 100 persons were picking today, with another 50 needed.

The manpower official pointed out that farmers also recruit workers directly, and people go directly to the farms.

Children do work in the fields, usually with their parents.

Of the 360 persons manpower has on its books, most are 16 and 17 years old. There are a few aged 15, about three aged 14 and one 13-year-old, but those under 15 were usually of strong physical build.

Lumber Markup Shrinking

The falling price of lumber due to a slackening of export demand, presents a problem for building supply dealers even more pressing than indicated in a price survey Monday.

A spokesman for the B.C. Building Supply Dealers Association said prices quoted locally by B.C. Forest Products Ltd. failed to take 11 per cent federal sales tax into account.

This tax is normally hidden, but the mills do not include it because some of their domestic sales are to manufacturers such as sash and door makers, who then add the tax to their prices. This avoids double-taxation.

But the supply dealers are charged and their mark-up is thus narrowed from what was indicated Monday—about $28 for fir 2x4s—to $14.50 at one yard, or from $35 to $19.50 at another yard.

Prices are per thousand board feet, and haulage from mill to supply dealer adds about another $4 to this price, the spokesman said.

This could mean that when lumber at the lower mill price begins to be delivered, about the latter part of August, if stock at the old price is still unsold, dealers may be the losers.

Sinkiang Clash Reported

Peking-Moscow Rift Widening

HONG KONG (AFP)—Chinese and Soviet border troops clashed again in Sinkiang Province Tuesday night, Radio Peking reported today. Sinkiang is where China's nuclear establishment is located.

The radio monitored here said large numbers of Soviet tanks and armored cars had moved in following a first exchange of fire between the two sides shortly before 10 p.m.

Broadcasting a Chinese protest sent to the Soviet embassy in Peking today, the radio said the clash "is still developing."

In its stiff protest note, the Peking foreign ministry alleged that Soviet troops shot and killed a Chinese woman shepherd.

The note claimed that dozens of Soviet border troops had first intruded into the western part of Barluk Mountain, Yumin country, in China's Sinkiang Uighur Autonomous Region and provoked Chinese herdsmen at 9:30 p.m. on June 10.

The note added that Soviet troops had kidnapped one Chinese herdsman. Ten minutes later, Chinese frontier guards attempted to negotiate with the Soviet troops but the latter opened fire, killing the Chinese woman shepherd.

Chinese troops were forced to return fire.

TANKS MOVE IN

Following this exchange, the Russians launched a large number of tanks and armored cars into Chinese territory with "the intent to create an even greater bloody incident," the note said, adding that the event "is still developing."

Describing the event as a "new bloody incident," the Peking foreign ministry demanded that the Russians immediately stop "the invasion" of Chinese territory and "armed provocations" and immediately return the kidnapped herdsman.

"Otherwise, it will surely meet with severe punishment by the Chinese people."

This latest incident occurred only 10 days before a proposed meeting of Soviet and Chinese officials at Khabarovsk, Russia, on June 18, to discuss border incidents.

ATTEMPT TO POISON CONFERENCE—RUSSIA

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union accused China today of provoking new clashes on the Soviet border and said China possibly will make further efforts to "poison the good, business-like atmosphere" at the Moscow-organized international Communist conference.

'Gut Issue' Talks Silence Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 provincial premiers, obviously respecting their adherence to secrecy, went behind tightly-guarded doors today to tackle some gut issues of federal-provincial relations.

"It's secret because it's a working session," said the prime minister, as he walked across the street from his East Block office to the old Union Station building where the constitutional meeting is being held.

"Without television perhaps some people will want to take a less rhetorical or less theatrical stand," he said.

The premiers said little about the three-day conference, except that they were coming with open minds.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said this is the first federal-provincial meeting "that is established on the type of basis that could produce a new constitution.

He said it was a good thing it was behind closed doors since the premiers and officials would be working on gut issues.

The prime issue of the conference is the division of spending powers. Regional disparity is also expected to get an airing.

On the question of regional disparity, Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland, said the federal government should have enough power to eliminate it. "If they say they haven't got enough (money), for Heaven's sake, let's give them more."

If constitutional changes are necessary to achieve this," he added, "let's do that."

Mr. Smallwood said that "you can't have a harmonious Canada with five forward provinces and five backward ones."

"The constitution isn't really the basic issue in Western Canada," said Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan.

"I hope this conference will be much more meaningful and that we'll get down to gut issues of finance."

Mr. Trudeau said it is more practical to have closed-door meetings when politicians and officials are taking part. "I don't think it is proper to have premiers arguing with officials in front of television networks.

Ottawa Fans Inflation —Stanfield

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield accused the government Tuesday of using inflation as a means of imposing higher taxes secretly without the approval of Parliament.

He said Finance Minister Edgar Benson was promoting inflation by raising the real level of taxation and was "relying on inflation to balance his budget."

Urging the government to admit that such traditional methods as higher taxes had failed to stop rising prices, the Conservative leader renewed his campaign for a system of voluntary wage and price guidelines as an interim measure to prove that the government means business when it talks about stopping inflation.

TWO YEARS

Stanfield said after his speech in the Commons budget debate that he had in mind a period of about two years for temporary wage-price guidelines.

He said guidelines could create their own problems if they were in force too long and he would not favor having so crude an economic tool used indefinitely.

Stanfield said in the Commons that in spite of his denials Finance Minister Benson did increase taxes in his budget brought in June 3.

In addition to the government's failure to keep its promise to drop the three per cent surtax on personal and corporate income tax at the end of this year, and to higher charges for various government services to the public, there was the increased tax load imposed by inflation, he said.

INCOME TAXES

"Inflation increases income taxes without the authorization of Parliament," the Conservative leader charged.

"It lowers exemptions on the real values of incomes of people very substantially. It inflates incomes and therefore increases the actual rate of taxation of Canadians who pay additional hundreds of millions of dollars every year."

He said a married man with two children and an income of $5,000, who received a pay increase of 4.7 per cent to match the increase in the cost of living from May, 1968, to May, 1969, would have to pay about $50 more in taxes on the same real buying power.

"The real income is no higher," he said, "but they pay a substantially higher tax which this government imposes secretly without any parliamentary authorization."

New Levels Start Monday

The Toronto-Dominion Bank today raised its prime lending rate for the second time in a week to 8¼ per cent from 7¾, effective Monday.

This puts the Toronto-Dominion's rate ¼ per cent above those of the other major Canadian chartered banks, which earlier in the day announced increases to eight per cent from 7½ per cent, also effective June 16.

Victoria bank spokesmen today said the new rates Monday will likely mean a secured loan will cost 9 per cent or better.

Mortgage rates in Victoria will likely average 10 per cent, one banker said.

The Toronto-Dominion also raised its interest rate on non-chequing savings accounts to 6¼ per cent from 5½, effective July 1. The 3½-per-cent interest rate on chequing accounts remains unchanged, as does the consumer loan interest rate of 11.8 per cent.

In a statement A. T. Lambert, chairman and president, said the bank regretted the second upward move in lendings rates was necessary. The Toronto-Dominion raised its prime rate to 7¾ per cent from 7½ Monday.

"But in the light of present loan demand and the risk of some spill-back of borrowing from abroad it was unavoidable," he said.

The other Canadian chartered banks which announced increases in prime lending rates today were the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, the Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank, Bank of Nova Scotia, Banque Canadienne Nationale, and the Bank of British Columbia.

Savings Interest Also Rises

Of these, three also announced increases in savings interest rates to depositors.

The Banks of Montreal, British Columbia, and Imperial-Commerce increased interest payable on non-chequing savings accounts to six per cent from 5½. At the Bank of Montreal the increase is retroactive to June 1.

The Bank of Montreal also raised its interest rate on chequing accounts to 3½ per cent from three, while the Bank of Nova Scotia increased the interest payable on term deposits of two years or less to seven per cent from 6¾, and The Toronto-Dominion raised its interest on deposit receipts of up to one year to the same amount.

The rate increases were sparked by the announcement by the Bank of Canada Tuesday that it was increasing its lending rate to the chartered banks to 7½ per cent from seven.

A number of United States banks last week raised their lending rates to 8½ per cent from 7½. The general feeling among financial men in Canada was that an increase in Canada was inevitable to prevent even greater demands on Canadian capital by foreign borrowers, attracted by the lower rates.

The moves could mean another

Market Dives

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market plunged sharply today and moved into its eighth successive downward session following the increase in interest rates.

Exchange losses were widespread. The Toronto index closed at 185.35, down 4.02 points. (See Page 8.)

In New York, the market closed with a substantial loss following Tuesday's statement by Treasury Secretary David Kennedy that wage and price controls might have to be imposed if Congress doesn't extend the 10 per cent surtax.

Funds Shifted, Crux Hearing Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — An ex parte hearing was told Tuesday that almost $1,000,000 was transferred to overseas banks at about the same time Commonwealth founder A. G. Duncan Crux, now on bail in Nassau, directed the purchase of $715,000 worth of securities.

Donald Taylor, an accountant with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, testified that the money was drawn from the account of Commonwealth Investors Syndicate last October.

He told the hearing, the first step in proceedings to have Crux extradited from the Bahamas for trial, that $310,000 was transferred to Barclay's Bank DCO Nassau and $590,000 (U.S.) to Crux's account at the First National Bank in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

FRAUD CHARGES

Magistrate Harvey Sedgewick was hearing testimony on theft and fraud charges against Crux and Margaret Harling, his Vancouver-based law partner, involving securities valued at more than $700,000.

The transcript of the hearing will be sent to Nassau for a ruling on whether or not Crux is to be returned to Vancouver to stand trial.

The first day's evidence related to charges that Crux and Mrs. Harling defrauded Fredder Enterprises Ltd., Maemer Enterprises Ltd. and Eastpoint Holdings Ltd. of securities worth about $715,000.

A warrant is still out for the arrest of Cornelius Polvliet, also named in several of the total of 24 charges laid in the case.

A. D. Peter Stanley, a Vancouver lawyer who became receiver-manager of several of the Commonwealth group firms last November, said in testimony that he thought the transaction was "curious."

SECURITIES

He said it appeared the securities were already owned by Commonwealth Trust Co. and there was not enough money in the Commonwealth group at that time to purchase the securities.

Mr. Stanley said he then took over the securities and they were transferred from the Commonwealth Trust Co.'s deposit box at the Canadian Imperial Bank and taken to his home.

He added that after August, 1968, Crux continued as president and director of the Commonwealth group of companies until September. He said there was "considerable disagreement" after that as to whether Crux was still director of the company although Mr. Stanley did not consider him one.

The hearing continues.

Medical Tests on Retardates Spark Concern of Reform Man

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Medical Association was told Tuesday that medical research on convicts and mentally retarded children should be stopped.

H. Allan Leal, chairman of the Ontario Law Reform Commission, said he is "terribly concerned" about research involving the retarded in institutions.

About convicts, he said "coercion possibilities" are too great on any group not completely free.

"A fellow behind bars may give consent not because of desire to aid medical research, but because he hopes to get extra cigarettes or a year of time cut off his sentence."

Mr. Leal made his statement after a doctors' panel decided that no person should be "persuaded or coerced into donating a kidney to a relative."

He implied that "coercion"—even indirectly—should be prohibited in all medical experimentation. Families of donors or live donors "must be free to choose whether to give an organ without the spectre of adverse publicity."

Public criticism in newspapers of relatives who refused to donate organs has occurred in the United States, he said. It has not yet happened in Canada, but it is possible.

Dr. Christiaan Barnard of Cape Town, South Africa, the man who performed the world's first human heart transplant, and Dr. Pierre Grondin, who performed Canada's first in Montreal, were also on the panel.

Dr. Barnard, criticized by his colleagues for disclosing identities of his first heart transplant patients and donors, said the hospital had not identified either the patients or the doctors.

But six hours after surgery, he received a call from a London newspaper that told him the names of all the people.

He said he would like it to be "illegal" for the names to be published, "but how do you prevent it?"

Dr. Grondin said the Montreal Heart Institute had also withheld names initially, but radio stations and newspapers were getting information from hospital employees and from patients' families.

He said he was told one publication had offered $1,000 reward to the person providing information of the first Canadian heart transplant.

"We've found the best way is to collaborate with the press and provide them with accurate information," he said.

With th' price o' money zoomin' like it is y' kin hardly afford t' buy any.

U.S. Rules Out Controls On Pay, Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House ruled out today possible imposition of wage and price controls if Congress fails to extend the 10-per-cent income tax surcharge.

One day after Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy said such controls were among alternatives that might be necessary to curb "runaway inflation" in absence of continuation of the surtax, President Nixon was pictured by his press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, as giving no consideration to such a move.

Ziegler told reporters emphatically that the administration does not plan to impose wage and price controls even if the Congress rejects Nixon's request to continue the surtax at the 10-per-cent rate for all of 1969, phasing it out with a 5-per-cent rate for the first half of 1970.

SOME PROBLEMS

Ziegler said that Kennedy "was referring to some of the problems we will face if the surtax is not passed" in remarks at a news conference Tuesday.

Kennedy mentioned controls, along with additional budget cuts and tighter restrictions on money supplies, among alternatives he said the administration would have to consider if the surtax were allowed to expire as scheduled on June 30.

While ruling out wage and price controls, the White House insisted the surtax extension was "vital not only to provide a strong budget but to assist in stopping the inflationary spiral in existence for the last four years."

KENNEDY
... sees possibility

Ziegler made his remarks when asked for the White House position in response to "reports on Capitol Hill that the surtax is in trouble."

WIN APPROVAL

The Nixon proposal is expected to win approval in the House ways and means committee — possibly this week — but faces trouble on the House floor.

It also has some strong opposition in the Senate. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D—Minn.) called the Nixon plan a gimmick. McCarthy said Nixon "is in trouble" on his proposal.

The White House shot down speculation about wage and price controls as initial reaction in Congress was strongly against the Kennedy suggestion that they might be considered.
